YOUR GUIDE TO INFINITE PLATINUM

Method One – Recommended for Levels 1 - 30

The following method describes how you can make from 50-75 platinum per hour in EverQuest. I am going to guide you through this process step-by-step. When you are finished, you will essentially have an EverQuest "money press", your own EQ ATM to make platinum withdrawals from any time you want!!! This method can be used by anyone and involves a simple trade skill. You will be buying all of your supplies from merchants, and selling everything back to the same merchants.

Any character can be used, though charisma and wisdom effect your plat earning potential. Wisdom effects your failure rate in any trade skill, and charisma effects how much you can buy and sell for. This will be discussed in detail below. The first decision that needs to be made is: are you going to use an existing character for making plat, or create a new one? This will largely depend on the characters you already have. Whatever character you use, the character needs to be able to get their charisma to 135 without spending too much platinum.

Charisma requirements will be LOWER for characters that have good faction with the merchants involved in this method. The 135 charisma requirement assumes "apprehensive" faction. The charisma requirement will likely be considerably less with "indifferent" or better faction with the merchants you'll be buying and selling with. Here are the charisma items with the most "bang for the buck":

- Crude Stein: 15 charisma, about 30 plat or so depending on server
- Cat Eye Bracelet: 7 charisma, should be 22 plat (double cost to make); With a Crude Stein and two Cat Eye Bracelets, you will be able to raise your charisma by 29 points for only 74 plat. Here are some other items that are more expensive:
- Silver Star Ruby Veil: 5 charisma, 5 dexterity, 135 plat (double cost to make)
- Platinum Star Ruby Veil: 9 charisma, 9 dexterity, 350 plat (double cost to make)
- Electrum Star Ruby Ring: 7 Charisma, 5 dexterity, 140 plat (double cost to make)

If one were to buy all of these, they could raise their charisma an additional 19-23 points. However, this comes at an expense of 415-630 plat. I would not spend this; instead, I would create a new character designed for the express purpose of making platinum. I suggest reading through this entire guide at least once before making this decision however.

If you decide to create a new character for the express purpose of making platinum, a High Elf Enchanter is without a doubt the only choice. Placing all points into charisma, the High Elf Enchanter begins with a base charisma of 115. This is enough by itself to make good money with this method. And, all you need is a Crude Stein and one Cat Eye Bracelet to raise your charisma to 137, which will give you the best prices you can get when buying from and selling to merchants. These two items are only around 50 plat total, and you can buy them after you've already made 50 plat from the method!

Another reason I would STRONGLY recommend a High Elf Enchanter is that they start with a base wisdom of 95. Putting your remaining 5 points into wisdom nets you 100. Wisdom dramatically affects failure rates, and therefore your plat earning potential. I tried this with both a human character with 85 wisdom, and a High Elf Enchanter with 100 wisdom, and it cost far less to do it with the High Elf Enchanter, and I made a lot more plat as well once I was finished. Whatever character you decide to use, it should be one that can get their charisma up to 135 and wisdom up to 100 with minimal expense. High Elf Enchanters fit the bill perfectly.

Now, I am going to guide you step-by-step through this procedure. I am writing it assuming that you are starting from scratch with a High Elf Enchanter. If you decide to use an already existing character with high charisma, you can simply skip over the parts referencing the new character. It is also written with the new player in mind, so experienced players may be able to skim over parts. Still, I recommend everyone read this entire method at least once before beginning. It would be a shame to make a costly, time consuming mistake that could have been avoided by reading this guide thoroughly. Let’s begin!

1) Create a High Elf Enchanter, and put ALL of your points into charisma. There will be 5 points left over. Put these into Wisdom, as this will help too. The need for wisdom will be explained in detail later. NOTE: If you plan on using this enchanter as a "real" character, I would put all of your points into intelligence instead, and the remaining 5 into charisma. I have researched this subject, and the general consensus is that intelligence is much more important than charisma for enchanters.

2) Some even believe that charisma is of minimal importance, at least when compared to intelligence. Even putting only 5 points into charisma, you will still be able to raise your charisma to 135 fairly easily.
3) Although you CAN do this at level 1, it is highly risky and due to dying and corpse retrieval time I would not recommend it. Instead, get the enchanter up to level four. At level four, enchanters get invisibility or "invis" as it is most often called. Invis will keep you alive. Although you can get others to cast invis and SoW on you as a level one character, it can and does wear off at the wrong time, and you want to be able to invis yourself at a moments notice. So get up to level four. It doesn't take long .. Getting to level four is easy simply by killing bats, wasp drones, decaying skeletons, etc. Make sure to get your pet spell ASAP. If you won't be able to give this enchanter platinum off of another character, then I suggest you focus on decaying skeletons as much as possible. These drop bone chips, which can be sold for 3 plat per stack of 20 to other players. Simply /auction them off when you have a stack. Some generous high level necros will pay a hardworking newbie 5 plat per stack even. If they don't sell, don't wait around and don't worry about it. You'll be going to Freeport once you hit level 4, and you can sell them in East Commons. Also, decaying skeletons drop weapons sometimes, and once in awhile a cracked staff worth over a plat. Orc pawns with weapons are good too. Any time you see a decaying skeleton or an orc pawn with a staff, take it out immediately since the cracked staff is worth so much. If you reach level four killing every decaying skeleton you see, you should be able to make all the plat you need to make this work. Don't spend too much time hunting for decaying skeletons though. Fight and level as quickly as possible. Just pay attention and kill every decaying skeleton you see.
4) Once you hit level four, it's time to go to Freeport. Get your level four pet, invisibility and gate spells before leaving. You will definitely want to get a SoW (Spirit of Wolf) so that you can get there faster and safer. Most druids will be glad to do it for a plat or two, or free to a low-level character with no money. SoW will not only get you there faster, but it will allow you to outrun most enemies should your invisibility wear off and something agros on you. Keep yourself invisible while on your way to Freeport. If you can get someone to teleport you to West Commons or North Ro, that will save you some time but it isn't necessary. I recommend printing out some maps for all zones you will be traveling through if you aren't familiar with them. EQAtlas has good maps, as do many other sites. Briefly, to get to Freeport go from Greater Faydark to Butcherblock Mountains. The zone entrance to Butcherblock is at neg 1500, pos 2400. Once inside Butcherblock, you need to get to the docks. Run along the path, and at the only crossroads in the zone, steer to your right. Follow this path all the way to the docks. You will run by the Dwarf city of Kaladim. Once at the docks, you need to catch the big ship to Freeport. This ship docks at the main docks on the right. This ship will take you into Ocean of Tears, and then into East Freeport. Once in East Freeport, get off the ship and go into the Port Authority building. You need to bind here. You can get a bind by shouting that you need one. At your level, a plat or so will suffice for a bind, and most high level characters will do it for you for free. You might have to go to the gate to get a bind, but try to get one inside the port authority if at all possible. After you've gotten a bind, look at your map, and find your way to Trader's Holiday. Go into Trader's Holiday and buy a spit, which is for baking. Now, look at your map again and go to the west Freeport zone. Once you zone into West Freeport, look at your map and go to the Monk Guild, called the Ashen House. Buy seven backpacks from the vendor inside. If you can't afford seven backpacks, go sell your bone chips at the tunnel in East Commons (neg 1000, pos 825) and come back. Or, to be honest, you can work with less backpacks, it will simply require more trips. You'll be making money soon enough anyway right here in Freeport, and can buy more backpacks later if necessary. Now, take a look at your map and make your way to the West Gate. It is by the Freeport Militia House.

5) Now that you've bound in Freeport and you have your spit, you're ready to start working on your money machine. Stay invis when not in Freeport. Go outside the gate and run out of Freeport until you zone into East Commons. Run up the path, and do not turn anywhere. The first inn you come to, stop and go into the farthest building where a merchant named Parthar is at. The location is neg 110, pos 235. Buy enough frosting (1 silver each) from Parthar to fill up all of your backpacks but one. Leave one empty. Remember that you can now purchase stacks by holding your shift key when you press the "buy" button. Now you need to return to Freeport. Go to the caster's guild called "The Academy of Arcane Sciences." The first merchant on the second level, Lysa Truegreen, sells batwings. Buy enough batwings to fill up your remaining backpack, but leave one slot empty. If you're using a High Elf Enchanter as I recommend, while you're here go to one of the guildmasters and put ALL of your practice points into BAKING. Another place to buy batwings is in East Commons, but I definitely prefer the safety of Freeport. To get to the batwing merchant in East Commons, run across the East Commons zone, almost into West Commons. You need to go to Katha Firespinner, an Erudite merchant at pos 250, pos 4750. Katha Firespinner sells batwings for 1 silver each, depending on your faction. Buy enough batwings to fill up your remaining backpack, but leave one slot empty.

6) Have a seat - you're about to start baking! :) If you've decided to buy batwings in East Commons, roaming bears, orc pawns, etc will likely attack you. You can either try to stay invis, or summon your level four pet and sit there with him guarding you. The only thing that ever attacked me was orc pawns and bears, and neither one is a match for you and your pet. If you decide to sit there invis and it wears off, and you get attacked by a bear, summon your pet immediately because there is no way you will take a bear without your pet. With your pet it's easy though. OK - back to business. Sit down and open a backpack that is full of frosting. Swap batwings with frosting so that the backpack has four stacks of each. Make them staggered, so there is a stack of batwings on top of a stack of frosting. Now, open up your spit. Line these two up so you can move frosting and batwings into the spit as fast as possible. Press your CTRL key on your keyboard and keep it pressed, so you only take one batwing and one frosting at a time. Place one of each into the spit and click "combine." If you are successful, you will have made a sweet treat called a "batwing crunchie." These turn trivial at 45, so keep making them until they are trivial. Buy batwings as needed. Sell the batwing crunchies back to the merchant as needed. Once you hit 45, you can sell all of your remaining supplies back to the same merchant for what you paid for them, or very close to it.
7) Head back to Parthar, where you bought your frosting. Fill up all of your backpacks but one with Jugs of Sauce. These are less than one silver each, depending on your charisma. Now, gate back into East Freeport. Head to the Port Authority if you are not already there. Buy five stacks of fresh fish or so, leaving yourself with three free slots. Now, have a seat and combine one fish and one sauce, like you did for the batwing crunchies. This creates "fish fillets." These will turn trivial at 82. Keep making these until they go trivial, buying more fish as needed. Once you hit 82, you can sell your remaining sauce to the merchants in the Port Authority.

8) It's time to head back to wherever you bought batwings and fill up on batwings again. This time, leave two empty slots in your last backpack, and fill the rest with batwings. Gate back to the Port Authority.
9) Once you're back at the Port Authority, buy more fish. Buy one stack, leaving yourself one empty slot in your backpack. Now, combine one fish with one batwing. This makes "fish rolls". Not a profitable item, but they will take your skill all the way up to 135. Continue to make fish rolls until 135, buying more fish as needed.
10) After your skill is maxed out at 135, sell off your remaining batwings to the merchants in the Port Authority. You now need to buy whatever gear is necessary to bring your charisma up to 135. The charisma items are listed at the beginning of this guide. I experimented with various charisma levels with a High Elf Enchanter for this purpose, and the cutoff seemed to be 135. Any higher than 135, and I did not receive any better prices when buying or selling from the merchants we will ultimately deal with. As soon as you can afford the necessary items, head to the tunnel in East Commons which is at neg 1000, pos 825 and buy them. Find a jeweler while you're there to make you any charisma items you need that a jeweler can make. Don't leave until your charisma is 135 or better. Remember, better than 135 won't help you any. It is extremely inexpensive to get your charisma to 135 if you're using the recommended High Elf Enchanter.
11) If you have your baking skill at 135 and your charisma at 135, and at least 5 platinum or so, it's time to leave for your final destination, which is Thurgadin. Before leaving, I highly recommend banking ALL of your gear, except for enough plat for your port. Thurgadin is the Ice Dwarf (Coldain) City in the Great Divide of Velious. If you know how to get there, you can skip this step. Go to Thurgadin now. If not, I will explain how to get there. First of all, I strongly suggest you get a teleport to get you as close to Thurgadin as possible. This means porting to the Iceclad Ocean zone. Keep in mind that Velious ports are more expensive in general because they are higher level ports. For all the money you will be making though, you won't have to worry about it. Most druids and wizards will be happy to port you for 20-30 plat, and anytime I've really needed one fast, 50 plat has gotten it right away. Whatever you pay, make sure you have at least 15 plat left over. Before you port, make sure you get a SoW and are invisible. Throughout the entire journey, you want to be very cautious of everything around you to avoid being attacked if your invis wears off. Once you arrive in Iceclad, the first thing you will want to do is head to neg 4400, pos 9200. This is the bridge that will lead you to the next zone, which is Eastern Wastes. Be careful, as there are two ice giants guarding the entrance of this bridge. If you're invis, you're fine. If not, you can go around them. Run all the way over this bridge and you will zone into Eastern Wastes. Once in Eastern Wastes, you can go one of two ways: a) You can run directly to the zone into the Great Divide, which is neg 1700, pos 5500. This is faster, but riskier. b) You can run along the zone wall and avoid trouble for the most part. Simply follow the zone border to the right once you enter Eastern Wastes. Eventually, you will come to the Great Divide zone entrance. Whichever method you choose, zone into the Great Divide. Once you have entered Great Divide, follow the zone border to the right. This will take you to Thurgadin rather quickly, thankfully. The Thurgadin entrance is at pos 50, pos 150. The zone entrance is directly through the waterfall. Zone on in. If you can't get a port to Iceclad Ocean for some reason, you'll need to go there by boat. Head to East Freeport (same zone as the Port Authority) and run out the gate and outside Freeport. Keep going and you'll zone into North Ro. Once inside North Ro, run to the left and you'll come to the ocean. Run up the shore and you'll come to a dock with Frankel the Pirate. The location is 800, neg 850. A shuttle will pick you up here and take you to Iceclad Ocean. First, you'll come to a small island. Run across this island and you'll see a big dock. A ship will pick you up here and take you to your final destination, which will be another island. Run to the left along the shore of this island until you come to an ice bridge, location pos 4770, pos 2180. Go across this ice bridge. You will come to another island; run to the left and up the shore on this island as well until you come to another ice bridge, location pos 585, pos 2450. Go across this ice bridge. Now, you are at the main island and need to follow the directions above as if you had ported to Thurgadin. This means running to the main bridge which will zone you into Eastern Wastes, which is at neg 1700, pos 5500. Be cautious of the ice giants guarding the bridge, which you can go around if you're not invis. Now, you can continue on to Thurgadin as if you had ported. Whew! IMPORTANT! PLEASE NOTE: There is one very good reason you might consider going on foot, and that is to get 10 slot toolboxes from a Gnome Pirate Merchant in Iceclad Ocean. If you do port to Iceclad, you can backtrack to the Gnome Merchants. The merchant you want is Adinel Jailbar, and he is at pos 4536, pos 1286. This location is close to where you zone in from North Ro. Deluxe toolboxes are about 2 platinum each, and well worth it. Buy enough to fill up your inventory and of course sell your backpacks to Adinel. These 10 slot toolboxes present another money making opportunity if you get bored baking. Try buying them and reselling them in East Commons, or whatever zone most of the commerce takes place at on your server. Try selling them at the Freeport or Kelethin bank too. Considering that high level players will buy 10 slot backpacks to use for bank storage at 70-100+ platinum each, this presents an equally useable and much more economical alternative. Selling them for 20 plat each would be a nice profit, and should be easily doable.

12) Now that you're inside Thurgadin, you need to go to the bank and get your gear and buy some supplies. After entering Thurgadin, you'll run straight through some gates and arrive at the main strip, where all the shops are. Go left, and you'll see the Thurgadin Exchange on your right. After getting your gear, go to Perkins, one of the merchants. Buy jugs of sauce and vinegar, enough to fill up ¾ or so of your inventory. Now, head on out of the bank and go back the way you came, and continue until you see Mordin's Meats on the left. Go inside and fill up your remaining slots with gator meat, leaving a couple empty slots. Now, arrange your backpacks / toolboxes in such a way that you can most quickly transfer one vinegar, sauce, and gator meat into your spit. Remember that keeping CTRL pressed selects only one at a time, which is what you want. Combine these 3 items to produce "pickled gator." This item will produce nearly a 100% profit, and should be good for between 50-75 platinum per hour. Now, your platinum factory is in place, and you can continue to make pickled gator and as much platinum as you need! . Once you get fast at making pickled gator, you should be able to make at least 50 plat per hour, and if get really fast, you can make 75+ plat per hour. Try to work on your speed until you have a rhythm down and are comfortable doing it. Line your backpack and spit up just right, so you can put in the ingredients quickly and then drop finished product onto your auto-equip area. Here are some additional tips:

1. Remember that you can select an entire stack of items by holding down shift (for selling, buying, moving) and you can select just one from a stack by holding down control.
2. If you have trouble locating any baking supplies, you can find the locations for frosting, fish, batwings, etc at this link. www.eqtraders.com/location/baking.htm.
3. Sometimes vendors say they are busy - this usually means they've been attacked. Sometimes vendors are missing - this usually means they've been killed. . These glitches are usually fixed with the next spawn.

A Word on Wisdom

No matter how high your skill in a particular trade, you will still fail a certain percent of the time, even on the most trivial of items once in awhile. It is often debated how important wisdom is in failure rates for trade skills. Many argue that it isn't important when something is very trivial. Smoked Shark goes trivial around 85 or 95, and our skill is at 135, so if this is true then wisdom should not make any difference. Back in the “gold old days” when you could still make smoked shark, I did an experiment to see just how important or unimportant it was.

First, I made a full load of smoked shark with my base wisdom of 85 on my level four Human Enchanter. Then, I brought one of my other characters over and equipped the chanter with a ton of wisdom gear. I cast brilliance on him as well, so his wisdom was VERY high, as was his intelligence. Then, I created another load of smoked shark. I was stunned by the results. It was obvious when I was doing the second load that I was seeing dramatically fewer failures. In the end, the first load left me with five backpacks, one stack, and eight pieces of smoked shark. The second load left me with a whopping six full backpacks, two stacks and eight pieces of shark. This equates to a difference of over 15 platinum! The wisdom clearly made an enormous difference.

I would guess that high wisdom could get you an additional 20 plat per hour. However, for the most part, wisdom gear is EXPENSIVE, costing hundreds and even thousands of plat for meaningful increases. My wisdom in the second trial was probably increased by sixty. That is nowhere near practical, and the additional 20 plat per hour is not worth it. Reasonably priced wisdom gear will likely not make a noticeable difference, either. So, I suggest you leave your wisdom where it is.

If you created the recommended High Elf Enchanter, your wisdom of 100 should be fine. For master jewelers though, it makes sense to jack the wisdom through the roof, since they work with blue diamonds that sell for 4K on some servers. Would hate to fail on one of those! :)

I did this entire procedure with two characters in another experiment. One character had 85 wisdom, and the other was a High Elf Enchanter I created for the express purpose of making platinum. This chanter had the recommended 135 charisma, 100 wisdom. Not only did it cost a lot less to get the High Elf's skill to 135 due to far fewer failures, but once I began making smoked shark, he also had far fewer failures. This translates into a lot more plat per hour. I would say that the High Elf Enchanter with 100 wisdom failed only about as much as the other character decked out in wisdom gear!

Perhaps there is some magic cutoff around 100, where additional wisdom doesn't gain you much? Whatever it is, I can tell you that the difference between 85 wisdom and 100 wisdom was enormous. The difference between 100 wisdom and 130 wisdom was basically non-existent however. A High Elf Enchanter can get 115 charisma and 100 wisdom as base numbers, so clearly they are the way to go. Whatever character you decide to use, be sure they can get at least 135 charisma and 100 wisdom.

With the recommended High Elf Enchanter, I would estimate that 100 wisdom will gain you an additional 5 platinum per hour over a character with 85 wisdom when making pickled gator. This comes at absolutely no expense, since the Enchanter’s base wisdom is 100.

Transferring Platinum

Now that you have a money machine, you'll probably need to transfer plat to your other characters. If you have two computers and two accounts, you can do this easily, obviously. Or, you can pass off the plat to a friend and then log on your other character.

But having a friend come to Thurgadin is not always possible. One strategy that has always worked well for me without two computers and two accounts is this: dropping what you want to swap on the ground, and then logging in the character you want to have the item to pick it up. This sounds risky, but if done properly, risk is minimal. I have done this to get spells and other items many times and never had someone pick up my items. First, you want to find somewhere that people RARELY go. Inside Thurgadin, there are many areas that are mostly "dead" that should work. Once you find your spot, drop a piece of copper or silver on the ground.

Log out, and then log your other character in. Once your other character finds the copper or silver piece, you know they are both in the exact same spot. Now, you can drop whatever you need to on the spot and log in the character you want to have the item or items to pick it up. In this manner, you should be able to pass plat off to characters on the same account.

Should you need to transfer plat to a character that cannot enter Thurgadin, you can always bind in Thurgadin, get a port wherever you need to go to transfer the plat, and then gate back.

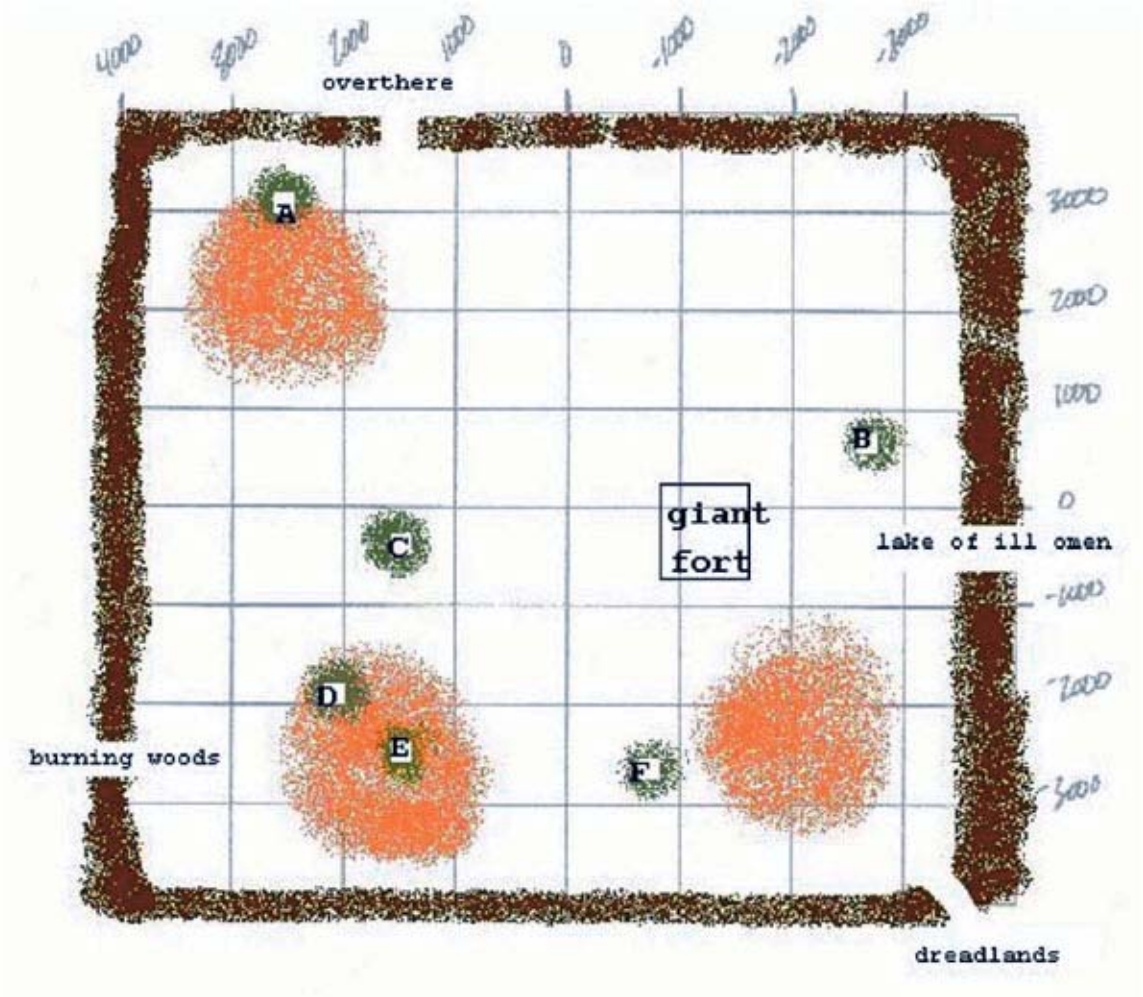

Now, it’s on to learning about making BIG platinum!! .

Method Two – Recommended for High Levels

FRONTIER MOUNTAINS RARE CYCLES – For Levels 45+

A few pre-requisites:

1) For the Frontier Mountains cycles, you must have a tracker unless you are using a program like showeq.
2) You really want at least a level 45+ character to attempt this solo, or a group if you don't have a character that is at least level 45. (I run these cycles solo with my level 49 druid.)
3) You have to have a decent map of Frontier Mountains or have the zone memorized. I have included the map I made, but www.eqatlas.com/atlas.html has a better one. I created this map to make it easier to visualize these cycles. I am no artist, but this should still be a very helpful tool. Please realize that mobs can wander, agro, or be trained out of the highlighted areas below, but this should be accurate 90% of the time.

LEGEND:

(Basic spawning points for SE, SW, & NE corners are in orange.)

A. Temple of Droga

B. Burynai Mine

C. Iksar Guards

D. Burynai Mine

E. Bind Spot

F. Mines of Nurga

Cycle One

The cycles (both) are triggered. This means that you must kill the first mob to trigger the second, then kill the second mob to trigger the third, etc. If you miss a mob, the cycle freezes until that mob is killed. This can be VERY frustrating if you do not know which mob to kill.

The mobs spawn in roughly three corners of the zone (highlighted in orange on the map): Southeast, Southwest, and Northwest. Many people will tell you that the cycle starts in the Southeast corner – they are right 33% of the time. Actually, the cycle begins for you depending on which mob was killed last. The cycle moves SE > SW > NW > SE > SW > NW. Therefore, if the last mob of the cycle to be killed was in the NW corner, then the trigger spawns the next mob in the SE corner; or if the last spawn was SW then the next is NW; or if SE the next will be SW; etc. The trigger moves in a circle so you just have to find the current mob from the cycle and kill it to begin…

SE CORNER = Goblins

First, you want to look for a rare goblin and kill him. If there is no rare Goblin, then you want to look for the placeholder, which is "a" goblin raider. Once you have killed the rare/ph, you want to then move to the SW corner.

Some of the rares for this corner and their drops: (pp is estimate only and will depend on your server; cash values are from past auctions on PlayerAuctions.com)

- Blugtigin – Medicine Totem (4000-5000pp, $36-100)
- Drake Tamer – Scale Hide Whip (700pp)
- Goblin Chieftain – Chieftain's Headdress (200-400pp)
- Goblin Dustscryer – Dustscryer's Crystal Ball (1000-2000pp, $10-30)
- Goblin Herb Collector – Goblin Juntah Harvester (200pp)
- Goblin Trailblazer – Goblin Trailblazer's Knife (400pp)
- Wandering Stone Healer – Goblin Soul Caller (1000pp, $15-20)

SW CORNER = Giants

First, you want to look for a rare giant and kill him. If there is no rare giant, then look for the placeholder, which is a mountain giant hillock. Once you have killed the rare/ph, you want to then move on to the NW corner.

Some of the rares for this corner and their drops: (estimate)

- Goblinstomper – Sarnak Hide Leggings (400pp)
- Gromlock – Gromlock's Basher (500pp)
- Krenlek – Scullhelm of Krenlek (500pp)
- Overseer Miklek – Gem Encrusted Circlet (500pp)

NW CORNER = Burynai

First, you want to look for a rare burynai and kill him. If there is no rare burynai, then look for a burynai miner. Once you have killed the rare/ph, you want to then move back to the SE corner and start again.

Some of the rares for this corner and their drops: (estimate)

- Burynai Grand Cenobite – Belt of the Cenobite (2000pp, $15-45)
- Dustback – Dusty Breastplate (1000pp, $10-20)
- Eboneyes – Ebon Razor (600-800pp, $5-15)
- Gemeye – Gem Finder (200pp)
- Stone Grinder – Stone Thunder (100pp)

Cycle Two

This cycle follows the exact same pattern, but it has an undefined placeholder in the SW corner. This can be extremely frustrating, but the loot from this cycle is considerable. The cycle works exactly as above only SE = Brutes, SW = random, NW = Sarnaks.

Rare Brutes include:

- Boogoog – Cracked Branch (400pp)
- Diseased Brute – Rotwood Club (200pp)
- Joojooga – Gauntlets of Brute Strength (600pp)
- Mangy Brute – Intact Brutling Choppers (quest item)

Rare Sarnaks include:

- Bloodscale the Vicious – Blood Splattered Veil (2000pp)
- Clazxiss – Windetched Staff (1000pp)
- Slithinis – Slithinis's Shield (200pp)
- Varithyx – Sleeves of the Ancient (NO DROP – 16ac 3str 8cha)

My advice (and what I do is this), run the cycle and kill every mob you see around the SW corner area. I have kept this cycle going for hours - sometimes it did appear to skip the SW corner - and other times it appeared frozen for awhile (which was ok because I just ran the first cycle).

HINTS:

- Bind in between the SW & SE zones and gate to save time.
- Accept the fact that occasionally you will be KS'ed – just move on.
- The values in this guide are just approximates.
- I run the cycles solo with a level 49 druid. I have seen low-40 druids run the cycle too, but some I think they couldn't kill. If you use a group, you get less loot.
- If you get bored, stop. Never risk burnout – it isn't worth it.
- Almost all the items are lore – so create some mules and park them near your bind spot.
- Everyone you tell immediately becomes competition.
- Run the cycles at off-hours.
- If someone claims to be "camping the cycle" – they may just be waiting for rares to spawn. I have seen entire guilds do this.
- If someone really is running the cycle, do the other cycle or join them – you share loot, but you also go faster. I can complete both of the cycles in less than 5 minutes.
- Rares and their drops are random – sometimes I got several drops in one turn – other times it took me awhile to get a drop – but I average about 10 items an hour. Sometimes I made 2000pp in an hour and sometimes I made 10,000pp – it just depends. Last night I got the Medicine Totem twice and sold them for over 10k.

Other Rare Mobs:

There are some rare spawns that are not involved with the cycles. For instance, Snaorf and Eldrak Howlingbear are quest characters. There is no benefit to killing these as they don't drop anything. You can find bestiary lists for this zone at these two sites: Everlore and Allakhazam's.

Method Three – For Mid Levels

Permafrost Item Farming – For Mid Levels

This is a great zone for mid level farming. You can make pretty decent plat here. First, Get the map here – I'm not even attempting it. Ok, are you disappointed because you can't run the cycles yet? Do you wish there was a place you could camp as low as level 25? Well, permafrost is the place for you. Every rare mob in permafrost has a 24 minute spawn. This means every 24 minutes either the rare or its placeholder will spawn.

The easiest thing to do is break the spawns and run 2 or 3 at one time. At level 25-30, I was camping both the preacher and the archeologist (the spawn can be broken to every 12 minutes). At level 35 I added the archeologist or the king room (every 8 minutes). At level 45 I can take everything except the area around lady vox (ice giants & polar bears).

The Preacher drops the cold iron morning star (50-100pp) and the runed circlet (200-400pp, $5-15). The runed circlet is technically the rare, but I got it almost half the time. The Archeologist drops the archeologist pack (200-400pp, $5, lore) and the dented brass mask (300-500pp). The Alchemist drops the mammoth hide leggings (50pp) and the mammoth hide cloak (1500pp, $10-75). The cloak is pretty rare.

The Goblin Jail Master has a long tunnel of goblins to kill before you reach him, but he drops the wooly spider silk net (not much) and the etched ivory charm (400-600pp). The Goblin Scryer is in a room full of goblins, but once you break the spawn he is easy enough. He drops the ice crystal staff (50pp) and wolf fur slippers (400-600pp, $5-10).

The King Room has a couple spawns and may take a friend to break first. King Thex Ka IV drops the symbol of loyalty to vox (50-100pp) and the white wolf hide cloak (1000- 1500pp $10-25). The elite goblin guards drop the icy greaves (no drop). The elite honor guards drop the silvery war axe (100pp) and the silvery two handed axe (300- 500pp, $5-15). High Priest Zaharn drops zaharn's coronet (200pp).

Avoid the ice giant diplomat/ ice goblin champion camp – the diplomat drops nothing of value and the champion drops a so-so sword worth about 200pp. They are both level 36ish and just not worth the bother.

ANOTHER QUICK AND EASY WAY TO MAKE PLAT

This way of getting Plat is kind of slow but you can make 10pp every 4 min roughly!

Ok these First Steps takes like 1 hr max. But it is well worth it:

1) Head to EFP and get Bind (to help with time later on)
2) Go to Traders Holiday and buy a Spit
3) Then head to Arcane of Science in WFP and Go up the Stairs to Flights to a Lady standing at the top of the Stairs with unlimited Batwings.
4) Zone into EC after this and Follow the Trail to the First in go to the Building to the Right of it and Buy Frosting.
5) Buy as much as you can of both.
6) Combine One Batwing and One Frosting in the Spit. And Sell your sack for like a 1sp profit.
7) Continue to make Bat Crunchies until Skill gets to 46.
8) After getting skill to 46, Head back to the Inn you bought the Frosting in and Buy Jugs of Sauce!
9) Gate Back to EFP if you can Or Walk there ☺
10) And Head to the Docks and Buy Fresh Fish.
11) Combine One Fish and one Jug to make (2) Fish Fillets ($$$ Maker)
12) A Stack of Fish Fillets Sell for 1 pp 1 gp or maybe more Depending on CHA.
13) Continue to Make Fish Fillets til Skill gets to 82
14) After Skill is at 82 you need to Master your Baking skill so your Fish Days will be 99% good.
15) Buy some Bat wings again In the Arcane of Science and Some more Fish and Combine one Fish and One Batwing to make Fish Cakes
16) Continue this skill is at 135!

5) Kill a Shadowed Man to get a patch of shadow.

6) Take all of these items to Vilissia and she will give you a Acumen Mask.

Avenger Battle Axe Quest

1) Head to Kaladim and visit the Warriors' Guild. Talk to Beno. He will give you a letter to take to Highhold Keep.

2) Head to Highhold Keep and give the letter to the Jail Clerk. He will send you off to Misty Thicket and give you a container.

3) Talk to Bronin in Misty Thicket. This will trigger Slaythe to spawn. Kill Slaythe and he will drop a leg that you must return to Bronin.

4) Bronin will give you a key. Give the key to the bank clerk in Highhold Keep. The Bank Clerk will give you a shard of the eye of stormhammer.

5) Head to Qeynos. Go to Crow's Bar. Faldor is a rare spawn but when he finally appears kill him and you will get the other shard.

6) Combine the 2 shards in the container to receive the Eye of Stormhammer.

7) Take the Eye of Stormhammer back to Beno in Kaladim and he will give you the Avenger Battle Axe.

Bloodforge Armor Quest

1) Head to Butcherblock and kill Corflunk and Zarchoomi. They are rare spawn Ogres that roam the zone. You likely need to be level 10 or above to accomplish this. When you kill them you will be able to loot their heads.
2) Head to the Warriors Guild in Kaladim and hail Byzar Bloodforge to receive the quest. Ask him, "What about Corflunk?" or "What about Zarchoomi?" to make sure you can do the quest. He will respond with something to the effect of don't mention those names to me. Give him the heads and he will give you a piece of Bloodforge Armor.

Bloodforge Hammer Quest

1) Kill both rare Ogres that spawn in the Butcherblock mountains. Their names are Corfulnk and Zarchoomi. Take their heads to Byzar Bloodforge in the Warriors' Guild in Kaladim.
2) Head to Qeynos and visit the Fish's Ale. Wait for Trumpy Irontoe to leave the bar and kill him. You will need to do it very quick as you will be attacked by guards and bouncers almost immediately.
3) Take his head back to Byzar and you will receive the Bloodforge Hammer.

Bonethunder Staff Quest

1) Talk to Runethar Hamest in the Temple of Thunder to receive the quest.
2) Head to Surefall Glade and enter the cave with the Bears. Kill the Grizzly Bear Mammoth to retrieve the Mammoth's hide and a list.
3) Give both the Mammoth's hide and the list to Frenway in Surefall Glade and you will receive Bayle List II.
4) Head to the Qeynos Aquaducts and kill Drosco the Zombie to retrieve the Order of Thunder.
5) Take the Order of Thunder to Wolten Graff in the Temple of Thunder to receive The Thunderstaff.
6) Take The Thunderstaff and Bayle List II to Runethar and you will receive the Bonethunder Staff.

Bracelet of Beetlekind

3) Head to North Qeynos and visit the Temple of Life. As you head towards the temple there will some NPCs on your right. The one on the far left is the one who gives the blessed oil quest. Hail him and get the blessed oil.

4) Head to a forge and put the blessed oil and the cursed hay into it. Combine. This has been known to fail if you have low smithing skill. If you are successful you receive Writhing Hay.

5) Head to Rivervale and give the Writhing Hay to Shakey the Scarecrow to receive either the Wee Harvester or the Belt of the River.

Bear Hide Boots Quest

Just outside the Surefall Glade entrance you will find an NPC named Chanda Miller.

If you approach her and tell her that "Baobob sent me" she will open up and talk to you. Follow through the bracketted dialogue and you will find that she will make you a Bear Hide Belt for a low quality bear skin and 5gp. For a medium quality bear skin and 15gp, she will make you the Bear Hide Boots, and for 21gp and a high quality bear skin she will make you a Bear Hide Cloak.

You can obtain these skins in various zones where bears abound. Such places as Qeynos Hills, all of the Karanas and the Commonlands are heavily populated with bears.

You must use "skins" for this to work. this has a tendency to confuse people who may be looking for "pelts".

Bloodforge Armor Quest

1) Head to Butcherblock and kill Corflunk and Zarchoomi. They are rare spawn Ogres that roam the zone. You likely need to be level 10 or above to accomplish this. When you kill them you will be able to loot their heads.

2) Head to the Warriors Guild in Kaladim and hail Byzar Bloodforge to receive the quest. Ask him, "What about Corflunk?" or "What about Zarchoomi?" to make sure you can do the quest. He will respond with something to the effect of don't mention those names to me. Give him the heads and he will give you a piece of Bloodforge Armor.

Brutechopper Quest

Give Lynuga a ruby and she will give you one of three items;

1) Ivandar's Hoop (Earring +6wis, +6int)

2) Midnight Mallet

3) Brutechopper

2) Head to Mistmoore. In the graveyard is an illusionary wall. You need to pass through this wall and you will enter a room that has 4 doors. Only one of these doors can be opened, but opening it triggers the other doors, each of which has a rather nasty mob behind it. The Icon spawns on the floor in one of the rooms and looks like a doll.

3) Head to the Rathe Mountains and visit the Skeleton Ruins. A Giant Darkbone Skeleton will spawn here rarely. He drops the Ingot.
4) Return 2 bars of magnetized platinum, the Ingot, and the Icon to receive the Caduceus of Sacrement.

Dark Shield of Ebon Quest

1) Talk to Hekzin in the Rogues guild of Neriak to get the quest.

2) Head to Nektulos Forest and collect 3 moss snake skins and 3 teeth.

3) Return the items to Hekzin and he will occasionally give you a Dark Shield of Ebon.

Darkwood Staff Quest

1) Retrieve a Lambent Stone from a Hill Giant or a Griffin.

2) Head to the Temple of Solusek Ro and hail Romar Sunte to receive the quest. Then hand him the Lambent Stone to receive the Darkwood Staff.

Darkforge Breastplate Quest

Details of this quest are sketchy...

1) Head to Mistmoore and enter the graveyard. An NPC there (Knight? rare spawn) will give you the quest.

2) Head to Cazic Thule and kill Lizard Crusaders until you get a decaying breastplate and decaying mail.

3) Get 2 bars of platinum enchanted.

4) Take all of the items back to the knight to receive the Darkforge Breastplate

Darkforge Gauntlets Quest

1) Talk to an Undead Knight in Najena to receive the quest.

2) Head to Cazic Thule and kill Lizardman Crusaders until you retrieve Decayed Gauntlets.

3) Purchase an Enchanted Bar of Platinum

4) Take the above items back to the Undead Knight to receive your Darkforge Gauntlets.

1) Head to Cazic Thule and kill Lizarman Crusaders until you retrieve Right Decaying Greaves and Left Decaying Greaves.

2) Head to Solusek A and retrieve 2 Melatite from the Sol Mining Co.

3) Head to Najena and give the items to the Undead Knight to receive the Darkforge Greaves.

Darkforge Helm Quest

1) Head to Cazic Thule and kill Lizardman Crusaders to retrieve a Decaying Helm and a Decaying Visor.

2) Head to East Freeport and kill city guards to retrieve 2 Freeport Militia Helms.

3) Head to Mistmoore and Hail the Undead Knight in the graveyard (rare spawn) to get the quest.

4) Give him the items and you will receive a Darkforge Helm.

Darkforge Vambraces Quest

Details of this quest are very sketchy. What we have been able to piece together is below. Take it with a grain of salt. If anyone has information regarding this quest please contact us.

1) Head to Mistmoore and visit the graveyard. An NPC under the coffin will give you the quest.

2) Head to Cazic Thule and retreive Decaying Vambraces.

3) Head to Qeynos and retreive a Qeynos Kite Shield from a Guard.

4) We assume you take the items back to the NPC in Mistmoore but this has not been confirmed.

Dark Forge Boots Quest

To start the quest you need to hail the undead knight which is in Najina. He's in the same room as Drezna. I didn't do this step, I hailed him last just to make sure I had everything. You need the right & left decaying boot which are dropped by the crusaders in The Lost Temple of Cazic-Thule in Ferrot. Next you can either buy Farie dust or kill faries in Greater Faydark for 2 things of farie dust. Take all 4 items to the undead knight in Najina & give it all to him. Make sure the farie dust is not stacked. You will now have darkforge boots.

Electrum Bladed Wakazashi Quest

1) Head to Mistmoore and kill Maid Issis and Butler Syncall to retrieve their fangs. These are rare drops.

2) Deliver the fangs to The Avengign Caitliff in Mistmoore to receive the Electrum Bladed Wakazashi.

Note, he is killed almost immediately after spawn by campers so ask if you can do the quest before they annihilate him.

Falchion of the Koada'Vie Quest

"The quest is as follows :

The Paladin Lord, Lord Jyleel, in the basement of the Paladin's guild wants you to [prove yourself a faithful paladin of the court]. He asks you to present him 3 things to prove this, and you shall wield "The falchion", a paladin only weapon. Bring him the heart of Dvinn, find the supreme caster of the orcs, and also find the supply crate at the supply drop point from the orcs to the Tier'dal. Killing D'Vinn in Crushbone gets you his heart and killing the orc prophet in Crushbone gets you a blue orc head. The crate is dropped by Brarm in the Ocean of Tears. He is about level 22 and spawns once per game day at 5am with 2 dark elf dragoons (approximately level 18 to 22) on the rocks with the Sirens just as you enter the Ocean of Tears from Faydwer. Bring the items back to Lord Jyleel and he will give you a Falchion of the Koada'Vie."

Gavel of Justice Quest

1) Talk to Shamus Felligan in Halas to receive the quest.

2) Head out to the Goblin igloos in Everfrost and hunt Ice Goblin Casters. They will drop either Caster Beads or Shattered Caster Beads.

3) Return Caster Beads to Shamus to receive the Gavel of Justice.

This quest may only be available to low-level characters.

Greaves of the Penitent Quest

1) Talk to Blaize in the Temple of Solusek Ro to receive the quest.

2) Head to the Necromancer Island near Toxxulia Forest and find the Erudite named Maugrim. He has the Icon of the Penitent. You require this to get the greaves.

3) Head to Upper Guk and go to the location of 205, -485. The Ingot of the Pentinent spawns here. It may be an 8 hour spawn like other Cleric quest items.

4) Grab a bar of Magnetized Platinum and give all 3 items to Blaize to receive the Greaves of the Pentinent.

Gauntlets of the Ardent Quest

1) Talk to Blaize in the Temple of Solusek Ro to receive the quest.

2) Head to Befallen and kill Babbinsbort (3rd floor and rare) to retrieve the Icon of the Ardent.

3) Head to Everfrost and cast enduring breath on yourself. Swim down through a hole in the ice to retrieve the Ingot of the Ardent.

4) Take the Icon, the Ingot, and 2 enchanted platinum bars back to Blaize to receive the Gloves of the Ardent.

Gloves of the Gatecaller Quest

1) Talk to the trainer on the top floor of the Erudite magicians' guild. He will ask for 2 summoned food and 2 summoned daggers.

2) If your faction is not good enough you will need to increase it. This can be done by killing the necromancer named Elial Brooks by the docks in Toxxulia Forest.

Golden Stud Earring Quest

Zamel has been looking for a friends missing child. Apparently the child has wandered into the local sewers and asks for information on her wareabouts. He also says he will give you a reward if you locate any information of the child.

Conversation:
1. Zamel describes the (aqueducts).
You say "What aqueducts"
2. Zamel describes scary (Beasts)
You say "What beasts"
3. Zamel describes the missing (child)
You say "who's child"
4. Zamel will then ask you to being back any proff of the childs death.

In the sewers of Qeynos there is a special NPC named Cubert. Cubert apparently killed the child. If you can find and kill Cubert, you might receive a LORE item in the form of a "Tattered Dress". This is the dress of the missing child.
Take the dress back to Zamel, and repeat the mentioned conversation. If you are lucky Zamel will reward you with the Golden Earring Stud. His common drop is a piece of Hemetite, worth a few gold coins.
He drops the Earring approximatly 25% of the time.
The trick to the quest is to kill the placeholders of cubert. Cubert only spawn in a select location and wanders a VERY small area of about 50 in-game feet.
His placeholders are Gelatinous Cubes, Sewer rats and another named rat that I can't think of right now.

Grobb Cleaver Quest

1) Talk to the carver in front of the Shamans' guild in Grobb. He will ask you for some good Ogre meat, but doesn't know the name.

2) Tell him it is HEHE meat. He will ask you for 3 pieces and the recipe.

3) Head to Oggok and find Chef Dooga. Buy 3 pieces of meat.

4) Head to Neriak and into the Foreign Quarter. Find an Ogre and hail him. If he talks about HEHE meat you have the right NPC. He will give you 2 quests.

5) Ogres and Dark Elves need to go back to Dooga and bring some Froglok legs back to the Foreign Quarter. Trolls need to head to the Ocean of Tears and visit the rocks that have Sirens on them. There will be a named Troll called Nerbilik. Give him the item that the Neriak NPC gave you and then kill him. He drops the recipe.

6) Take the recipe and the 3 HEHE meat back to the carver and you get the Grobb Cleaver.

Hero Bracers Quest

1) You need high aimiable faction with the Steel Warrior Guild to do both parts of the quest.

2) Goto the island in Erud's Crossing and kill Nomala for Key #7.

3) Return the key to Graham in the basement of the Qeynos Arena. This completes the first part of the quest.

4) If your faction is high enough, he will give you the second part of the quest. This involves going to Steamfont and killing the Minotaur Hero, and retreiving the shackles from him.

5) Turn the shackles into Graham for the Hero Bracers.

Helm of Hulkulk Quest

1) Hail Hulkulk and ask about his helm.
2) Go to Lynuga in the Innothule Swamp and hail her.
3) Head to Neriak Foreign Quarter and Hail a Troll named Guard Lumpin. He will send you after Ratraz. You may be able to kill Lumpin now and get his head and the bracer. I have never tried this method. See below.
4) Go to the Maiden's Fancy bar and Hail Ratraz who tells you that Lumpin gave him the bracers. Kill Ratraz and get his head and the bracers.
5) Return the head of Ratraz and the bracers to Hulkulk. He will tell you that you failed.
6) Head back to Neriak Foreign Quarter and kill Lumpin this time. Take his head and the bracers to Hulkulk to get the helm.

Ice Comet Quest

1) Talk to Sulgar in Everfrost to get the quest.
2) Azia - found on the ocean floor in Erud's Crossing.
3) Beza - found in the underwater caves.
4) Dena - found in Dagnor's Cauldron near Kedge Keep.
5) Ena - found in Lower Guk in the room with the reanimated hand.
6) Fana - found in Oasis of Marr in the underwater tower.
7) Geza - found in Highhold Pass in the water near one of the waterfalls.
8) Heda - found in the Qeynos Aquaducts in the shark pit.
9) Izah - found in Neriak Commons a bar called The Blind Fish.
10) Jaka - Found in Unrest
11) Once you have all the rods go back to Sulgar and get the container. Combine the rods and you will receive staff of the wheel and star of eyes. NOTE: You can fail in the combination even if you have the right components.

Ivy Etched Bracer Quest

1) Kill Redwind in Everfrost for the bottom of the rune of ivy. Redwind is a stationary spawn located in a temple by the Permafrost entrance.

2) Get a watery ring from a Tital Lord in Dagnor's Cauldron.

3) Take the bottom of the rune of ivy, the watery ring, and 1 fire emerald to the Ranger in Kithicor forest. The Ranger is located in a cabin at roughly 1500 by 2500. It is best to do this part during the day in Kithicor, as high level undead roam this zone during the night.

Ivy Etched Sleeves Quest

1) Talk to Gandari in the Kithicor Forest.

2) Collect the following and give them to Gandari to collect the Ivy Etched Sleeves.

- A Heart of Fire (Solusek A, Solusek B)
- Left side of the Rune of Ivy (Grimfeather in North Karana)
- 2 Star Rubies

Ivy Etched Leggings Quest

Speak to Leaf Falldim in Kithicor Forest to obtain the quest.

In the Ocean of Tears you must kill a thief named Witlin. He spawns on the isle with Captain Surestout, Gornit, Dixl Drool, and all the seafury cyclops'. His placeholder is a buccaneer, and spawn rate seems to vary between 1 and 2 hours. Witlin has the Quiver of Kithicor, which you must fill with 6 unique arrows that the brownie outcasts stole.

They are located in Lesser Faydark, at the Pixie Tower. Killing the pixies seems to cause the brownie outcasts to spawn, but don't kill the pixie jongleurs! You will very likely get duplicate arrows, so it's good to do it with another ranger friend. Put all 6 arrows in the Quiver, and combine them.

You will also need a Star of Odus can be purchased in Erudin.

Turn in the combined Quiver, and gem and Leaf and you get the Ivy Etched Leggings.

Ivy Etched Helm Quest

1) Talk to Gandari in Kithicor Forest.

1) Retrieve a Polar Bear Skin from a Polar Bear. They are a rare drop so you may need to try many times.
2) Give the Polar Bear Skin and 5pp to Karg Icebear (He wanders the Everfrost Zone) and you will receive a Polar Bear Cloak.

Paw of Opolla Quest

1) Find Vin Moltar down in the Qeynos Aquaducts. Give him 1 Rat Ear Pie and 3 Kalish for a container. You can also kill him for it. He is around level 24 or 25.
2) You need 4 rings to put into the container to create the Paw of Opolla. A copper, silver, gold and platinum ring. Each of the rings is -1 for one stat, +1 for another.
3) The silver ring can be found at the bottom of the pool in Blackburrow where the razorfish are. It looks like a bag.
4) Head to Kerra Isle and find Princess Mitty. Kill her to get the copper and gold rings. She also drops the silver. The gold ring is her rare drop, and she doesn't always drop any of the 3 rings. You should be at least level 23 before attempting this. Doing this part before level 23 will result in all of the Priestesses around Mitty jumping when you attack her.
5) Kill Gynok Moltar in Befallen. He spawns right at the entrance, but has many placeholders (a gnoll, a large rat, a plague rat, an ice boned skeleton, a skeleton). Some of which will say something about distrubing their sleep. You may have to kill the entire 3rd floor, as that is where the place holders wander down to. Sometimes the rats will get hung up at the door to the skeleton room just after the first locked door.
6) Once you have all 4 rings, put them in the container and hit combine.

Parrying Pick 628 Quest

1) Hail Diggins for the quest. He will ask you to return the tongues of Rondo, Crytil, Keldyn and Barma. Rondo can be found in Crushbone. The others are in the Butcherblock Mountains.
2) Return all 4 tongue for the Parrying Pick 628, which is a Dwarf Rogue only shield.

Peacekeeper Staff Quest

1) The quest is given in the clerics' guild of Erudin.

2) Head to the Toxxulia Forest and talk to the NPC in the first hut as you go right out of the entrance to Toxx.

3) He requires treant chips to continue the quest. He will also give you a staff.

4) Since you cannot likely kill treants at this level the best course of action is to get an Odus Pearl and take it to Rogar the Tall in Qeynos. He is found above the cobbler in Qeynos.

5) Give Rogar the Odus Pearl and he will give you treant resin.

6) Head to the bank of Erudin and tell the banker you require Vasty Deep Water. He will tell you that you need a guild coin.

7) Head back to the clerics' guild and tell them that you require a guild coin. They will give you one.

8) Return the coin to the banker and you will receive Vasty Deep Water.

9) Put the resin and water into the staff and combine to receive the Peacekeeper staff.

(magic)(lore)(no drop)
Looks like red banded.

1. Talk to Guard Valorn at the tollbooth in West Commonlands. Complete the 4 orc pick quest to get the next quest.

2. Take the bag Valorn gives you and fill it with 8 Dervish Cutthroat rings. Combine and give back to Valorn to receive the reserve militia token.

3. Take the token to Armorer Delin in the Freeport Militia house in West Freeport to get the Reserve Militia Tunic.

Scout Cape Quest

1) Talk to Geeda behind The Scouts of Tunare. She will give you the quest and coin.

2) Head to Crushbone and to the slave area. Wait for a slave named Keylynn to spawn. Give the coint to Keylynn and you will receive a note.

3) Take the note back to Geeda to receive the Scout's Cape.

ShadowBound Boots Quest

1) Talk to Syllina in the Temple of Solusek Ro to get the quest.

2) Head to Mistmoore and retrieve a sceptre of tears. You are sometimes asked for a sceptre of sorrow. This can be found in Lower Guk.

3) Head to the Rathe Mountains and retrieve a Skeletal Toe from the Giant Skeletons.

4) Buy Shadow Silk from a tailor or make it yourself (Shadow Wolf Pelt, Silk Swatch, Scroll of Gather Shadows)

5) Head to West Commons and kill Shadowed Men to retrieve an Eye of Shadow.

6) Return all of the above items to Syllina and you will receive the ShadowBound Boots.

Scarab Shell Armor Quest

1) Talk to Vacto near the entrance to Stormguard Hall.

Helm: Give him 2 scarab carapaces (worker scarabs) and 5gp.

Breastplate: Give him a pristine carapace (Giant Scarabs or Death beetles) and 23gp

Boots: Give him a giant cracked carapace (Giant Scarabs), 2 scarab legs and 17gp

Screaming Mace Quest

1) Talk to the dwarven smith in Crushbone. From the entrance to CB just go left, over the bridge until you find a building. He will be inside.

2) Find and kill the Taskmaster. He is a rare spawn that is usually found near the castle. He sometimes drops earrings that are +2AC. Turn these into the smith for a blade mold.

3) Find and kill the Trainer. He is found on the hill to the right of the entrace of CB. He sometimes drop a shiny brass shield. This is an excellent shield but if you turn it in to the smith he will give you a sludge mold.

4) Find and kill Emperor Crush. He is found in the castle. He sometimes drops the dwarven ringmail tunic. Turn this in to the smith and he will give you a dwarven mace. The smith will now tell you to talk to the Elven priest. The priest is in the same building as the smith. Talk to the priest and she will send you after the Warlord.

5) Find and kill the Warlord. He sometimes drops the bracer of battle. Turn this in to the priest, NOT the smith. She will give you a prayer cloth.

6) Now hand the mace to the priest. She will ask if you have anything else. Hand her the prayer cloth and she will give you the screaming mace.

Scout Cape Quest

1) Talk to Geeda behind The Scouts of Tunare. She will give you the quest and coin.

2) Head to Crushbone and to the slave area. Wait for a slave named Keylynn to spawn. Give the coint to Keylynn and you will receive a note.

3) Take the note back to Geeda to receive the Scout's Cape.

Scouts Blade Quest

Quest requires high faction with WE rogues, and you have to have done the Scout Cape quest already. You end up having to go to Highkeep, talk to a high elf in the back of the dungeon there, he sends you to talk to someone else on the roof (you have to get there from the balcony railing), who then sends you to talk to (and kill) someone on the first floor. (can't remember the names, its been a while). You loot the head of the last guy after you kill him, and take it back to Kelethin to the guy that started it all, and he gives the blade.

There is one more to the series, the Scout Leggings Quest, but I haven't done it yet.

Servant's Staff Quest

1) Talk to Josper Kenshed in the Wizards' Guild in Erudin. He will give you a bag to fill with Ice Goblin Beads.
2) Head to Everfrost and kill Ice Goblin Casters to get the Ice Goblin Beads. They drop rarely. You will usually get shattered beads.
3) Fill the bag with Ice Goblin Beads and then head back to Erudin and give the bag to Josper. You will receive the Servant's Staff.

Shining Star of Light Quest

You must have almost kindly faction to do this quest.

1) Head to Misty Thicket and kill Bixies until you retrieve 3 honeycombs.

2) Head to Rivervale and give the 3 honeycombs and 30gp to Kizzie Mintrop. She will give you Honey Jum.

3) Head to North Qeynos and visit the Temple of Life. As you head towards the temple you will notice a group of NPCs standing by the wall to your right. The NPC you want to talk to is Astaed Wemor. If you say, "I will deliver the flask." and he gives you blessed oil you have the right NPC. Give the NPC the Honey Jum and you will receive a Potion.

4) Head to West Karana and give Lempeck Hargrim the potion. He will give you a Rusty Scythe.

5) Return to the Temple of Life and give the Rusty Scythe to Astaed Wemor. You will receive the Shining Star of Light.

Staff of the Observers Quest

1) Head to Runnyeye and kill Borxx to retrieve an Evil Eye Lens.

2) Head to Steamfont Mountains and talk to Brona Frugrin to get the quest. She is in the observatory near the windmills. Give her the lens and she will give you The Staff of the Observers.

Solvedi Scimitar Quest

1) Head to North Karana and Kill Tiny the Timbur to retrieve the Giant Laceless Sandal.

2) Head to South Karana and kill Groi Gutblade to retrieve the Lionhide Backpack.

3) Take these 2 items to Solvedi in Rathe Mountains to receive the Solvedi Scimitar

Short Sword of Morin Quest

2) Give her either a) Ebony Blade or b) secret documents off a Ghoul Messenger to get the Short Sword of Morin.

Strongbear Bracers Quest

1) Talk to Brin Stolunger in the Qeynos Warriors Guild. It is located in S. Qeynos. He will give you the quest and a 10 slot container.

2) Head to the N. Qeynos newbie zone and collect 5 batwings and 5 snake scales. Combine these in the 10 slot container. Take the container back to Brin and he will give you a note to take to Axe Broadsmith.

3) Head to Qeynos hills and give the note to Axe. You will find him near the lake. He will ask you to kill a strange skeleton across the pond. Kill it and bring its skull back to Axe. He will give you a letter to take back to Brin.

4) Head back to S. Qeynos and give the note to Brin. He will give you yet another note to deliver to the area below the arena. It is for Graham Rothkar.

5) Give the note to Graham and he will give you a key, telling you it is your final test. The key opens one of the lion pens. Enter, kill the lion, and bring its pelt and meat back to Graham. He will give you the Strongbear Bracers.

Soulfire Quest

"The quest for the Soulfire is VERY long, and involved. To begin the quest you must speak to Kalatrina Plossen in the Hall of Truth (In North Freeport). She'll give you a note which you need to deliver to Guard Alayle (Or something close), a spy in the freeport militia building. Go in and deliver the note, only to receive an illegible peice of paper in return (And get to see the guard get killed). Take the note back to Kalatrina, and she'll tell you to talk to Rashinda Elore in the Freeport Office of the People (NOTE : Once you give the note to Kalatrina, you'll have to wait six hours to get another one.) Ask Rashinda "Have you heard of Zimel's Blades?', then ask her about Ariska Zimel ('Who was Ariska Zimel?'), and finally about Groflah Steadirt ('Who is Groflah Steadirt?'). Head back to Kalatrina and tell her that Zimel's Blades was condemned. After this, it's time to visit Groflah Steadirt. Go to Groflah's forge in North Freeport, and give him the note. He will give it back, and tell you to meet him in the seafarers roost at night. Don't bet on seeing him. I have stayed in that building for nearly two straight days, without seeing him once. Instead, wait for a beggar named 'Tykar Renlon' (Or something close, he's the only beggar who appears) to spawn and immediately set about giving him five Drom's Champagnes. He disappears quickly, so you must hurry. Once you've given him all five, he'll give you a blanket. Go make yourself some bog juice and edible goo (Two easy baking and brewing recipes), then give one goo to the beggar in jail. Once he asks for 'Bog'n goo! Blanket too!', give him 1 bog juice, 1 edible goo, and the blanket, to get a key (H.K. 102). Take the key to the banker in high keep to get a note. Give this note to Brother Hayle (The Cleric imprisoned in Splitpaw - Be careful you don't lock yourself in his cell!), and he'll give it back to you, as well as the intructions of what else to get to gain the Soulfire. He will tell you to get the Glowing Hilt, the Brilliant Sword of Faith, and your Testimony. The Glowing Hilt is found on Xicotl, the troll shadowknight in Mistmoore Castle. To get the Brilliant sword of faith, kill Sir Lucan D'lere and his skeletal remains, gain his testimony, then give that testimony to Valeron. To get your Testimony, first speak to Merko in the hall of truth. He'll give you a note to give to Altunic Jartin in EC. Wait in Altunic's house for him to appear (It's near the last inn before WC), and give him the note. Walk outside, and fight Squire Narl. He packs a good punch, and his Harm Touch can be painful on a lower-level character, but he's not too hard. After killing him and getting his head, go buy a cloth shirt from one of the merchants in the commons (I beleive the inn between orc camps sells the shirt). Give the head to Altunic, then give him the shirt, to get a Token of Generosity. Buy (Or fight for one) a Spider Venom Sack, and return to Merko. Tell him you've earned the Token of Generosity, and he'll ask you for the sack. Give it to him, and get the Token of Bravery. Then hand in both tokens to get your final task : Run into the sewers and kill the Militia spy there, and return her token to Merko to get your Testimony. Once you have all these items, hand the returned note from bother hayle, the hilt, the sword, and the testimony to Brother Hayle (NOTE : You must have AT LEAST Kindly faction with him, or you'll have to start all over again!) to receive the Soulfire.

Stein of Moggok Quest

You pretty much need to be an enchanter to do this quest, as almost all of the components for the quest are no drop and you are required to go to all corners of Norrath.

1) Talk to Clurg, the Ogre Bartender in Ogguk to obtain the quest.

2) Head to Freeport and speak with Gregor, who has the Bartender's Compendium that Clurg wants back. Gregor will tell you about an exotic drink that he wants to make. You must get the ingredients before he will give you the compendium.

3) Purchase a Kiola nut from the Island of Erollisi

4) Get an Erud's Tonic. It is a side quest, which you can read about here.

5) Get Honey Jum. It is another side quest, which you can read about here.

6) Head to North Qeynos. Kill the fish that is in the pond in the Temple of Life compound. A warning. You take major faction hits by killing the fish. The guards will attack you when you attack the fish. Loot the fish for it's corpse. I suggest gating immediately.

7) Take the Kiola Nut, Erud's Tonic, Honey Jum and the fish corpse to Gregor to receive the Bartender's Compendium.

8) Take the Compendium to Clurg in Ogguk to receive the Stein of Moggok. You need at least and indifferent faction with Clurg for this to work.

Totemic Vambraces Quest

1) Talk to Vrynn in Lake Rathetear.

2) Collect the following and return them to Vrynn to receive Totemic Sleeves.

- Banded Sleeves
- 2 Dufrenite
- Ghoul Carrion (Unrest)
- Charger Hoof Chips (South Karanas)

Totemic Breastplate Quest

Talk to Kyralynn in Lake Rathe, He will tell you to give him, Medium Banded Mail, 1 Crushed Dufrenite, Grizzlenot Bark (From Grizzlenot, a named Treant in South Karana) And 1 Lancer Fish Fin(From a lancer fish in Kedge Keep), and to get you Dufrenite crushed you must go to the Ogre shaman across the lake.

Totemic Boots Quest

1) Talk to Vrynn in Lake Rathetear.

2) Collect the following and give them to Vrynn to collect Totemic Boots.

- Banded Boots
- 1 Dufrenite
- Orc Chief's Tongue (Lesser Faydark)
- Terror Spine (Tentacle Terror in Najena)

Totemic Gauntlets Quest

1) Talk to Vrynn in Lake Rathetear.

2) Collect the following and give them to Vrynn to receive your Totemic Gauntlets.

- Banded Gauntlets (must be medium size)
- 1 Crushed Dufrenite
- Mammoth's Rib Bone (Everfrost)
- Griffene Downfeather (North Karana)

Totemic Helm Quest

1) Talk to Kyralynn in Lake Rathetear.

2) Collect the following and give them to Kyralynn to receive your Totemic Helm.

- Banded Helm (must be medium size)
- 1 Ground Dufrenite
- Glacier Bear Pelt (Glacier Bear in Everfrost)
- Ogreskin Chamois (Lizard Page in Cazic Thule)

Totemic Greaves Quest

1) Purchase or make a set of Medium Banded Leggings.

2) Head to Halas and purchase a Dufrenite.

3) Head to Permafrost and kill Ice Goblin Wizards until you retrieve a Snowball.

4) Head to Unrest and kill Barbed Boned Skeletons until you retreive Bone Barbs.

5) Head to Lake Rathetear and have the Dufrenite powdered by the Shaman.

6) Hand the items to Vrynn to receive the Totemic Greaves.

Totemic Bracer Quest

1) Talk to Kyralynn in Lake Rathetear.

2) Collect the following and give them to Kyralynn to receive a totemic bracer.

- banded bracer
- 1 dufrenite
- Cauldron Shell (Aqua Goblin in Dagnor's Cauldron)
- Bull Elephant Tooth (South Karana)

Testament of Vanear Quest

1) Find Moodoro Finharn at the Crow's Inn in North Qeynos. Evil races can get there by taking the Aquaducts and coming out the entrance by the Monk guild. Occasionally Moodoro will wander out to the water where you can talk to him.

2) Give Moodoro 2gp for the Testament of Vanear container.

3) Next, keep on giving him 4gp until he gives you a joker card. Give that joker card back to him to receive page page 34.

4) Next, head to Highhold Pass. You need to find the hiddens smugglers area. It is found by swimming in the lake, and through a very small tunnel.

5) Find Dyllin Starsine and kill him for page 30. The smugglers around him will come to his aid. Dyllin is an 8 hour spawn. Also, I do not suggest killing Dyllin more than once or twice, as it will put you KOS with the Corrupt Qeynos Guards.

6) Put both pages in the container, and hit combine, to create the Testament of Vanear.

Thex Mallet Quest

1) Head to Befallen and kill Elf Skeletons until you retrieve the Mallet Head and the Mallet Hilt.

2) Find and kill Commander Windstream. He is about level 20 or so. He will drop the Mallet Stem.

3) Put the Mallet Head and the Mallet Hilt into the Mallet Stem and press combine. You will have the Thex Mallet.

Totemic Cloak Quest

1) Talk to Kyralynn in Lake Rathetear.

2) Collect the following and give them to Kyralynn to receive a Totemic Cloak

- Banded Cloak
- 1 Powdered Dufrenite
- Basalt Drake Scales (Rathe Mountains)
- Driftwood Pipe (Isle Goblin Chieftain in Ocean of Tears)

Vambraces of Ro Quest

Details of this quest are sketchy at best....

1) Head to Rathe Mountains and talk to Marianna. You will need to be amiable to her to get the quest.

2) Head to Erud's crossing and retreive 2 rotten shark portions. (Plague Sharks)

3) Return the shark pieces to Marianna and you will get the mold for the vambraces.

4) You need to forge the vambraces but the details of how to do this are sketchy. If anyone has this information please send it in to us and we will update this section.

Virtue of the Fervent Quest

1) Talk to Blaize in the Temple of Solusek Ro to obtain the quest.

2) Kill the named aviak "Gull" in the Ocean of Tears on Aviak Island. Gull drops the Ingot of the Fervent

3) Find Jovan in Highhold Pass, and give him two Tumpy Tonics, which can be made with the brewing skill or via a side quest. He will give you the Icon of the Fervent.

4) Take the Ingot, the Icon and an enchanted platinum bar back to Blaize to receive the Vambraces of the Fervent.

Vambraces of the Fervent Quest

1) In the Temple of Solusek Ro talk to Blaize the Radiant. Simply say, "Tell me about the Fervent." and you will be given the quest.

2) Kill Gull in the Ocean of Tears (Aviak Island) to get the Ingot of the Fervent.

3) Head to Highhold Keep and give Jovan two Tumpy Tonics. You will receive the Icon of the Fervent.

4) Head to Temple of Solusek Ro. Give 1 enchanted platinum bar to Villisia and you will receive one Vulcanized bar.

5) Give the Ingot, Icon, and Vulcanized bar to Blaize to receive the Vambraces of the Fervent.

Wee Harvester Quest

1) Head to Western Karana and follow C. Miller through the fields until he drops a bail of hay.
2) Head to Feerrott and find Roror. He is usually relatively close to the Rathe Mountains. Hail him, and then give him the Hay and 66gp. He will give you back some Cursed Hay.
3) Head to North Qeynos and visit the Temple of Life. As you head towards the temple there will some NPCs on your right. The one on the far left is the one who gives the blessed oil quest. Hail him and get the blessed oil.
4) Head to a forge and put the blessed oil and the cursed hay into it. Combine. This has been known to fail if you have low smithing skill. If you are successful you receive Writhing Hay.
5) Head to Rivervale and give the Writhing Hay to Shakey the Scarecrow to receive either the Wee Harvester or the Belt of the River.

Werewolf Skin Cloak Quest

1) Kill a werewolf for their skin.
2) Find and hail Karg Icebear in Everfrost. Give Karg 100pp and the werewolf skin and you will recieve a Werewolf Skin Cloak.

Wasp Poison Quest

1) Collect 3 giant wasp venom sacs.
2) Give the sacs and 30gp to the dwarf NPC on the island in Dagnor's Cauldron and he will give you wasp poison.

Watchman Boots Quest

Talk to Lord Jenork in Ak'kanon. If you have high enough faction he will tell you to find Watchman Dexlin in the Karanas for a special mission. Watchman Dexlin is a rare spawn on the Bridge to South Karana. When you hail Dexlin he will tell you that he is looking for a brave warrior to deal with some pesky skeletons. If you tell him "I am a brave warrior" he gives you a box and tells you to find "tiny skeletons" and return it to him when you have filled it with their bones. After you get the box a number of tiny skeletons will spawn somewhere between the bridge and the gypsie camp. They are only upper teens but at level 24 I had problems soloing 3 at once. Kill four of them, loot their bones and combine them in the box. Return the box to Dexlin and he gives it back and tells you to give it to Lord Jenork in Ak'kanon to get your reward which is Watchman Boots and a few plat.

VELIOUS ARMOR INFORMATION

With the release of the continent of Velious, four lines of high end armor becamse available for each class. This page hopes to shed some light on these armor sets.

General Information*: For each class, three of the armor sets are the result of very similair quests, while the fourth is dropped off planar creatures. While the dropped armor is often considered the easiest set to attain, the level to attain these armor sets is about level 55 or higher. A person in a guild who is lower level may be able to attain the odd piece, but you're going to need people of level 55 or higher to work on most of these pieces.

In order of difficulty, the Skyshrine quest armors of often considered the hardest, followed by the Kael Drakkel quest armor, followed by the Thurgadin quest armor, with the Plane of Growth/Plane of Hate dropped armor being the easiest to attain. As a rule, the armor sets which are dropped in the planes of Growth and Hate are about equal, the Skyshrine armor has the highest statistics, while the Kael Drakkel armor has the highest armor class.

Dropped Armor*: For each class, the (possibly) easiest and certainly fastest to aquire set of armor is the dropped set. For most classes, the armor may be found in the Plane of Growth, for Druids, Rangers and Paladins the armor may be found on the second floor of the Plane of Hate. The creatures which drop the armor do so very rarely, but as a rule in the Plane of Growth you can expect to see about 8 to 10 pieces in an 8 hour session clearing the plane. The armor pieces tend to be found on level 55+ creatures.

In each case the armor may be worn by all races which can play the class, including Iksar.

Class	Location of Armor	Armor Name
Warrior	Plane of Growth	Berserkers'
Rogue	Plane of Growth	Assassins'
Monk	Plane of Growth	Silver Moon
Shadow Knight	Plane of Growth	Noctivagant
Paladin	Plane of Hate	Armor of the Righteous
Ranger	Plane of Hate	Armor of the Untamed
Bard	Plane of Growth	Melodic
Cleric	Plane of Growth	Armor of Stability
Druid	Plane of Hate	Armor of Harmony
Shaman	Plane of Growth	Spirit Weavers'
Enchanter	Plane of Growth	Resplendent
Wizard	Plane of Growth	Sorcerers'
Magician	Plane of Growth	Conjuration
Necromancer	Plane of Growth	Bonecaster

Quest Armor*: Three sets of quested armor are available for each class in velious, one per major faction group. The Thurgadin quests require the "Coldain" faction which all players start with at apprehensive. The Kael and Skyshrine quests both require the "King" factions, Tormax and Yelinek respectively. In each case, in order to perform the quests, you need to have your faction at the highest possible level.

In each quest, you are reuired to turn in three gem components plus one armor component. For each particular piece and class, the gem component always remains the same. The armor piece is the differenciating component which makes the quests specific to city. In other words, if you have attained the gems for the Enchanter Thurgadin Leggings, the same gems will work for the quest from Kael or the quest from Skyshrine. All items for these quests are dropped.

The following table reflects which faction and zones you'll need for the quests:

Quest City	Faction Required	Zone for Armor Component
Thurgadin	Coldain	Kael Drakkel
Kael Drakkel	King Tormax	Temple of Veeshan
Skyshrine	Lord Yelinek	Temple of Veeshan

In all cases, many of the quest armor components are shared between classes.

- Plate: Warrior, Shadow Knight, Paladin, Cleric, Bard
- Chain: Ranger, Rogue, Shaman
- Leather: Druid, Monk
- Cloth:Enchanter, Magician, Wizard, Necromancer

The gems components are split into three groups:

- Melee: Warrior, Monk, Rogue, Paladin, Shadow Knight, Ranger, Bard
- Priest: Cleric, Druid, Shaman
- Caster: Enchanter, Magician, Wizard, Necromancer

The following table shows which classes need which gems:

Gem Name	Melee	Priest	Caster	Drop Info
Black Marble	N/A	Breastplate	N/A	Dragon Necropolis,Siren's Grotto,Velketor's Labyrinth

The following table reflects where the various armor pieces are found:

Type of Armor	Type Needed	Zone for Armor Component
Plate: Thurgadin	Corroded Plate	Kael Drakkel (In and around Arena)
Chain: Thurgadin	Corroded Chain	Kael Drakkel (In and around Arena)
Leather: Thurgadin	Eroded Leather	Kael Drakkel (In and around Arena)
Cloth: Thurgadin	Torn Enchanted Silk	Kael Drakkel (In and around Arena)
Plate: Kael	Ancient Tarnished Plate	Temple of Veeshan (West Wing)
Chain: Kael	Ancient Tarnished Chain	Temple of Veeshan (West Wing)
Leather: Kael	Ancient Leather	Temple of Veeshan (West Wing)
Cloth: Kael	Ancient Silk	Temple of Veeshan (West Wing)
Plate: Skyshrine	Unadorned Plate	Temple of Veeshan (Testing Halls)
Chain: Skyshrine	Unadorned Chain	Temple of Veeshan (Testing Halls)
Leather: Skyshrine	Unadorned Leather	Temple of Veeshan (Testing Halls)
Cloth: Skyshrine	Tattered Silk	Temple of Veeshan (Testing Halls)

For the Thurgadin quests, you will need to hunt in Kael Drakkel near the Arena. You should look for the level 53+ Veterans, Adjudants and Legionnaires since they seem to have the best chance of dropping the amour components. A typical hunt of 6 hours tends to yeild about 1 or two pieces, though it can be done with one high level group.

For the Kael Drakkel quests, you will need to hunt in the Temple of Veeshan in any area except the Testing Halls and the Entry. Since everything here is level 60+ you will need a minimum of 18 high level people. Typical drops are 8 pieces in an 8 hour hunt.

For the Skyshrine quests, you will need to again hunt in the Temple of Veeshan - though this time in the "Testing Halls". The testing halls are again a very high level area - requiring about 24 people. I'm not familair with the drop rates here.

Armor Set Names:

- Quests -

1: Copper Coldain Insignia Ring: AC1, STR+1, MR+1

It all starts with Garadain Glacierbane. He can be found in a hut at the Coldain encampment just northeast of the Ry`Gorr fort at a location of -2700, -400. You may sometimes find these huts empty because someone is hunting the Coldain for heads and faction, but they're only on 20 minute timers. Talk to Garadain to find out that he wants a blanket. To tailor the blanket you must have some tailoring skill, or have someone else make it for you and multiquest the ring later because the blanket is NO DROP.

Either way, the blanket is trivial at a tailoring skill of about 80. To make the blanket, combine two High Quality Tundra Kodiak Pelts (found from tundra kodiaks in Eastern Wastes), and two High Quality Cougarskins (found from snow cougars in either Eastern Wastes or Iceclad Ocean) in a large sewing kit. Give the blanket to Garadain for your first ring, the Copper Coldain Insignia Ring.

2: Silver Coldain Insignia Ring: AC2, STR+2, MR+2

Right after receiving your Copper Ring, you will want an axe from Garadain to trigger the second quest, even if you don't plan on doing it now. The only phrase I found that works to get the axe is, "How assistance?" Once you have the axe, go find Boridain Glacierbane who is on a hill just west of Garadain's hut at a location of -2450, +1550. He may not be up, and he is on about a 5-6 hour timer. In a nutshell, you'll be guiding Boridain around the zone in search of a rabid kodiak, and your goal is to make sure that he does not die. I recommend having a monk for this, so he can pull away mobs and feign death. Otherwise, you will need to kill the following before attempting this: All the giants at the front of the giant fort at -1770, +2920, the static giant and orc in the jail at -30, +300, and all orcs outside the orc fort at -3500, +400. To get started, give Boridain the axe and he'll be on his way. Remember to keep an out at all times for any roaming giants or orcs that look like they may collide with Boridain. You will either need to kill them (Boridain will assist you), or pull them away and feign death if you have the ability.

Boridain first heads west to the giant fort at -1770, +2920. He stops right at the entrance, then starts going northeast to the jail. Along the way he'll stop for a snack. Use the opportunity to med, heal, whatever...but remember to watch out for giants and orcs, they will still attack. If you don't want to wait, you may give him a food item to get him going again. If you don't, he will still move again eventually, it just takes a few minutes. After a couple minutes, he finishes the trip to the jail at -30, +300. He then heads south to the orc fort, and takes another break for a nap along the way (this time you can't give him anything to get him going quicker). When he arrives at the orc fort at -3500, +400, he will turn around and go back to his starting hill at -2450, +1550. When he gets there, he will sit down and give up. At this time the rabid kodiak will spawn behind you, and a short timer of about 5 minutes is activated, at the end of which Boridain will despawn.

So, kill the rabid kodiak quickly, loot his pelt, and immediately give the pelt to Boridain for a broken axe. If Boridain despawns, you will need to get another axe from Garadain with the phrase "How assistance?", wait 4 hours for Boridain to respawn, then give the axe to Boridain to trigger the quest. However, you don't need to wait for the rabid kodiak again. Just give him the rabid kodiak pelt as soon as Boridain starts walking to get the broken axe. When you're finished, give the broken axe and your Copper Coldain Insignia Ring to Garadain for the Silver Coldain Insignia Ring. NOTE: If someone else tailored the blanket for the first quest, they will need to turn it in for the Copper Ring and this is where you have it multiquested. Have your friend give the ring to Garadain, then you hand in the broken axe, and you will still receive the Silver Ring.

3: Gold Coldain Insignia Ring: AC3, STR+3, MR+3

Another quest based on a trade skill, this time smithing. The components are all found in Eastern Wastes. Ever seen one of those orange blobs with gray spots on the ground near the bridge to Iceclad? Well, you'll need one of those...it's a skinning rock, and is NO DROP. You'll also need to kill walruses just south of Kael until you have a High Quality Walrus Hide, and wooly rhinos found throughout the zone until you have a Wooly Rhino Horn. Once you have all 3 items, combine them in a forge to attempt to make the knife. The knife is trivial at a smithing skill of about

65. The knife was also NOT no drop at the time I did this, so you may have someone else get a skinning rock and forge the knife, and simply give it to you. Verant may have changed that however, but I can't confirm. Anyway, give the knife and your Silver Coldain Insignia Ring to Garadain for the Gold Coldain Insignia Ring. If someone else made the knife and it is no drop, you can obviously just multiquest it.

4: Platinum Coldain Insignia Ring: AC4, STR+4, MR+4

You're going to need some help for this one, but before you recruit anybody, you should make sure that Tain Hammerfrost is up. He's found beyond the first snowy hill that you encounter as you head west from the Iceclad/Eastern Wastes bridge, at a location of -4950, -2650. He may not be up because people kill him for faction, or they assume he drops something neat, and he's on a 5-6 hour timer. If he's up, you should have help from someone who can solo a giant, blue at level 54. I personally did this with a level 55 druid.

Anyway, when whoever is helping you has arrived at Tain, say "I will help" to trigger the quest. As soon as you do this, 4 giants will spawn over the hill to the east, and they are all agrod on Tain. As soon as you see the giants, attack ALL of them to switch the agro to you. You want to keep Tain alive, and about 3-5 hits from any giant can kill him. When you have all 4 giants chasing after you, have your helper(s) split the named one, Ghrek Squatnot, from the bunch, and kill him as you run around kiting the other 3. You may either kill them all this way, or just Ghrek, it doesn't matter. Either way, as soon as Ghrek is dead, loot the vial from him.

If Tain is still alive, quickly give him the vial to receive the Coldain Smithing Hammer. If Tain is dead, you'll need to wait another 4 hours for his respawn, trigger the quest by saying "I will help", then immediately give him the vial. The giants will despawn as soon as they lose all agro. Once you've done it, give the Coldain Smithing Hammer and the Gold Coldain Insignia Ring to Garadain for your Platinum Coldain Insignia Ring.

5: Obsidian Coldain Insignia Ring: AC5, STR+5, MR+5

You'll need help for this too, preferably a few people this time in case something goes wrong with the pull, which is likely. However, first thing's first, you'll need Ry`Gorr Invasion Plans. These drop 100% of the time from the very rare, wandering Ry`Gorr Messenger. The plans are tradeable, and the messenger is killed on sight because the plans are in pretty high demand. So, you may be able to just buy the plans cheap from somebody. When you have the plans, start recruiting people to help you. You'll want as high a level as possible to pull, so as not to get adds.

Do not try to harmony, you won't have time. When your help has arrived, have them all buff up at the hill where people camp in front of the orc fort. When ready, you and only you will head over to Garadain's camp with the invasion plans. Locate the coldain lookout in this camp behind one of the huts. Giving him the plans will spawn about 8 orcs, all blue at level 54, in the field just west of Garadain's camp. Among these orcs is a 47th level shadow knight named Scarbrow Ga`Hruk. Immediately when they spawn, have the highest level helping you try to pull Scarbrow. The orcs only remain static for a brief moment before charging Garadain's camp, and once all agro is lost, they will despawn.

Garadain's camp is more than guaranteed to be wiped out, but this is not a problem. Just focus on killing Scarbrow. Take care of any adds as best you can. I personally had a level 56 shaman pull Scarbrow, and he got him single. When Scarbrow is dead, loot his head. He also has a chance of dropping a Frozen Orb, which is a pretty nice range item (AC2, WIS+3, INT+3, mana+40). If it does drop, it is not needed for any quests. When Garadain respawns, give him Scarbrow's head and your Platinum Coldain Insignia Ring for the Obsidian Coldain Insignia Ring.

6: Mithril Coldain Insignia Ring: AC6, STR+6, MR+6

You need help again, from a team about as powerful as the one that helped you with Scarbrow. But first, you have an option. You can either do the part that requires help, or you can camp the Coldain traitor named Rodrick Tardok. Rodrick spawns in the little tower that serves as a zone out of Crystal Caverns, at a location of -3400, +1050. However, he isn't on a timer, rather is triggered when the fairly rare Ry`Gorr Emissary walks up to the tower. When this happens, be careful not to agro the emissary, and wait a minute for Rodrick to spawn. You may want to ask the zone not to kill the emissary. He spawns in the orc fort and chances are he won't make it out alive.

When Rodrick has spawned, go ahead and kill him. He's easy, green to me at 54. When dead he drops his head and a no drop "Dirk of the Traitor". Loot BOTH of these. You only need the head right now but the Dirk is for the ninth quest. Now gather your army and head to the single hut just north of the Iceclad/Eastern Wastes bridge at -3300, -4480. Wait until midnight then kill everything in and around the hut. If someone is camping it, tell them they should stay back because you're about to do a quest here. As your friends are clearing the hut, you should head to the southwest corner of the zone to two huts, empty aside from a named dire wolf, Icefang.

Icefang is on the Coldain faction so should not attack you, and his location is -8100, +3230. If it's past midnight you should also find a dwarf ghost outside of Icefang's hut named Korrigain. When your friends are ready, give your Obsidian Ring to Korrigain, you'll get it back but this triggers Icefang to walk out, stop a moment, then run off to the hut where your friends are. Run as fast you can back to that hut. A minute before Icefang arrives, a few orcs will spawn outside the hut, and a named level 40 shaman inside named Poxbreath Yellowfang. Have the highest level there try to pull Poxbreath out single. When Icefang arrives, he'll fight the orcs and will die, but this isn't a problem. Loot the note from Poxbreath when he's dead. Return to Garadain and give him Rodrick's head, the note from Poxbreath, and your Obsidian Coldain Insignia Ring to receive the Mithril Coldain Insignia Ring.

7: Adamantium Coldain Insignia Ring: AC7, STR+7, MR+7

This quest has a really easy way to cheat, so you only need one person to do this...that person is a monk. But first thing's first. You'll need to kill Warden Bruke in the jail. You should have at least 2 people to do this, he's kind of tough and is completely MR. You can run around with the Warden on you as another hits him from behind. May take a while, but it works. Anyway, head to the jail and locate the ruined building in the northeast corner. Warden Bruke spawns in this building at a location of +300, -350. He does have a PH which is an all caps "Kromrif Prison Guard".

The PH and Warden are on about 7 minute timers. When the Warden is up, have the monk pull him even though he's alone. Have him pull from the hole in the right side of the building. The reason for this is, once agrod, 6 bodyguards will spawn at the entrance of the building, but they won't agro if you pull from the side. If they do, have a monk pulling so he can split the Warden. Once the Warden is dead, loot the no drop Shackle Key. The femur is extra and not needed. Once you have the Shackle Key, locate Corbin Blackwell in a building in the jail at +215, +80. He's surrounded by 5 mobs, all of which are green and I could solo easily as a level 54 monk. However, don't kill these yet. Locate Dobbin Crossaxe in a hut east of the jail at -570, -3190.

Have yourself and your monk (if you're not the monk) familiarize yourselves with the path from Corbin to Dobbin. When you think you've got it, kill all the mobs around Corbin. Here's what's going to happen. When you give Corbin the Mithril Ring and the Shackle Key, you get the ring back but not the key. Immediately run back to Dobbin's hut, but have the monk stay with Corbin at all times. If you are the monk, obviously you won't be running back to Dobbin. As soon as you give the key and ring to Corbin, he starts walking out of the jail. Once out, he proceeds over some hills for about a minute, then says something like, "Almost there, just a little but farther now." A second after this happens, 8 mobs will spawn around you including Commander Bahreck.

The Commander shouts something to the zone when this happens. IMMEDIATELY when he does this, have the monk attack Corbin once to agro him, then run out of the path of the mobs who should be currently charging. If done correctly, the mobs will come to where Corbin was and stop there dumbfounded. They will then roam the zone. Anyway, the monk is still running around with Corbin on him. Simply run to Dobbin's hut (only if the mobs have not agrod), and feign death once Corbin is inside. Corbin will walk out of the hut and immediately come back inside. Dobbin and Corbin will chat for a minute, then Corbin despawns and Dobbin tells you to give him your ring.

Do what he says, give Dobbin the Mithril Ring and you receive a note in return (you will not get the ring back). If this part of the quest fails and Corbin is killed because the monk sucks at running him out the way, you'll need to kill Warden Bruke for the key and try again. Once you have the note from Dobbin, return to Garadain. Give Garadain Dobbin's note for the Adamantium Coldain Insignia Ring.

8: Velium Coldain Insignia Ring: AC8, STR+8, MR+8,* Effect: Shield of the Eighth (Right-clickable and stackable 8 point damage shield)

Ever seen all those mobs at the front of the orc fort? Well that's you're about to do - war. But there's a way around this that isn't exactly a war. First thing you'll want to do is make sure Gloradin Coldheart is up in the hut next to Garadain's, at a location of -2630, -440. She's most likely not going to be up. She's on a 24 hour timer and may be killed because of the little war with Scarbrow, or because someone is stupid and kills her for faction, or because someone does the 8th quest. When she's up, start the recruiting and ask the zone not to kill her. One group is plenty, but the more the merrier because you only have one chance to do this.

If you fail, all is lost, and you have to start from ring one. I personally did this with me (54 monk) a level 53 paladin, 60 cleric, and 40 druid. I also did it later for a friend, we had me (54 monk), him (58 monk), a 42 paladin, 56 cleric and 53 wizard. You must have a way to invis everyone, whether you use potions or whatever. We easily succeeded both times. When your team has arrived, head inside the orc fort. Go into the building in the middle room with the big fire. Kill whatever is up in the building, including elites and even the chief if he happens to be up. When the whole building is clear, everyone should buff up and med up, and it is imperative that you warn the zone numerous times that war is about to start and everyone should stay clear of the fort. It's possible for a newbie to screw everything up. When ready, you will run outside to Garadain, while your team stays behind inside the room with the fire. You need an invis potion unless you can invis yourself.

If you can't and you have no potion, have someone who can invis go with you. Give the Adamantium ring to Garadain to receive a note. Go to the other building with Gloradin and give her the note. Immediately invis yourself, if you can't then have whoever went with you invis you and himself. Once invisible, run back into the room with the fire. You only have about 2 minutes before all the mobs pop. Invis at this point is not 100% required but you should still have it just in case you're slow going back inside and the mobs pop. Anyway, when you and everyone else is inside the middle room with the fire, and all the mobs have popped outside, look just outside your room. You will see two giants and some orcs including Firbrand the Black and Chief Ry`Gorr. Yes, they are outside the building because this is special. You only NEED the Chief, so have the highest level pull him inside.

At level 54, I attempted to pull him and got him with Firbrand, but no others. Your target is the Chief so drop him as quickly as possible, and loot his head when he's dead. As soon as whatever you pulled is dead (hopefully just the Chief) and you have the head, everyone needs to have invis and run completely outside of the fort. You will run to the hill outside of the fort where groups camp orcs for exp. On this hill, you should see an army of Coldain preparing for the war. If they're not there yet, wait a minute and they will run up and stop there. A minute after the Coldain army arrives, Garadain will walk up to the army and stop there to give them a pep talk. A bit after that, he shouts, 'CHARGE!'

As soon as he does this, give Garadain the Chief's head to receive your Velium Coldain Insignia Ring. You can actually give him the head before he shouts CHARGE, but if you wait, the Coldain will charge the fort. As you can see you need to kill the Chief as fast as possible because if you take too long, the Coldain will charge the fort and get wiped out. If Garadain dies, all is lost and you must start from ring one. So be fast, focused, understand what you must do, and do it. This is not as hard as it may seem.

9: Coldain Hero's Insignia Ring: AC9, STR+9, STA+9, MR+9, HP+50, Effect: Shield of the Eighth (Right-clickable and stackable 8 point damage shield)

As you can see, this ring is a big improvement from the 8th ring. It introduces some stamina and HP (with 9 stamina, the total HP addition for me is 86). It also still has the Shield of the Eighth effect, which is odd because it's the ninth ring. Hopefully they will fix that someday.

Garadain Glacierbane will no longer be the main Coldain behind the quests. It is now Seneschal Aldikar and Dain Frostreaver IV himself, both in Icewell Keep. If you zone into Icewell from the main entrance which is located in Thurgadin, enter the Keep and climb the stairs all the way up to the throne room. If it is between 8 AM and 8 PM, EQ time, you will find Seneschal Aldikar standing to the left of the throne. If it's not between the above time, you will find him in a room on the floor below, but he does not give out the 9th quest in this spot, only when he's at the throne. To get the quest, say the phrase "I will accept this task", and you will receive a 6-slot box. The quest, when summarized, requires you to seek out the 6 Coldain traitors and obtain an item from them to prove that they've been slain (usually a head). A faction level of dubious will work to do the quest.

NOTE: Any Coldain you kill in this quest is a traitor and is not on any faction whatsoever.

Traitor 1 - Rodrick Tardok

If you've been following this walkthrough, you should already have the item you need from Rodrick, which is the no drop "Dirk of the Traitor". You do not need Rodrick's head. If you don't know how to kill Rodrick and you don't have the Dirk of the Traitor, please read quest 6, it explains.

Traitor 2 - Murdrick Tardok

You may be thinking to yourself, "This guy has the same last name as Rodrick!" If so, you are amazingly observant. Murdrick is Rodrick's brother and is a traitor as well. However, he's found in the Great Divide, in a cave next to Velketor's Labyrinth, at a location of -5600, +3500. Murdrick is in the first room to the right inside the cave. He also has 6 other traitors with him, 2 of which are clerics. All of them should be dubious to everyone. DO NOT GO INSIDE MURDRICK'S ROOM. Going inside the room triggers a conversation between the traitors. If the conversation ends and Murdrick is not in his spawn point, he will despawn.

This part of the quest is damn tricky. You may think you have such an easy solution but trust me, it isn't. It seems no matter where you attack Murdrick, all the other Coldain will pop on you after a minute unless they are harmonied. When they lose agro they don't always go back to their spawn point in the cave. A level 60 cannot single pull Murdrick without harmony. Do not try to have a monk split him, not only will it never work, Murdrick will also despawn. There are two ways to do this. You can either have a few groups rush in and kill everything, which is way too unnessecary, or you can do it the way I did and the way I watched everyone else do it. I had myself (54 monk), a 60 paladin, 58 druid, and 51 shaman. One group is all you need, but high level harmony is a must. When you have your group, enter the cave and have them buff and med up somewhere in the hall, but not too close to Murdrick's room.

No one but the person with harmony should ever enter Murdrick's room, and even then they will not go in until ready to pull. Once everyone is buffed, have the druid/ranger with harmony to enter the room. They must not be in wolf form, as the traitors are KoS to wolves. The harmonier will harmony everything then cast a spell on Murdrick to pull him. No matter how many add, pull them to the group. If you have more than Murdrick, attempt to split by having everyone attack Murdrick except the one who pulled, then have the puller take the adds outside and kite them for the duration of the fight. You will need to give Murdrick everything you've got to kill him before he despawns. When he dies, loot Murdrick's head and Murdrick's plan. We personally had one add with the level 58 druid pulling, but he simply dumped Murdrick on us and kited the add outside as the shaman healed.

Traitor 3 - Captain Berradin

This is one of the hardest parts of the quest. Not because of any NPC difficulty, but because you need to make Tainted Avalanche Ale. The recipe for which can be found in Murdrick's plan, but here it is: one Bottle, an Iceball, an Ice Wyvern Stinger, Arctic Mussels, Runed Sea Shell (Effect: Cloud), Seahorse Scales, and a vial of Mind Melt. The only no drop component is the Ice Wyvern Stinger. The Ale itself is trivial at a brewing skill of 248 (ouch), and it also is NO DROP. The bottle is bought from bartender merchants. The Iceball is a drop from snow dervishes in Eastern Wastes and Iceclad Ocean. The Ice Wyvern Stinger is a rare drop from wyverns in Cobaltscar.

Arctic Mussels are a ground spawn under the ocean in Cobaltscar, in the bottom of the shipwreck closest to the beach. Runed Sea Shell (Effect: Cloud) is a rare drop from sirens in Siren's Grotto only. Seahorse Scales drop from seahorses in Siren's Grotto, and Mind Melt is a poison that can be made from rogues only, and it also is trivial at 248, but is NOT no drop (obviously). The components for Mind Melt are two Mt. Death Mineral Salts, a Sealed Poison Vial, Ethereal Suspension, and a vial of Quicksilver. Mt. Death Mineral Salts are common drops from goblins in Droga. Ethereal Suspension is bought from rogue merchants. Sealed Poison Vial is made from the pottery trade skill, trivial at 188, the components for which are an old-world non-ruined skin (I personally used Zombie Skin), a Sealed Vial Sketch (merchant-bought), a Water Flask, and a Small Block of Clay (merchant-bought). You will then need to fire it with a High Quality Firing Sheet (merchant-bought).

The components for Quicksilver are one Cinnabar and one Gnomish Spirits (both bought from merchants in Kaladim). For convenience sake, here are some equations:

1. Cinnabar + Gnomish Spirits = Quicksilver
2. Zombie Skin + Sealed Vial Sketch + Water Flask + Small Block of Clay = Poison Vial
3. High Quality Firing Sheet + Poison Vial = Sealed Poison Vial
4. Mt. Death Mineral Salts (2) + Sealed Poison Vial + Ethereal Suspension + Quicksilver = Mind Melt
5. Bottle + Iceball + Ice Wyvern Stinger + Arctic Mussels + Runed Sea Shell (Effect: Cloud) + Seahorse
6. Scales + Mind Melt = Tainted Avalanche Ale

You may need to find someone else with mastered pottery, brewing and poison making skills. I gave up after getting my brewing to 151 and had someone else make it for me. Once the Tainted Avalanche Ale is made, find Captain Berradin in Eastern Wastes in a hut at a location of -60, +2360. You don't need a full group for this. I personally did it with myself (54 monk), a 60 shaman, 60 ranger and 53 wizard. However it was an overkill on Captain Berradin. When ready, have whoever made the Tainted Avalanche Ale give it to Captain Berradin. After a minute, he will choke and fall to the ground. At this point, pull him out of the hut and kill him, the other Coldain there will not assist him. Once dead, loot Berradin's head and the letter to Peffin. He does not drop these items if you haven't given him the Tainted Avalanche Ale.

Traitor 4 - Peffin Ambersnow

At this point on if you screw up you'll need to start with Captain Berradin and make another Tainted Avalanche Ale. The reason for this is each traitor drops an item to trigger the next part of the quest, starting with Captain Berradin who drops the letter to Peffin. So be careful, and have as many people as possible help you. I recommend having two groups for Peffin, or one well balanced with everyone near 60. I did this with almost everyone in my guild who was online at the time, and it was an overkill but also the first time anyone had ever done this before. Luckily, it succeeded. Locate Peffin Ambersnow in a building in the giant fort in Eastern Wastes.

The giant fort is at -1770, +2920, and Peffin is invisible and cons dubious. What happens is this: after you give the note to Peffin, some level 51 giants will spawn in the building you're in, 5 level 51 giants will spawn around the campfire outside the building but inside the fort, and Peffin will respawn in the middle of those 5 giants. This would be very easy if Peffin didn't despawn after a while. Neither she nor the giants around the campfire will move from their spawn point, no matter what. The giants simply stand there staring at you if they agro, and Peffin will shoot endless arrows and will never move. Do not try to AE the giants as you will be summoned and slaughtered. This is the strategy I used. Move your army to the back wall of the giant fort, facing the campfire. They must be against the wall or risk agroing giants. When everyone is buffed and ready, have a monk pull Peffin out and feign death near you but not near everyone else.

For some reason when we did this she agrod on some people so we had to let her go back and try again. When the monk feigns give her the note. The giants and Peffin will immediately spawn at the campfire. Throw something or shoot an arrow at the middle giant to agro them all. Remember they do not attack, rather just stare at you, and will not summon you if you use a ranged weapon. What you need to do is quickly get close to the campfire near where your groups are, and sit. Stay seated at all times, never get up, and make sure anyone who is in front of you never sits down. This way all melees are free to run in and attack Peffin, and the giants will not attack them because they're mostly pissed at you because you're sitting and you attacked them. Kill Peffin as quickly as you can, then have everyone back off so you can get up. Have another person throw or shoot something at the middle giant then sit where you were to switch agro to them so you can run in and loot Peffin.

You will need to loot Peffin's head and the letter to Doldigun. She also drops a very nice bow which is extra and not needed for the quest. The key rule is to not be afraid of the giants when everyone rushes in for the attack. They simply will not kill you. Make sure if anyone is going to sit that they sit down behind you. And kill Peffin ASAP. That's all! Oh one more thing, the reason for pulling her from outside the building to give her the note is because some giants also spawn inside that building that DO move from their spawn point, and if agrod they could cause problems.

Traitor 5 - Doldigun Steinwielder

This part takes place in Kael and it's really easy and fun. You need a minimum of two groups, and it can rewarding for all because armor drops for the Velious armor quests where you'll be going. Gather your forces in Eastern Wastes at the zone to Kael. Once ready, go inside and invis up or kill your way (the mobs on the way are green and easily soloed by me, 54 monk) there. The path you take from the Eastern Wastes zone is this: simply follow the one way hall until you get a large room that splits off in 3 directions.

In this room is a small pond and above the pond is an icy ledge. Climb up to the ledge and you should see a building here. At this point the mobs will be harder and you must kill them. Enter the building and kill all mobs you find inside, or pull them out one at a time and kill them then go in. One of the rooms in this building is long and has a throne at the end. Set up your camp in the room BEFORE the throne room, with the giant chair and table. After the building including the throne room is clear, you and only you will go up and stand on the throne itself and say the phrase, "The Dain shall be slain for the peace we must obtain." Immediately Doldigun Steinwielder will spawn, who is not KoS.

Give him the letter to Doldigun and you will receive a Ring of the Coldain Council. Now attack Doldigun and he despawns. WTF? Look behind you. You have triggered two level 51 giants. Pull these to your groups and kill them. After they are dead, another will spawn in the throne room and runs to your groups immediately. This one is level 55. Kill it and another spawns, this time level 57. Kill it and ANOTHER spawns, this one is level 60. After the level 60 one dies, Doldigun will spawn in the throne room and start running. As soon as the level 60 giant dies run to the throne room and throw something at Doldigun to agro him.

If you don't, he'll run straight through your groups and despawn. This version of Doldigun is level 55. Kill him and loot Doldigun's head. Note that you do not need the letter to Doldigun to trigger this quest. The letter is needed only to receive the Ring of the Coldain Council, and you can do this quest over and over and over for everyone who wants a head. Just say "The Dain shall be slain for the peace we must obtain" at the throne and attack him to trigger the wave of giants. There is no spawn time on the waves, but there is about a half hour spawn time on the other giants in the building, and you want to kill these because the giants in the triggered wave will run at low health.

Traitor 6 - Councilor Juliah Lockheart

The sixth and final traitor is perhaps the easiest of them all, aside from Rodrick. Again, you need 2 groups for this, composed primarily of tanks and healers. Juliah Lockheart can be found in Icewell Keep, so make sure everyone who is helping you is not KoS to Coldain. Enter the Keep's main entrance and head straight across the first floor lobby to the room behind it. You'll find a large room with bleachers on either side. If it is between 8 PM and 8 AM EQ time, the room will have three Councilors in it, including Juliah. If it's between 8 AM and 8 PM, then Juliah will be all the way upstairs in the throne room. You can do this at either location. When your groups are buffed and FM, give Juliah the Ring of the Coldain Council from Doldigun. This respawns her as a much tougher version of herself. She does not cast and hits for 300ish. No other NPCs in the zone will assist her. She fights alone. The tactic I used was to have a level 60 paladin tanking for about 10 to 15 seconds by himself as an enchanter chain runed him, so she got nice and mad at him. At this point have everyone else join in until she dies. Loot Juliah's Head from her. You're almost done!

Getting your 9th ring

Juliah Lockheart was the last kill you need to make. You now have all 6 items from the 6 traitors. Put them in the box that you got from Seneschal Aldikar at the beginning of the quest and remember to combine them. You will need to turn in the full Box of the Guilty and your Velium Coldain Insignia Ring directly to Dain Frosteaver IV himself. This can be a bitch because Dain is on a 7 day timer and uber guilds who are KoS to Coldain are all over him. Whenever you find Dain up, hand over the items to receive your Coldain Hero's Insignia Ring at long last. A faction level of dubious or higher is all you need. In return you will not only receive the ring, but also a no drop Dirk of the Dain, a nice piercing weapon. This is actually the Dirk of the Traitor but the curse has been removed. Return the Dirk of the Dain back to Dain right away and you will not only receive the Dirk back, but also a Declaration of War. You should never ever destroy the Dirk of the Dain, even if you won't use it.

10: Ring of Dain Frostreaver IV: AC10, STR+10, STA+10, MR+10, HP+100,* Effect: Frostreaver's Blessing (Right-clickable and stackable 10 point regeneration, 10 point damage shield, and 10 ATK)

If you haven't already, give the Dirk of the Dain back to Dain and you will not only receive the Dirk back, but also a Declaration of War. You should never ever destroy the Dirk of the Dain, even if you won't use it. Note that this is as far as I have gotten and have never controlled the war for the 10th ring, however I have been in it 4 times so I know what goes on. You're going to need every single person in your guild to participate for this, and if yours is not among the most uber guilds of the server then you'll need a lot of outside help as well. Have you ever seen or heard about the huge war in the Great Divide that lasts 3-4 hours real time? That's what this is.

In order to trigger it you'll need to give the Declaration of War and the Coldain Hero's Insignia Ring to Sentry Badain who is in the left guard tower in front of Thurgadin in the Great Divide. You receive the ring back but not the declaration, and all you need to do for another declaraction is give the Dirk of the Dain to Dain Frosteaver IV. This is why you never want to destroy the Dirk, in case the war fails, which is very likely. There is no possible to way to lose the 9th ring, so if you lose the war, you don't need to start over from anywhere other than getting a new Declaration of War. What happens during the war is, you and your big uber army will be waiting buffed and FM (duh) in front of Thurgadin. After giving Sentry Badain the said items, the war will be triggered. A line of Coldain will spawn in between the towers. Also some named heroes will arrive as well as Seneschal Aldikar behind the waterfall to Thurgadin.

Two of the heroes allow you to communate through them and control a large army of Coldain. I'm not sure exactly how this works, but you want to keep the named heroes alive because if you do you receive extra goodies at the end. The only Coldain that MUST not die is Seneschal Aldikar, I believe. The way you lose is if Seneschal is killed. Also when all the Coldain are triggered, a wave of giants is triggered and they all charge Thurgadin. You can either lose by having your forces wiped out, or if a newbie trains giants to Thurgadin. ALSO when the war is triggered, the entire zone of the Great Divide is despawned aside from the war mobs. There should be no reason for anyone to be there who is not participating in the war. Obviously you'll be doing a lot of shouting to the zone before the war and during the war, warning people to stay out of the zone. Anyway, wave after wave of giants will charge Thurgadin. You just gotta keep killing em.

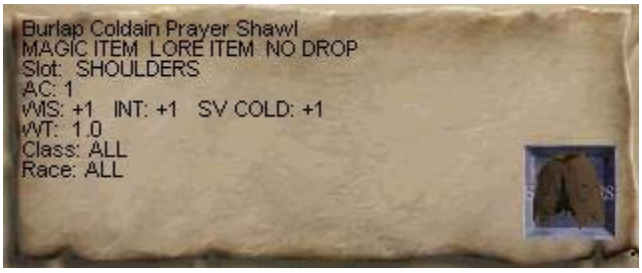

The duration of the war is about 3-4 hours, and throughout the whole thing wave after wave of giants will be charging. There are 2 changes in waves. The first waves are pretty easy, the second change gets harder, and the third change is a bitch. After all waves are destroyed, Narandi the Wretched will spawn. He flurries and hits for 750 damage, has mega HP and procs a fire DoT which deals about 350 damage per real second, not tick. I think the item you need from him is his head. He also drops a lance which is extra and up for lotto. I'm not sure who you turn them into, I think Seneschal Aldikar, but in the end you'll be turning in Narandi's head and the Coldain Hero's Insignia Ring to receive the Ring of Dain Frostreaver IV. You can also receive extra goodies by consulting with the named heroes who survived. Among the goodies are Narandi's Crown and Amulet. Congratulations on completing the most awesome series of quests in EverQuest!

COLDAIN PRAYER SHAWL QUEST WALKTHROUGH

#1 & 2: Burlap and Cloth Coldain Prayer Shawls

I lump these two shawls together because they both involve killing the exact same creatures and are therefore most easily done at the same time. They are both also quite simple, by far the easiest quests in the entire shawl series. They are also the only ones that do not require any form of tradeskills, which may be part of what lures in unsuspecting folks who think that the whole thing is a breeze just because the first two steps are easy peasy. These aren't just the appetizers to the main course quests to come...these are the glass of water that's already on the table when you get there. Enjoy it while it's easy!

First Shawl: Frost Giant Toes

Go to Loremaster Borannin, located in the Temple of Lore in Thurgadin. The temple is at -320, 720. To get there, when you enter Thurgadin and come in past the guarded walls and reach the city itself, turn left. Go past the bank, and when the path forks take the left branch down the slope. The impressive building with pillars all the way at the back is the Temple. Borannin is inside up on the stage off to one side.

You say, "I wish to perform duties for the crown."

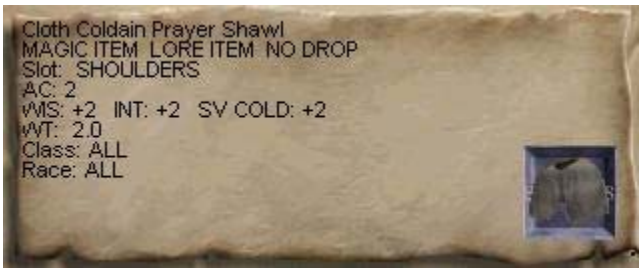

Loremaster Borannin says "Those eager to prove their loyalty to the Dain may do so by completing tasks that I have been commissioned to assign. If you wish to begin your service, return to me with four toes of our enemy, the Kromrif."

[Give Loremaster Borannin: 4 Frost Giant Toes]

Loremaster Borannin says, "Ahh, well done! On behalf of the Dain I thank you for making a dent in the number of our sworn enemy. Please accept this as a token of our appreciation. It is trivial, I know, but if you are as loyal as you claim to be, it will increase in power over time. It just so happens I have a [task] to further demonstrate your loyalty, Verdandi."

The toes drop off of any Frost Giants in Iceclad, East Wastes, Kael Drakkel, or Great Divide. My experience has been that they are less common in Kael than in the other places. So if you are trying this at a level where you get experience from the giants in other zones you might want to consider staying there and enjoy getting some experience and faction in the process. Or, to bypass all of the actual work (and the faction hits if you're friendly with the big brutes), you could try auctioning to buy them, since they are not No Drop. People sometimes save them to sell to folks doing this quest, so this may be the fastest route for you if you can afford it.

Second Shawl: Kromrif Heads
Return to our friend Borannin and...
You say, "what task?"
Loremaster Borannin says, "Every year the Dain replaces the trophies in his trophy room. There is a reward given for the best new trophy obtained. I intend to win this year and I will upgrade your prayer shawl for assisting me. Fill this box with ten Kromrif heads and bring me the combined contents along with the burlap shawl. I will submit the best one for the Dain's consideration."
[Receive: Preservationist's Box]

Go get ten heads and put them in the box. Hit the combine button to make it into a "Preserved Kromrif Heads" and give it to Borannin.

WARNING: The combined box of Preserved Kromrif Heads is NO RENT! If you combine the heads in the box and then camp (or go LD for more than half an hour) you will LOSE it. I recommend waiting to do the combine until you are standing right in front of Borannin, and immediately handing it to him.

[Give to Borannin: Preserved Kromrif Heads & Burlap Coldain Prayer Shawl]
"Loremaster Borannin says, "Ahh, some fine specimens indeed, Verdandi. I will have the best of these mounted at once, wish me luck in the contest! Here is the Cloth Prayer Shawl of our people. Before I forget, the council has issued yet another [chore] for you to complete."

The heads generally drop off of the same giants that drop the toes, with the exception that they do not drop in Kael. These are not No Drop so you can buy them from people. As noted above, the combined box of heads is No Rent, so be extremely careful not to camp out with it on you! The Preservationist's Box that you collect the heads in will stay around until you do something with it, however. As both the box and the heads themselves are pretty heavy, you might want to consider having room for the box in the bank and storing it and your heads there until you have them all to turn in. Or, you could destroy the box when Borannin gives it to you and then prompt him with "what task?" to get another box when you are ready to turn them in.

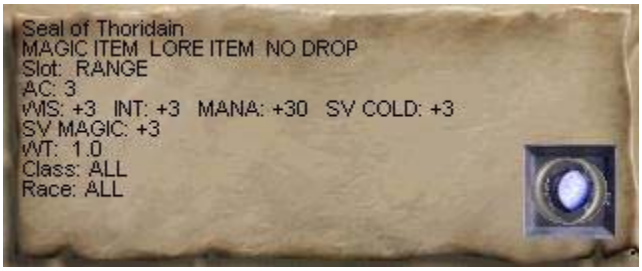

#3: Woven Coldain Prayer Shawl

This is the first of the shawl quests to involve tradeskills. That makes it the step where those who have never tradeskilled in their lives begin to get a glimmer of what they've gotten themselves into. If you find yourself getting seriously bored or frustrated during the duration of this quest, may I gently urge you to seek another way to occupy your time before you inflict the rest of the quests on yourself? If, however, you have enough of the tradeskiller's blood in you, and find a certain delicious thrill in leaping each hurdle, then there just might be hope....

A note to aspiring multiquesters: This quest can be multiquested. However, baking is one of the easiest of the many skills that you will need to improve for the entire series of shawl quests, so you're not saving yourself that much in the long run. None of the later quests can be multiquested. Also, Verant has stated that they are planning to eliminate the ability to multiquest altogether...so be careful if you choose to try that route. I wouldn't risk my snow griffin eggs the day after a patch if I were you.

Detailed Instructions

I describe the quest here in the order it is given to us, to be consistent with the Coldain. However, I recommend doing all of the parts of this quest together in three parts: collecting ingredients and implements, baking the foods, and distributing to NPCs. Each main ingredient in the four dishes come from creatures scattered throughout East Wastes, so to save time finding the right animals I just ran around at random killing any of the four until I had everything I needed. This may not be as much of an issue for trackers or those without any particular hurry. But we all know how it is...when you need a griffin you can't take two steps without tripping over a snow bunny, but when you need a snow bunny....

Basic Baking Information

The most difficult item you will need to bake for this shawl becomes trivial somewhere below 127, probably not a whole lot lower than that. For information on how to improve trade skills for the shawl quest, see "What is the quickest way to raise Xxxxxx skill?". In order to bake you first need a working recipe. You put the ingredients of your recipe into an Oven and press the Combine button. Ovens are stationary containers found mainly in cities, including one in Mordin's Meats in Thurgadin. Anything that can be made in an oven can also be made in a Spit. Spits are portable containers like tailoring kits, which you can carry with you and use to combine your ingredients any time. Spits can be bought from a few certain vendors, including Wevil Doughbeard in the Thurgadin bank, or can be made by smiths. The only advantage to using a spit instead of an oven is that a spit is portable, so that you do not need to be at an oven to make your combine. If you do not plan to do extensive baking beyond this quest, I would recommend ignoring spits completely and just using the oven. Only a few recipes cannot be made in an oven or spit, but instead require a Mixing Bowl. Mixing bowls are another kind of portable container that can be made by potters or bought from vendors in various cities, although not in Thurgadin. Sometimes you can find them on one of the vendors in the Thurgadin bank since players will make one to use once and then immediately sell it back to a vendor so that they do not have to carry around this nuisance container.

There are also implements sometimes used in baking, including pie tins, pots, cake rounds, skewers, and smokers. These are items that must be combined in the oven or spit along with the food ingredients of the recipe. In any non-quest recipe, you should get the implement back whether or not you successfully make your food. However, for the shawl quest recipes you will not get your implement back when you succeed. I am not sure whether you get it back if you fail on your combine. See Pottery Recipes for the recipes to make these implements as well as mixing bowls.

All of the vendor ingredients required for this quest can be bought in Thurgadin. Mordin Frostcleaver in Mordin's Meats sells Bread and Flasks of Water. Perkins Doughbeard in the bank sells Vinegar, Spices, Jugs of Sauces, Cups of Flour, and Milk.

Beginning

When you finish the second shawl quest, Loremaster Borannin tells you about this one. He is found in the Temple of Lore at -320, 720. To get there, after you enter Thurgadin and come in to the town area, turn left. When the path forks off to the right, continue going straight down the ramp. The building all the way at the back of that area is the Temple of Lore, and Borannin is inside on the stage. When you ask him "what chore?" he will give you "Borannin's Seal". Go to Mordin Frostcleaver in Mordin's Meats at -220, -231. To get there when you enter Thurgadin and reach the main town area, turn right. After the first bend to the left, his shop will be close by on the left. Give him the seal, and you will receive "Leif's Napkin".

First Dish

Make a Tundrabear Sandwich.

Combine in Oven: 1 Tundra Kodiak Meat + 1 Jug of Sauces = Saucybear Meat. (trivial <51)

Combine in Mixing Bowl: Saucybear Meat + 1 Loaf of Bread = Tundrabear Sandwich. (trivial <51)

Tundra Kodiak Meat drops off of Tundra Kodiaks in East Wastes. It does not drop every time but both the kodiaks and their meat are common enough that this shouldn't be too painful.

Take the sandwich to Guard Leif, who is at -281, 500 outside the Paladin Guild. The guild is located just before the Temple of Lore, on the right, by the creepy statue with the glowing red eyes. Leif stands on guard just to the right of the entrance to the guild. Be careful not to be confused by Leifur, a completely different coldain that hangs out in the basement of a building and gives the bard armor quests. Give Guard Leif the tundrabear sandwich and his napkin, and he will give you back his Used Napkin. Return the napkin to Mordin and he'll give you "Trita's Napkin".

Second Dish

Make Snow Bunny Stew.

Combine in Mixing Bowl: 2 Bunny Meat + 1 Jug of Sauces = Saucy Bunnymeat. (trivial <63)

Combine in Oven: Saucy Bunnymeat + Spices + 2 Flasks of Water + Pot = Snow Bunny Stew. (trivial 103)
Snow bunnies are all over East Wastes and drop the meat often enough, but they can be hard to see on the white snow. When doing the second combine, make sure that the two flasks of water are not stacked.
Take the stew to Trita Coldheart, who is downstairs in the house at -110, 270. To get there from the entrance to town, turn left and go past the bank. Follow the path when it bends around to the right, and Trita's house is the first one on the left. Give her the stew and her napkin, and she will give you back her "Dirty Pot". Take the pot to Mordin and he will give you "Brita's Napkin".

Third Dish
Make Ulthork Meat Pie.
Combine in Mixing Bowl: 2 Ulthork Meat + 1 Vinegar + 1 Spices = Spicy Ulthork Meat. (trivial 82)
Combine in Mixing Bowl: 1 Egg usable for dough + 1 Milk + 1 Cup of Flour = Clump of Dough. (trivial 17)
Combine in Oven: Spicy Ulthork Meat + 1 Clump of Dough + Pie Tin = Ulthork Meat Pie. (trivial 89-95)
Ulthorks and their meat are common enough. The meat is edible when you loot it, so be careful not to gobble it up before you get around to baking it. (If you get any ulthork tusks while collecting the meat, be sure to save them for making the burin for the seventh shawl. You can make the burin ahead of time if you have the skill and collect all the ingredients.) When making the Spicy Ulthork Meat you must put the two ulthork meats in separate slots, do not stack them. Many different kinds of eggs can be used to make clumps of dough, see the Baking Recipes under "Clump of Dough" for more details on what kinds of eggs can be used and how many clumps of dough each egg makes. You will probably need to leave Velious to get an egg that will work.
Take the meat pie to Lorekeeper Brita, who is at -180, 810 in the Temple of Lore. When you enter the Temple, turn right into the library and she is in the aisle all the way on the left. Give her the pie and her napkin, and she gives you her "Used Pie Tin". Return the pie tin to Mordin and he gives you "Thoridain's Napkin". You are now done with Mordin.

Fourth Dish

Make Snow Griffin Souffle.

Combine in Oven: 4 Snow Griffin Eggs + 1 Spices = Snow Griffin Souffle. (trivial 118-127)

Snow Griffs and their eggs are a great big pain in the patoot to find. They are rare to begin with, and can be extremely rare because of folks after them for this quest. They are No Drop, so you cannot buy them or have someone else collect em. I suggest focusing generally in the areas around and between the bridge, orc fort, and Sleeper's Tomb entrance, as these three places tend to have higher frequencies of griff sightings. When I did this part, my tracker and I found the Elder Griffin southwest of the bridge. Each time we killed him he immediately respawned within druid tracking range and we ran and killed him again. I'd say maybe one in every three or four griffs drops an egg. If you are without tracker or aren't finding any griffins at all, try randomly killing other animals in the area to see if you can get griffs to spawn. The souffle is trivial at less than 127, but this is definitely harder than the previous recipes. Make sure that you do not stack the eggs in the oven, they must be in separate spaces in order to successfully combine. I am told that "griffon eggs" drop or are foraged in other zones, but the only ones that work for this quest drop from the snow griffs in East Wastes.

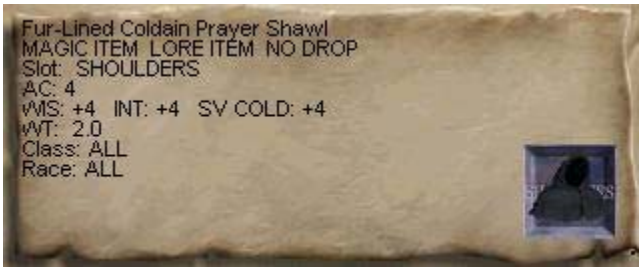

Take the souffle to Grand Historian Thoridain who is right next to our old friend Borannin on the stage in the Temple of Lore. Give him the souffle and his napkin and he'll give you "Seal of Thoridain". Give it along with your Cloth Coldain Prayer Shawl to Loremaster Borannin, and he returns the very same Seal to you to keep, as well as your Woven Coldain Prayer Shawl. Two prizes, whoo hoo!

#4: Fur-lined Coldain Prayer Shawl

You have survived baking...but are you feeling up to pottery? This is the quest that brought the infamous Thurgadin gate potions into Norrath, via the Vial of Velium Vapors which we deliver to Tanik to save his spying self from the giants. Many people, especially those who cannot gate, make the potion that you will need for this quest and use the one charge of Gate: Thurgadin as a last ditch escape when they're stuck somewhere, or as a quick port to Great Divide.

Unfortunately, these things have also shrunk even further the already tiny market for gate potions, leaving many shamans wondering why they dumped all that plat into their medicine bags just to be replaced by a simple bit of pottery. Not that I'm bitter or anything, after about 10k pp spent getting from sow potions to gate potions...Ahem...anyway! On with the quest!

Ask Loremaster Borannin "What is brewing?"
Loremaster Borannin says, "Ahh yes, good to see you again Verdandi. I wish it were under better circumstances that we meet today. For some time now we have sent teams of our finest rogues to gather intelligence for the Dain. Tanik Greskil is one of our best. He was recently sent into the heart of Kael Drakkel on a very important mission and has not returned. He is now long overdue, and fearing the worst, our wise council has asked me to dispatch a rescue party to determine what has become of him and return him to safety. I have decided to give you this opportunity to build upon the trust you have earned from the council. Will you accept this mission?"

You say, "I will accept this mission."
Loremaster Borannin says, "The council will be pleased to hear of your acceptance, Verdandi. Scour the regions surrounding the city of the Giants. Discover what happened to Tanik and, if possible, return him to Thurgadin. If you are successful, remember to hand me your woven shawl. We seem to be running low on them, but I must say Mordin has never had so much help in the kitchen. Anyway, I will eagerly await word of your findings. Good luck, and may Brell protect you."

You say, "Hail, Tanik Greskil"
Tanik Greskil says, "Outlander! Thank Brell you've found me! I am the last surviving member of my unit. Our mission was somehow compromised, the bloody Kromrif knew just where to find us... I can't imagine how they knew. I was barely able to escape with my life and wandered into a trap here. I am badly hurt and need your help."
You say, "I will help you."
Tanik Greskil says, "Quickly, give me a vial of Velium Vapors so I can return home, I am in desperate need of some attention from our clerics."
(Note: Tanik will despawn if you ask the next question in the conversation, so don't ask him about the Velium Vapors if you wish to give them to him at this point.)
You say, "What are Velium Vapors?"
Tanik Greskil says, "Drat! Are you telling me you don't have one with you? Run back to Thurgadin at once and speak with Frundle, she can make you one. I will do what I can to stay alive. I may need to move about a bit to keep from being discovered. Hurry now outlander, you're my only hope."

You say, 'Hail Frundle Frenkler'
You say, 'What are Velium Vapors?'

Frundle Frenkler says, "Ahh, you come seeking my family recipe? After all you've done for our people it's the least I can do. First you must fashion a velium vial, then combine the vial with two small pieces of velium in this jar. That's all there is to it. Please keep the recipe a secret."
You say, "What is a velium vial?"
Frundle Frenkler says "I'm no potter mind you, but if I remember correctly it's a small brick of velium, three crystalline silks, and two glass shards. Then you'll have to finish up by firing it in a kiln with a high quality firing sheet."
[Receive: Velium Purifier]

[Give Tanik: Vial of Velium Vapors] Tanik Greskil says "Thank you, Verdandi. I shall be eternally grateful to you. Should you ever require my assistance I pledge to you my aid. Detailed Instructions

The story line of this quest has you find Tanik once in order to get information and then again a second time in order to give him the Vial of Velium Vapors. Given the difficulty and danger involved to someone who is kos to giants, however, I recommend coming prepared the first time and doing all of your business with Tanik in one trip.

So, first you need your Vial of Velium Vapors. This means you need two small pieces of velium, a small brick of velium, and three crystalline silks. If you are level 50+, you can get all of these along with some experience by hunting the spiders in Velketor's Labyrinth. If you are lower than that or don't want to fight for a group in Velks, head to Crystal Caverns. Kill orc miners for the velium. The small pieces of velium are the stackable kind, make sure to get two. The bricks are not stackable, but you only need one. It might take you 20-30 orcs but they're plentiful in there, so if you're in the area just suck it up and kill or auction to buy from those who are killing them for experience. There are lots of folks farming them for ore at any given time, however, so auctioning might not get you much. For silks, drop down to the bottom of the orc area and find the path over to the spider area. It's a little tricky down there, so you might want to have someone show you the way. You will get the crystalline silks very quickly off of the spiders. When you have these things together, go back to Thurgadin.

The Pottery Bit

For instructions on how to get your pottery up, see "What is the quickest way to raise Xxxxxx skill?". Most non-quest recipes require you to use a pottery wheel and kiln, both of which are found in cities. There are no portable pottery kits like tailoring kits or spits for baking. No worries, though, pottery equipment is pretty easy to find. Pottery recipes other than for this quest always require a pattern bought from a vendor. One type of vendor has patterns for everything except for poison vials. The vendors that have clay and firing sheets have the poison vial patterns. The most basic recipes simply call for a pattern, the right size piece of clay, and a flask of water. This gives you an unfired version of what you need. Then you put the right quality of firing sheet into a kiln along with the unfired item and hit combine to get the usable item. The process of firing non-quest items is trivial at 17, but the velium vial for this quest has a much higher trivial. A few recipes need extra ingredients, like glass shards sold by the clay/firing sheet vendor, or metal bits made by a smith, or a pelt off of creatures. The pottery for this quest, however, is inconsistent with the rest of the skill and does not require a flask of water or a pattern. Those crazy, rule-breaking coldain....

Combine in a Pottery Wheel: 1 Small Brick of Velium + 3 Crystalline Silks + 2 Glass Shards = Unfired Velium Vial. (trivial <123)
Combine in a Kiln: Unfired Velium Vial + High Quality Firing Sheet = Veluim Vial. (trivial 122)

Yes, they misspelled the word Velium in "Veluim Vial".

Go to Frundle Frenkler. She is located at approximately -350, 500. To get to her from the bank, head like you are going to the Temple of Lore. As you go down the ramp towards the creepy statue, on the left are three buildings. Frundle is in the middle building. She will not respond to a Hail, but when you ask her about velium vapors she gives you the Velium Purifier that you need.
Combine in Velium Purifier: 2 Small Pieces of Velium + Veluim Vial = Vial of Velium Vapors. (never fails)
Yes, this item has one charge of Gate: Thurgadin on it. Tanik wants it so that he can gate home, but you can also make it in order to gate yourself to Thurgadin, much to the dismay of alchemists who have gate potions they'd love to sell you but can't even begin to compete with the price of these.

Note about Faction: All reports indicate that this is the step where faction might start to be an issue for you if the coldain don't already love you. Frundle will not talk to you unless you are at least indifferent. It is possible that steps prior to this require you to be at least apprehensive, or that steps after this require you to be at least amiable or kindly. I finished at kindly so I do know that is enough to get you at least through the seventh shawl. At any rate, please keep in mind the nature of the task with which the coldain are entrusting us. We are being told ancient secrets of their race in order to craft increasingly sacred artifacts. They'd be loony to let anyone know these things if they weren't a good buddy. So don't take it personally.

Finding Tanik
Now we head on out to find Tanik. Be careful not to confuse him with Tain Hammerfrost who spawns in a similar manner near the Iceclad bridge but is for a completely unrelated quest. You will only find our Tanik very close to Kael. Simply run up and down the ramp that leads down into Kael from East Wastes, and on the surface ground level along either side of the ramp. When you do this, eventually you'll hit the right spot and one of two things will happen. Either you will see a message saying "You stumble over a pile of snow exposing a Coldain!" and Tanik will appear lying on the ground, or you will get a message saying "You have been ambushed!" and the Kromrif Death Squad will appear and chop you into tiny bits. The Death Squad consists of two to six giants of approximately level 50. You might want to make sure you know the way from the ramp to the zone into Kael, and you definitely want to have jboots or sow, just in case. (Even if you are kos in Kael you can safely zone in as long as you don't take more than a few steps inside.) I triggered the giants once by accident and blew them away with 55 shaman sow, but not everyone has that luxury. Be on your toes if you're working with jboots speed or less, the zone isn't close enough to survive being beaten on the whole way. Also note that Tanik despawns pretty quickly if you don't deal with him right away. I'm told that if you happen to trigger both Tanik and the giants at the same time, Tanik despawns before the giants do...so move carefully and stop the instant one spawns. You can't count on feign or running to the zone to keep you alive to get Tanik before he goes poof.

If you keep getting a lot of giants but no Tanik, you just need to keep trying. That means that you are hitting the right spots but they have all just happened to be giants rather than Tanik. Keep at it, you'll get him. However, if you are having trouble getting anything at all, there is another approach you can use. Basically, there are "invisible men" npcs scattered around the area. When you get close enough to one of them, they emote the message that you see and trigger the spawning of either Tanik or the Death Squad. These invisible npcs cannot be tracked or seen with any see invis spells and are not traps that rogues can sense or disarm. However, as any pet owner knows, when you tell your pet (other than summoned enchanter pets who obey no one) to guard a spot "/pet guard here" they not only stay in that spot but they also turn to face the nearest non-pet NPC. See where this is going? A charmed snow bunny can find these things that none of the rest of us can detect. Either make a pet or charm a pet or bring someone with a pet and put the pet on guard at the top of the ramp. It will swing to face where the nearest trigger npc awaits.

(Make sure that there aren't any other creatures closer to you than the archway at the bottom of the ramp to Kael.)

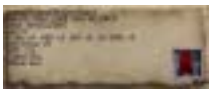

It used to be possible to determine whether you had Tanik or the giants by clicking in the direction of the trap once you'd found it and not yet triggered it. Recent changes in the way invisibility affects trades have eliminated that option, so don't bother clicking around with a coin anymore. Just trigger the trap and see which you've got.

Reports are that you might get really lucky finding Tanik or you might curse the day you heard that shrimp's name. I got two Taniks in a row right off when doing this for myself along with a friend doing his. Others have gotten 20 Death Squads before Tanik would show his face. When he does finally put in an appearance, be very careful not to go all the way through the quest text with him if you want to give him the Vial of Velium Vapors the first time you find him...he will despawn if you ask him "What are Velium Vapors?". You can either go through the conversation up to that point, or just give him the vial without saying a word, and he will give you the note you need.

Take the note back to Borannin in Thurgadin and give it to him along with your third shawl, and receive your fourth shawl!

#5: Silk Coldain Prayer Shawl

"Whoo hoo, halfway there!" Don't we wish that were true? So far you've had to do a bit of tradeskilling and a bit of running around hither and thither, in some moderate danger. The fifth shawl will test you even further, by requiring that you delve a good bit into tailoring and engage in some phenomenal feats of patience in collecting the components. The fifth is no cakewalk, but when you get on to the higher ones, you'll get downright nostalgic about the easy golden days of the fifth shawl...well okay maybe not about collecting the wurm biles.

Ask Loremaster Borannin, "What can I do to further advance my reputation with the coldain?"
Loremaster Borannin says, "Verdandi! Thank Brell you're here. I was about to send one of my Lorekeepers looking for you. It appears that the information Tanik acquired is most perilous indeed. The Dain has called an emergency session of the council and I must attend. We don't have the luxury of waiting for an appropriate task to arise, you must advance as soon as possible. Unfortunately, I have neither the time, nor the components to fashion the next few shawls for you. Ask Rexx Frostweaver about the prayer shawl and follow his direction carefully."
You say, "Hail Rexx Frostweaver"
Rexx Frostweaver says "Hmmm, ye be one o them offlanders, don't ye? I've heard some strange tales o yer kind so don't be tryin' any funny business with me. I know the value of a platinum piece and I'll not get cheated by yer foreign coin."
You say, "I am here for the next prayer shawl."
Rexx Frostweaver says, "Gather five strands of crystalline silk thread and combine them in a sewing kit to make a crystalline silk fiber. Take this container and combine a glowing shardwurm bile with three of the fibers to form a piece of glowing crystalline silk. Five pieces of glowing crystalline silk sewn to your fur-lined shawl will yield a beautiful silk shawl. Become a master in the art of tailoring before risking all you've worked for and be sure to let me inspect your work when it's complete."

[Give Rexx Frostweaver: Silk Coldain Prayer Shawl]
Rexx Frostweaver says, "Splendid, Verdandi, this is beautiful workmanship! As the Grand Historian may have mentioned, our esteemed Dain Frostreaver the fourth is making some important plans with his council. These plans will doubtlessly include you if the Dain deems you worthy."

Detailed Instructions

Alrighty...we need 5 glowing wurm biles and 75 crystalline threads. First, we combine the threads in sets of five to make crystalline fibers. Then we combine three fibers each with a bile in the glowing bile soaker that Rexx (located among the merchants in the bank) so kindly provides, to make five glowing crystalline silks. Then we combine those five glowing crystalline silks with our fur-lined shawl. There are a few steps but they're pretty simple, right? Well...first we need to get that tailoring up!

Basic Tailoring Information
The fundamentals of tailoring are very straightforward. You combine your recipe ingredients in a sewing kit. Many recipes require a pattern, like all armor recipes, but some do not, like silk swatches or small tailored bags. The thing that makes tailoring such a horrible beast to work on is that there is no point whatsoever at which you can improve your skill solely with store-bought items. You must hunt and collect ingredients for every single attempt at anything tailored. Thus, there are long stretches where you will be working on the same kind of item, and therefore need mind-numbing quantities of the same ingredient. The most common of these are spider silks and various kinds of pelts. Hence the joke: "'What's the fastest way to work up tailoring?' 'Well, first you level a necro to 50 to farm for ingredients....'" The scary thing is that it's not entirely exaggerated. For the purposes of this step of the quest, you need to get your skill to 115, which is slow and tedious and frustrating and painful but not yet as heartbreaking as the 150+ stuff. You can get your recipes from the Basic Tailoring Recipes page, where there's even a link at the top to where you'll find pelts and silks. There are links to other kinds of recipes, but if you follow them you'll see that the skill for those is well beyond what you'd need for this shawl.

The other thing that confuses many people is that there are several different tailoring kits. The most basic are the small (two-slot) and large (eight-slot) kits that you can find on vendors in cities all over the place. There are also looms with ten slots in many cities, to allow people to make items that require more than eight ingredients. Looms are stationary containers like ovens or brew barrels that you use on the spot. The only other kind of tailoring container that is readily available is the Coldain Tailoring Kit (eight-slot), sold only in Thurgadin. This is the only tailoring kit that can be used to do some of the high end Velious armor, although old world recipes will all work in it, too. You may also have heard of Deluxe Sewing Kits. These are no longer available except from other players who happen to have them. At one time the large kits sold by vendors had 10 slots on them. Then, perhaps to help the handmade backpack market, Verant decided to change it so that the vendors only sold containers with 8 slots. They could not change the existing ones because people might have stuff in them, so they renamed the original ones Deluxe kits and restocked vendors with the new large 8-slot ones. So the only Deluxe kits in existence now are from large ones that people had when the change was made. The ONLY way to get a Deluxe kit now is to buy it from another player, or find one on a merchant that a player sold to that merchant. Given the existance of looms and the fact that there are only a very few recipes that require 10 slots, it is probably not worth your while to bother trying to find one. For the purposes of this quest, you would do fine with either a large kit or coldain kit. You could also use a city loom if you are willing to travel outside of Velious, as there are none in the cities there.

Combine in tailoring kit: 5 Crystalline Silk Threads = 1 Crystalline Fiber (trivial 51)
Combine in Glowing Bile Soaker: 3 Crystalline Fibers + 1 Glowing Wurm Bile = Glowing Silk Piece (never fails)
Combine in tailoring kit: 5 Glowing Silk Pieces + Fur-lined Coldain Prayer Shawl = Silk Coldain Prayer Shawl (trivial 115)

Note that if you fail at the final combine here, you will get your fourth shawl back. The same goes for the final combines for the sixth and seventh, you will always get your previous shawl back if the attempt to make a new one fails. Also, you can trigger Rexx to give you the Glowing Bile Soaker with the key words "I am here for the next prayer shawl", so if you would rather not lug this thing around, you can destroy it after use and keep going back for another one when you need it.

Biles: These are dropped by all kinds of shardwurms in Great Divide...young, guardian, elder, ancient...you name it. So, you could go out and just start randomly slaughtering them, in which case they will be a very rare drop. Or, you could take advantage of a fantastic feature and look for the wurms that glow! After all, this is glowing wurm bile that we seek, is it not? Unless you have another reason to kill wurms (needing spell drops or getting exp) then I recommend you wait until nightfall and look for the wurms that glow. You need to be careful, because if they are standing near the velium river, spikes of velium on the ground, campfires, or torches in the tunnels, then they may sometimes appear to glow when they have no bile, or may not seem to be glowing when they do have it. So I focused on the wurms outside of the tunnels. There are many of them that roam around to the south of the tunnels, and plenty from there around over to the dragon ring (the teleport spot). So I just ran around at night looking for glowing wurms. They are still pretty rare, I averaged one bile for every one or two (game) nights that I looked. If there are a lot of people looking at the same time, then you might find even less. If there are people out hunting them who are not looking for them, then you might find even more because they'll be respawning as they're killed. It all depends. If you have trouble finding them, kill a few here and there to refresh the population for yourself and others, and hopefully get some glowing ones to spawn.

Some people have reported that they absolutely cannot see the glow. Make sure that you have your dynamic lighting on ("/dynamiclights on"). You could test to be sure by heading back to Antonica and finding a wisp. If you see the wisp glow at night, then my guess would be that there isn't any reason why you wouldn't see the wurm glow too. It is imperceptible during the day, however, so I highly recommend that you spare yourself the heartache of looking during the day and just do it at night. Either way, killing wurms will make new ones spawn and hopefully bring out some new ones with biles. So if you are having trouble finding any, try killing some and see if ones with biles don't turn up eventually. The picture below demonstrates what a glowing wurm should look like the one below, courtesy of Chenier. Thanks to Leafrat Pineheart and Chenier Sangeforet for their screenshots and for not letting it get forgotten!

Crystalline Threads: These drop off of crystalline spiders in Velketor's Labyrinth. As these spiders are right at the zone and all give experience all the way up to level 60, this is a very popular place for high levels. If you are under level 50 you will probably have a lot of trouble finding a group. However, with so many people hunting the spiders you may not have to do any killing yourself. I got most of my threads by going around to each group on the ground floor (not worth the danger of going up the slippery ramps to groups up above unless you're feeling really impatient or know the zone well) and asking them if they had anyone collecting threads. Those that had no use for them agreed to send me a tell when they got any, and I'd just scoot over and loot em.

There are several varieties of spiders in Velks: crystalline spiders, blizzard spiders, and shard spiders. The crystallines are the only ones that drop threads, and are the easiest of the three. Only a few rare spiders called crystalline hunters or blizzard hunters (I don't think there are shard hunters) can see invis. So, you are almost completely safe moving about the spider area with invis up, just watch for the hunters. Shortly after spawning the spiders also invis themselves, so make sure you have some form of see invis on if you want to know where they are. The ground level area is otherwise pretty straightforward, except for an icy patch just past the big mound of snow that is straight ahead from the bottom of the ramp at zone-in. Piece of cake.

#6: Embroidered Coldain Prayer Shawl

Now we're making progress! You already have a fairly high end item. Now you're to come head to head with the most dreaded phenomenon in all of Norrath...Upper Level Tailoring. Rumor has it that the way to defeating the Sleeper lies in finding a way to make it want to be a grandmaster tailor.

When practicing for the sake of the shawl, most tailors simply aim for 158 when components to improve further get really hard to obtain, and then just keep trying the quest. You may still have to make many attempts in order to succeed at this point...grab a box of tissues and welcome to the club!

You say to Rexx Frostweaver, "Am I worthy?"
Rexx Frostweaver says, "To ensure your worthiness you must continue to refine your prayer shawl. Speak with my wife Betti regarding the embroidered shawl and listen carefully to her words. Hurry now, there seems to be a sense of urgency about."
You say to Betti Frostweaver, "What embroidered prayer shawl?"
Betti Frostweaver says, "It will be an honor to assist you in fashioning an embroidered shawl. It is a very demanding product and I can see from the look in your eyes that you desire to burn your sewing kit in our furnace, but if you persevere, your efforts will be richly rewarded. When you are ready you must carefully weave a spool of sacred Coldain thread. Take the thread, this pattern, and the silk shawl and carefully embroider the pattern. The result will be most exquisite. Please show me if you manage to create one."

[Receive: Embroidered Prayer Shawl Pattern]
You say, "What sacred coldain thread?"
Betti Frostweaver says, "Take a woven frost giant beard, two siren’s hairs, two manticore manes and two drakkel dire wolf whiskers, and combine them in a sewing kit. The resulting thread will enhance your shawl’s power when embroidered in a special pattern."

Detailed Instructions

Woven Frost Giant Beard: As you might expect, you'll find these on frost giants. They are somewhat rare, but not excessively so. You can often find them on vendors, although they will want over 130pp for one. (Be careful not to confuse them with the Braided Coldain Beards that some twisted people sell back to the Coldain after killing them.) I have looted beards off of giants in East Wastes, and it seems safe to assume that they probably drop in Iceclad, Great Divide, and Kael as well. I would guess that since they are called Frost Giant beards, they may not drop off of the storm giants in Kael, however, so keep that in mind if you are looking for a beard while hunting in Kael. The beards are Lore, so you may be able to loot an unwanted one if you holler in zones where giants are commonly killed. But this means you can't save up a few in case you need to make more than one try. The beards drop with charges of a strength buff, but are confirmed to work even if the charges have been used.

Siren Hairs: Put on your Patience Hat, these buggers can be a real pain. Note that the hairs you need are just called "Siren Hair" and NOT "Lock of Siren Hair". The locks of hair will not work. The right kind is not stackable. I got my first attempt's hairs with the help of a level 60 wizard who was capable of soloing them. I then learned the hard way that sirens are enchanters, and therefore like to charm stuff. They really like to charm stuff. They charmed my pet first off. That is when I learned that when my pet is charmed and the charm wears off, my pet becomes an independent npc. It continued to fight the siren, but it conned indifferent and did not respond to my commands. This also means that when your pet is charmed and attacks you, attacking your pet back will make it remain agro when the siren dies. A few fights later, a siren charmed my wizzie buddy. When he hit me with the first spell and took out two bubs of health, I ran for the zone. But even with my own shaman buffs and sow, I was dead before I ran the twenty paces to safety. For this reason, if you are capable of soloing them that is actually probably safer. If not, make sure you keep magic resistance as high as possible at all times, and have a plan for what to do when one of you gets charmed. And skip pets unless you are a necromancer or magician and turn into a pile of goo without your pet.

Sirens are found in two camps in Cobalt Scar, as well as in Siren's Grotto, however only the sirens in Cobalt Scar will drop the hairs for the shawl. The two siren camps in Cobalt Scar are both easy enough to reach. One is in the water at the base of the cliff where the little strip of land ends just beyond the zone to Skyshrine. The other is just outside the tunnel to Siren's Grotto. The zone is above the water line, so most people who hunt here set up camp at the zone and pull sirens there. I definitely recommend this if you are grouped with anyone, in case of charming. The hairs are relatively rare drops so you should be prepared to spend several hours, perhaps even a few days. If you have to run into Siren's Grotto, you should be safe unless someone has pulled something to the zone. Just do not move more than a step from the zone, or you could agro the molkor that is just inside. If you do go solo on the sirens near Siren's Grotto, just be sure to keep some form of Enduring Breath up at all time in case one charms you and bring you down into the water to meet her friends.

Manticore Manes: Compared to sirens, manticores are a piece of cake. They were turning green to me at level 53 but should be soloable to any experienced soloer at level 50 or so, lower for very good soloers. They hit hard but are pretty straightforward. They give decent exp too, for an outdoor zone. The manes do not drop every time but are common enough. The manticores are found rarely all around in East Wastes but especially in the hills near the Great Divide zone. They are not all over the place, but I found them quickly enough without a tracker just by lurking in the hills near Great Divide. There shouldn't be much around that is more dangerous than the manticores, but because there's a lot of critters there and the hills make it hard to see very far around you, be on the alert for adds. If you're having trouble finding them, try killing the dervishes and kodiaks and whatnot. Or, you could head out around the Iceclad bridge and Sleeper's Tomb statue and try killing other animals to see if manticores will spawn. These will take time but are one of the easier steps.

Drakkel Dire Wolf Whiskers: Drakkel Dire Wolves can be found in several places where you find Frost Giants. They are on Giant faction so you will take hits to both Kromrif and Kromzek if you kill these wolves. I spent my time on them in Great Divide because they spawn in droves out there, but I would assume that the right wolves in Kael drop them too. Be careful not to confuse the Drakkel Dire Wolves with the smaller Coldain Tracking Wolves also found in Great Divide, or the generic dire wolves found in Iceclad and East Wastes. The whiskers are pretty rare, but luckily other folks hunting wolves are pretty common. I had very little luck yelling that I wanted whiskers and was willing to buff or pay to loot, but I sometimes heard people yelling loc's for corpses with whiskers. I also made it a habit to swing by the canyon with the wizard spires whenever I ran through Great Divide, and checked any corpses laying around. Junk pelts are common drops off of the wolves so you may check a LOT of corpses before you find whiskers, but if they are green or you do not want faction hits, you can eventually get what you need this way. The wolves themselves are easy enough, green at 53 but probably still blue to level 40 or so.

The Combines:
In a Tailoring Kit: 1 Woven Frost Giant Beard + 2 Siren Hairs + 2 Manticore Manes + 2 Drakkel Dire Wolf Whiskers = Sacred Coldain Thread (Tailoring 148)

In a Tailoring Kit: Sacred Coldain Thread + Silken Coldain Prayer Shawl + Embroidered Prayer Shawl Pattern = Embroidered Coldain Prayer Shawl (Tailoring 196-250)

Note that if you fail at the final combine for this shawl, and you probably will at least once, you will get your fifth shawl back. The same goes if you fail at the final combine for the fifth or seventh shawls, you always get the previous one back if you fail to make the new one.

Given the difficulty of this shawl you will probably fail at least a few times before you make it. Some folks have tried as many as 15 times before succeeding, even with tailoring skill in the 150s. Do not give up, many others share your frustration and have gone through the same thing. You've made it too far now to give up!

#7: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl

Take a deep breath. Another shawl...four more trade skills...yikes! That's right, now you'll need to get brewing, fletching, jewelcraft, and pottery all at least over 150. Here again, remember that just because an item is trivial does not mean you can't fail. I failed at one of the easy pottery steps here when my pottery skill was 188. Based on the difficulty in acquiring some of these ingredients, it is probably well worth the time to get your skills plenty high...but you still have a decent chance of success if your skill is not yet to where the item is trivial.

NPC Text

[Give Betti Frostweaver: Embroidered Coldain Prayer Shawl]
Betti Frostweaver says, "Spectacular artistry! I doubt I could have done better myself. You'll have to forgive me, I know time is short and I tend to carry on. This is the pattern for the making of a rune sacred to our people. It will be our final test of your craftsmanship and will put many of your skills to the test, but I trust you'll find the finished product to be more than worth the effort. Show Gilthan the silk shawl, he will set you on the path. May Brell always be with you outlander."
[Receive: Runed Prayer Shawl Pattern & Embroidered Coldain Prayer Shawl]

[Give Gilthan Brittleblade: Embroidered Coldain Prayer Shawl]
Gilthan Brittleblade says 'So, you've been chosen to attempt the rune, eh? Been ages since anyone's even made an attempt. The rune represents the very essence of our people, our culture, and our religion. Take a sea shell runed with enduring breath and a small brick of velium and grind them together in a mortar and pestle. Add water to the powder and model the rune. Fire the rune with water and the best of firing sheets. Show the product to Trademaster Kroven."
[Receive: Embroidered Coldain Prayer Shawl]

[Give Trademaster Kroven: Blank Rune]
Trademaster Kroven says, "Fine piece of work there, Verdandi, especially fer an outlander. Now yer gunna need to make a burin to etch the rune with. Once that's done ye need to kneel in the chapel and recite this prayer with total sincerity in yer heart. If yer plea be heard by our Father Brell he'll bless ya with the knowledge necessary to carry on. With that knowledge you'll take the blank rune, the burin and a fletching kit to etch the rune. Show Grimthor the etched rune and he'll guide you from there."

[Receive: Prayer to Brell & Blank Rune]
You say, "What burin?"
Trademaster Kroven says, "You'll need a fletching kit and a fair bit of skill for this one, Verdandi. Round up a tooth from a swordfish and attach it to an Ulthork tusk wrapped in a Molkor hide."

[Give Grimthor Brewbeard: Etched Rune]
Grimthor Brewbeard says, "That looks about right. You're moving along well outlander. Next you'll be needin to brew up a sacred ink to fill the grooves in your rune. Take Iceclad Cutlass fish oil, liquid velium, and some Royal Kromrif blood, brew them in the barrel here then take the product and the rune and combine them in a fletching kit. Show Talem Tucker the resulting item if yer successful."
[Receive Etched Rune]
You say, "What cutlass fish oil?"
Grimthor Brewbeard says, "Grab a pole and fish the waters in Iceclad until you catch yourself three Iceclad Cutlass fish. Place them in this oil extractor and you'll have whatcha need."
[Receive: Fish Oil Extractor]
You say, "What liquid velium?"
Grimthor Brewbeard says, "Collect a small piece of velium and a bottle of rubbing alcohol and brew them together in a barrel. It ain't easy, but it should prove to be a minor task for the likes of you."

[Give Talem Tucter: Velium Etched Rune]
Talem Tucter says, "I've heard of your mission, Verdandi. I must admit that I had my doubts you'd make it this far. The rune's creation is nearly impossible for even the most skilled of Coldain craftsmen. You should be exceedingly proud. Many have attempted this feat and nearly all have lacked the skill, faith, patience and persistence that is prerequisite for what destiny holds in store for you. You are now ready to use this pattern to construct the sacred rune's casing and complete the runed shawl."

[Receive: Casing Pattern]
You say, "What casing?"
Talem Tucter says, "Combine two platinum bars, a small piece of velium and the casing pattern in a Jeweler's kit. Take the completed casing and the rune and combine them in the same kit. When this is done all that's left is to tailor the rune to the shawl with the pattern. Take the finished product to Borannin, I'm sure he's eager to speak with you."

[Give Loremaster Borannin: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl]
Loremaster Borannin says, "Incredible! Never before has an outlander been skilled and determined enough to craft our sacred rune. You are now worthy of the Dain's most perilous tasks. One is being prepared for you as we speak, please check back with me soon and I will outline the details for you. Until then, Verdandi, allow me to commend you on a job well done!"

Skill Info

Brewing: Ahhh, near and dear to my heart, my very first trade skill! Brewing is quite simple. There are no portable containers, you must use the brew barrels located in or around pubs in cities. You get the ingredients for your recipe, put the required amount of each into the brew barrel, and combine. Some recipes require foraged items, but it is possible to go all the way through brewing strictly on store bought ingredients. Just check your Recipes and Trivials and Supply Locations and have at it.

Note that there are a few varieties of liquids that can be brewed. The originals are the alcoholic brews. These must be placed in a main inventory slot and right clicked to drink. They are intoxicating and will affect your stats, your speech, and your vision. Drinking them will build your alcohol intolerance, which moderates their effects. Then there are the non-alcoholic drinks. Some of these will be automatically imbibed and fill your need for drink just like water or milk do. Others of the non-alcoholic brews cannot be drunk and are instead used in tailoring, smithing, or quests. For most of these it's a good thing that they cannot be drunk. Look at the ingredients that go into them and you'll see what I mean. Ick.

Fletching: Fletching is one of the easiest skills to raise because it's relatively cheap and you can go from 0 to over 200 in front of a single vendor. There are two purposes to fletching: making bows and making arrows. Bows are much more difficult and expensive and totally unnecessary to skill for the shawl, so don't worry about them. Look at the Fletching Supplies page for a vendor that has "arrowheads (3), shafts (4), fletch (3), vane (3), groove nock (3)" and a fletching kit. Be careful, as many vendors have all of the components but no kit. For which recipes to use, many recommend Aoenla's Cheapest Way to Fletch. However, it seems to me that there are cheaper recipes that could be used to bridge some of the levels of skill. If you want to check for yourself, see her Arrow Table and look over the trivials for yourself. You might want to consult a vendor for basic pricing information for each ingredient for yourself. Basically, there are four parts to an arrow: point, fletch, shaft, and nock. Don't be confused by vanes, they are just another kind of fletch. You just put one of each of the four ingredients into your kit and combine them, to make a batch of arrows. Each of the four components come in varying qualities. The higher quality (and therefore more expensive) the components, the better the arrow will be. The progression of trivials is messier than in some skills because there are so many variables, so just watch your charts.

Jewelcraft: Yes, the much maligned jewelcraft. It's more expensive than many skills, but not as bad as some might claim. I went from 0 to 185 in about 2.5kpp. Everything you need for shawl skill can be found on merchants in many cities, although most ingredients are also drops. Only the few most valuable gems are available as drops only. There are two basic kinds of jewelry merchants and they are usually found right next to each other in the jewelry shop or casters guild of a city. See the Jewelcraft Supplies page for specifics. Typically one vendor has 18 gems starting with malachite, the cheapest and easiest, and running up through rubies. These are the ones you will want to focus on while practicing. All of these also drop from various mobs throughout Norrath. The other standard vendor has the very important Jeweler's Kit and the four old world metals: silver, electrum, gold, and platinum. I believe one or more of these metals are also extremely rare drops off of the muddites in Beholder. In a few levels of hunting there I got one electrum bar once, so either they very rarely drop or someone was being silly and fed it to the muddie. Either way, it is definitely not an adequate way to acquire your metal for our purposes here. The jewelry merchant in Thurgadin is the only source of velium bars for jewelcraft, but you won't have to go anywhere near that stuff for the shawl quest.

To actually make jewelry, all you do is put one bar of your chosen metal and one of your chosen gems in the Jeweler's Kit and combine them. In order to make jewelry with stats, you must first have an enchanter magically enchant the metal via their line of spells for that purpose. Jewelry that is made with plain metal that has not been enchanted has absolutely no stats and is only worth anything to a vendor, who will usually pay just a smidgen less than the ingredients. If you use enchanted metal, the vendor will give you back a smidgen more than the cost of the ingredients. However, given the time involved in enchanting even a single stack of metal, the mind-boggling number of stacks of metal you'll be using, and the meditation time required to keep regaining enough mana to do the enchanting, you'll almost certainly want to stick to unenchanted metal for practicing. You could regain the money lost more quickly by spending that time hunting rats. This is, of course, assuming that you do not intend to sell your successes to players, as I suspect most shawl jewelers do not.

The jewelry kit has four slots but you will never have more than two ingredients, at least not for existing recipes. Items get progressively harder by the metal you are working with. Within the recipes for a metal, they also get progressively harder by the gem. Silver is the easiest metal, then electrum, gold, platinum, and velium, in that order. Gems increase in difficulty according to the price of the gem. So, the cheapest gem (malachite) plus the cheapest metal (silver) is the easiest thing you can make. The most expensive gem (blue diamond, not sold on vendors) plus the cheapest metal (silver) is only slightly easier than the cheapest gem (malachite) plus the next metal (electrum). If I've confused you, see the Jewelcraft Trivial Chart for a more obvious visual display. You will probably also want to print this chart to refer to while working, as it is one of the best available for printing purposes.

Just in case you're wondering, Imbued Jewelry works along the same principles as regular jewelry except that only certain gems can be used. Each Norrathian diety (excepting Veeshan) has a specific gem which can be imbued by one of their followers of the right class, and which then gives unique stats. As it is more complicated than regular jewelcraft and does not fill any particular gap in trivials, however, you won't need to deal with it for the purposes of the shawl.

Item and Recipe Details

Runed Sea Shell: The shell that you need only drops off of sirens in Siren's Grotto and has one charge of Enduring Breath. There is a necklace that drops in Cobalt Scar and maybe also in SG that has multiple charges of EB, but it will not work. Likewise there is a shell also called a Runed Sea Shell that drops in CS that has charges of Cloud. That also will not work. You need the item called a Runed Sea Shell that has one charge of Enduring Breath and can only be found in Siren's Grotto. They are not no drop, so buying them might be a good option if you can afford it and cannot get a group sufficient to tackle the sirens in SG. They're not easy. Because I was given my shell, I did not have to fight the sirens so I cannot give any firsthand info on how to find and fight them. I do know that they are at the bottom of the well and cannot be pulled out of the water to the area above the well. You must go down to them to fight them, although I believe it is possible for a sufficiently high level person to single pull them away from their spawn locations. They are tough and the shell is a somewhat rare drop. If you have trouble getting one to drop or getting a group together to attempt them, try auctioning in the zone. At least they have no use outside this quest, so you have a reasonable chance of getting one from others in the zone who get one and don't need it. Once you have your shell and are ready to attempt the first combine, be aware that the trivial is very low so it is unlikely to fail...but the possibility is there. This was so reliable that it was thought to be unfailable until a very recent report that it had in fact failed on someone. Unfortunately, there haven't been any reports on attempts made at very low skill, so it may take a while to find out more specifics. Be aware that the mortar and pestle container used for the first combine is not a pottery item but is used in poison making. See the Poison Vendors for the one nearest you.

Small Pieces and Small Brick of Velium: See the Fourth Shawl Details for the scoop on how to get these.

Etched Rune Pattern or How do I use this infernal Prayer to Brell?? First, go to the Temple of Lore and stand facing the stage. See how there are steps on either side of the stage that lead up to it? Go stand in the area to the left of the stage at the base of the steps on that side. Then recite the prayer that Trademaster Kroven gave to you. Make sure you are saying it in /say and without any misspellings. Don't put it into a hotkey on the five different lines, it must be typed out all in one big long shot. You will get the message "You have been inspired!" and the pattern will appear on the ground in front of the stage...NOT at your feet . There are reports that it is on a two hour timer, so it is possible that you might do everything right and still not get inspired if someone has done it within two hours of you. Try coming back later. Note also that there seems to be a problem getting the pattern to appear if the Grand Historian Thoridain is in his usual spot on the stage. If he is out of place you may need to petition for him to be escorted back before Brell will see fit to provide you with the pattern. For reference, since you can't read the prayer scroll and type it at the same time, the prayer is:

"Oh Brell, Thank you for protecting me and seeing me through my trials. Forgive me for the things I think and say and do that displease you. Please reveal to me your will and bless me with the patience and obedience to do that which you desire. Amen."

Swordfish Tooth: These only drop from the swordfish in Siren's Grotto. They are found in a few different places, but are often in the company of the seahorses. Seahorses are are quite a handful because of their nasty stuns, so I recommend going for the spawns up top where it is possible to single pull one swordfish. Using invis, from the West Wastes zone follow the tunnel turning right when it branches. When you reach the open area, hug the right wall and move up to the edge of the water. The little corner of land against the wall next to the water is reported to be a safe spot if you sit all the way back. We only found one swordfish there but I do not know for sure whether there are ever more than that, so plan accordingly. You'll probably have to move out into the middle of the pool to get close enough to pull, so make sure your puller is careful to watch the wanderers that come near the water out there. Also while pulling and fighting, be careful not to get too close to the two static spawns on the far side of the pool opposite our little ledge. My group of three 54+ took out the fish but it was a tough fight. We fought on the underwater ledge at the base of the little waterfall, but tried to stay away from the far side of it to avoid agroing the static spawns just across the water. The tooth does not drop every time, but they are reasonably common.

Ulthork Tusk: Ulthorks are found in East Wastes and in Siren's Grotto. The tusks are tradeable but valuable because they can also be turned in to one of the Othmir in Cobalt Scar for a quest that sometimes results in a high end gem reward. This is good because it means people might hang onto them and not just destroy em immediately, but it also means that they might cost you a bit if you try to buy. Ulthorks are very common in Siren's Grotto, but are also much tougher. So, if you're in no particular hurry and want some exp, that's a great place to try. The ulthorks in East Wastes are equally common and much easier, so that's a faster source. I was given my tusk so I never had to actually hunt for it, but my understanding is that you while they don't drop every time, you shouldn't have to nearly exterminate the species to get one tusk. I believe the ulthork are most common in the northeast portion of East Wastes. Just follow along the water north from the bridge.

Molkor Hide: Here again I was given my hide so I don't have any first-hand experience with getting one. As far as I know, molkor are only found in Siren's Grotto where they are very common. The hides are tradeable and not good for much else, so you could probably get one from other folks if you can't round up enough troops to do them yourself. I don't know how exactly how common they are, but the friend (/wave Xlint) who gave me mine gave me five all at once, so I'm guessing they're not terribly rare.

Iceclad Cutlassfish: These must be fished out of the water in the Iceclad Ocean but can be fished even if you start with 0 skill. In order to fish, you must buy a fishing pole and some bait from one of the many vendors in just about any city that have them. You have to use a skill hotkey out of the banks of hotkeys that come premade, same as the ones for kick or hide or forage. Equip your fishing pole in your primary hand, sit or stand in front of water, hit your hotkey, and if you have any bait on you, you will cast your line. After a pause of maybe 20 seconds or so, you will get a message saying whether or not you caught anything If you did catch something it will appear on your cursor. In addition to fresh fish, you will also sometimes get tattered sandals, rusty daggers, or fish scales. Sometimes you might lose your bait, and each time you catch something you will use up one bait, so be sure to bring along at least a few stacks, maybe even a whole bag full. Some zones also have other special things that you can fish up. For our purposes in Iceclad, the only thing you need to save will be the Cutlassfish. You may get a lot of other stuff before you get the ones you need, just keep on a-fishin' and eventually they'll come. In Norrath as in anywhere else, fishing is a hobby best suited to the patient. So sit back, pop open a short beer, and contemplate the waves. Of course, you might first want to find somewhere relatively out of the way from wandering mobs to avoid any unpleasant interruptions. I used a nice little clearing at the water's edge just a wee bit north of the bridge. It's steep getting down there but very secure and serene.

Royal Kromrif Blood: Get thee to Kael, and bring along some help. The blood only drops off of either of the two Iceshards, Klaggan Iceshard or Vorken Iceshard. I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting either of them, but I am told they spawn in the "Keep area". Klaggan is on the throne and Vorken is to his right. They apparently have long respawn times compared to the other giants in the area, and both sometimes have placeholders up. They do not always drop the blood but it is quite common. If the giant has any on him, it can be pickpocketed by a non-kos rogue with very high skill. Pickpocketing always runs the risk of creating agro, however, so make sure your rogue is aware of the danger and prepared to flee. I am told that if it is successfully pickpocketed the giant's loot table will eventually reset after an unknown period of time, perhaps half an hour or more. It seems that a sufficiently talented single group of level 55-60 can crawl their way to the area and kill these giants. A 60 wiz friend of mine also had a 60 shadowknight feign-pull one of them to the zone where the two of them killed it. So it seems that the giants themselves are not as much of a problem as getting to them. The blood, however, is not no drop. So, if you cannot find a way to get it off the giants yourself, you can always try to buy. I am told that the going rate is 5k though, so that won't be an option for everyone. This ingredient and the runed seashell are the ones that holds up the seventh shawl for most folks.

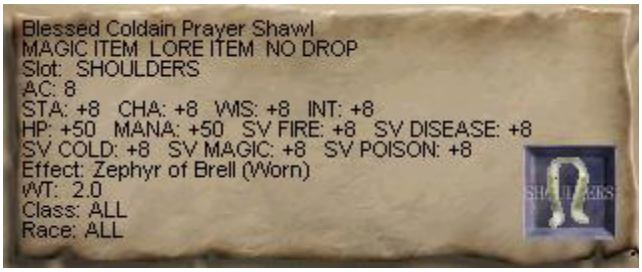

Rubbing Alcohol: Praise Brell! Rubbing alcohol is now available in Thurgadin! Go pay a visit to the bartenders of The Icy Mug at -50, 100 in Thurgadin for your very own locally sourced rubbing alcohol. While you're there have a drink in memory of the mortician in Cabilis, whose sales have dropped off rather suddenly.

#8: Blessed Coldain Prayer Shawl

Shhhh...if you listen carefully you may hear the whispers on the wind, murmurs predicting change for the Blessed Coldain Prayer Shawl. It seems that wearers in the realm of Test have found their shawls changed. At first they were alarmed, finding that the Zephyr of Brell effect on the shawl no longer grants flowing thought, only a 20% extended duration III focus effect. Yet as the first wave of panic subsided and they examined their shawls more closely, they found that the shawl now has what was never before seen on any item in Norrath...two effects! This super strength extended duration is now joined by a separate effect of flowing thought III!

But we must not jump to conclusions, we must be content to wait and see. For what transpires in the land of Test does not always continue unchanged to the Norrath in which the rest of us reside. The shawls worn by those of us who walk not the ways of Test still have the old Zephyr of Brell: flowing thought II and an extended duration of 15% on all buffs that we, the wearers cast. Mind ye well that we have no guarantee our fickle gods will find the presence of two effects satisfactory and effective. Magic being a complicated thing, we may have a wait before they conclude that they can bestow these changes upon the rest of us, or perhaps even decide that it must be discarded entirely. Only time will tell....

NPC Text

Note: There are two versions of the Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl. The first is the one you create during the seventh shawl quest, while the second is the one that you get back upon showing the first to any of a few different coldain involved in the eighth shawl quest. I have noted throughout the NPC text which version you can give to which coldain (of those who ask for it) and which version they will give you back. Those who accept either version will only give the Approved version back. Therefore, you can only summon the Dain ONCE*, so you may wish to have all of the armor prepared beforehand so that you can be sure he will be up when you are ready to turn it in. If you give the Original to someone who only returns the Approved, you will lose your ability to summon the Dain at all. You can tell the two versions apart by holding it on your cursor and having someone cast the spell Identify on you (or cast it on yourself). If it identifies as "Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl", it is the "Original" version. If it identifies as "Approved by the Dain", it is the "Approved" version.*

[Give Loremaster Borannin: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Original)]
Loremaster Borannin says, "Incredible! Never before has an outlander been skilled and determined enough to craft our sacred rune. You are now worthy of the Dain's most perilous task. You should seek an audience with the Dain immediately. Show him your Runed Prayer Shawl; he will give you the task that has been prepared for you. If the Dain is away show your Shawl to Chamberlain Krystorf and he will call for him."
[Receive: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Original)]

If the Dain is not up...
[Give Chamberlain Krystorf: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Original)]
Chamberlain Krystorf says, "One moment the Dain has been waiting for you. I will call for him.. oh here he is now, show your shawl to him."
[Receive: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Approved)]

You say, "Hail, Dain Frostreaver IV"
Chamberlain Krystorf says, "YOU do not speak to the Dain so formally, Barbarian! Maybe you should return to our temple to learn more of proper custom when in the presence of a Dain of Thurgadin."

[Give Dain Frostreaver IV: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (either Original or Approved)]
Dain Frostweaver IV says, "Ah Verdandi. I was hoping to see you. We require your skilled hand. The Armory is overtaxed preparing armor for the war that we are preparing to wage on the Giants of Zek. We need you to help by creating some Field Plate for a mission that is near to execution. Go see Loremaster Solstrin in the Hall of Ancestors, give him these orders. He holds the lore recorded on how to make the field plate."
[Receive: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Approved) & Royal Coldain Orders]

[Give Loremaster Solstrin: Royal Coldain Orders]
Loremaster Solstrin says, "So, the Dain needs your assistance with the Field Plate. The Dain must trust you a great deal to impart the wisdom of our armor creation to you. Here are the tomes. The first details how to make the basic armor, the other details how to begin [working with gemstones]. If the Dain is asking you for them you should place them in an [Issue Kit]. May Brell guide your hand friend, good luck to you."
[Receive: Forge of Icewell Keep & Precious Gem Study]

You say, "What about working with gemstones?"
Loremaster Solstrin says, "Aye, gems are placed within the armor. Brell is pleased with this fusion of ore and gem. The combination produces a sturdy piece of armor. You will need some Etching Tools to work with the gems. If you ask Meg Tucter for a set, she should have some lying about."
You say, "What about the issue kit?"
Loremaster Solstrin says, "The Standard Issue Kit is what we issue to soldiers at the beginning of their mission. I have this empty one here. Before I give it to you, could you show me your Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl? I would like to see how skilled you are.'
[Give Loremaster Solstrin: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (either Original or Approved)]
Loremaster Solstrin says, "Amazing, your skill is truly great. I am sorry that I had doubted you. Here is the empty Issue Kit. Place a full set of Imbued Royal Velium armor in it before giving it to the Dain."
[Receive: Issue Kit & Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Approved)]

You say, "I need a set of Etching Tools"
Meg Tucter says, "Oh, really? There are not many that work in faceting gems. I am surprised to see your interest. You can have this old set of mine. If you are working with Royal Velium and want to give it to someone else, you can use these etching tools and your jewelers kit to engrave the piece for them. Be careful though, because once the armor is engraved you cannot remove it and it will be useless to the Dain. There is no need to return the tools, Talem recently made me a new sturdy set. Brell bless him."
[Receive: Etching Tools]

Note: Click the convenient COMBINE button on the box before handing it to the Dain! If you do not, he will indeed hand the unwanted box back to you...empty.

[Give Dain Frostreaver IV: Coldain Standard Issue Kit]
Dain Frostreaver IV says, "Excellent work Verdandi. If I didn't know I would assume this was made by our most skilled artisans. You must hurry, General Bragmur has formed camp in Iceclad. Take the kit to the General, he had to drudge forward without any armor. His [mission] must be a success if we hope to successfully defend Thurgadin against the Giants."
[Receive: Approved Issuing Box]

You say, "What mission?"
Dain Frostreaver IV says, "After General Bragmur has equipped the armor you have created for him, give him these orders. He is a skilled diplomat and will need to reach the pirate Gnomes. We must enter into a pact with them. We will supply them with the velium that they need to build their silly gadgets, and they will take their ship back to Antonica and call for reinforcements from our ancestors. We hope they will accept this pact, after all Brell has been known to align himself with Bristlebane whom the Gnomes of Iceclad follow. You may be an important [factor] in their success"
[Receive: Expedition Orders]

You say, "What factor?"
Dain Frostreaver IV says, "I fear that spies lurk in every corner. You may need to help the General reach the gnomish camp if the Kromrif has gotten word of our efforts. You should call on any allies that you have to assist in case they ambush you. Brell bless you Verdandi, good luck."

You say, "Hail, General Bragmur"
General Bragmur says, "Please keep yer voice down I am busy here. If you do not mind I would ask that ya kindly leave."
[Give General Bragmur: Approved Issuing Box]
General Bragmur begins to put the armor, "Finally the Dain has gotten word of my arrival here. I await his final orders before proceeding."

[Give General Bragmur: Expedition Orders]
General Bragmur says, "The final orders, follow me closely! I pray that the Kromrif have not learned of our plans to align with the gnomes."

{General wanders off, waves of fighting with wolves and giants ensue....}

Commander Vjorik shouts, "The tracking wolves have found the Coldain! To the South West, Charge him!"
Commander Kvarid's corpse shouts, "Arghhhh! Though you have felled me your plans shall not succeed! Rallos will destroy you all for invading our lands!"

{...when you've successfully reached the gnomes...}

General Bragmur says, "Lo there gnomes! Tell me is your camp located nearby?"
Ratop says, "Yar ye scruvy bearded dwarf, just over tha hill there."
Ritap says, "Arrrrrrrrrrr!"
Captain Nalot says, "Hrm? Who is scuffin' around out here?"
Captain Nalot says, "Arrrrrr what is it ye want?"
General Bragmur says, "Well ya see sir, we have a surplus of Velium that we would not mind sharing with you for yer tinkerin' but would ask a favor in return for it."
Captain Nalot says, "Velium eh? Well there matey lets hear what you have got to say!"
Adisson Stubblechin says, "Arrr. Ahoy there, ya hull-faced, landlubbin', mast rats! Keep them beady eyes open! Remember, yer mean, nasty, pirates! Keep yer eyepatches square as a jig and yer rapiers sharp as a barnacle!"

General Bragmur says, "I represent the Dain in this matter, we would like for you to use yer Icebreaker there to head to Antonica and bring reinforcements for the war that is preparing to ensue. We are needin' all the help we can get against the Kromrif."

{Avatar of Below spawns.}

Avatar of Below's voice echoes through the area. "The efforts to help the Coldain and bring them together with the gnomes of Iceclad is quite impressive. There will be no doubt that they will continue to increase in power until they can overtake the Giants of Zek. Hey there, what is that on your shoulder?"
[Give Avatar of Below: Runed Coldain Prayer Shawl (Approved)]
Avatar of Below holds the shawl up close to one eye to look at the rune sewn into it. He smiles to himself and then drops it to the ground and places one hand on it. A bright blue glow starts to emanate in the snow, then there is a sudden flash! The Avatar has dissipated. All that is left behind is the Shawl lying in the snow, shimmering with a new power. Verdandi slowly bends down to pick it up, and is infused with a blessing from Brell.
[Receive: Blessed Coldain Prayer Shawl]
General Bragmur says, "I must go tell the Dain of these events immediately!"
Captain Nalot scratches his head, "Yar ya do that ya crazy Coldain."

Detailed Instructions

A Note about Meg: Meg Tucter offers instructions about how to combine a piece of imbued royal velium with etching tools in a jewelry kit to make a tradeable version. This version is NOT something that can be used to make the set for the quest, so don't do it unless you don't need that piece for the quest. Etching it makes the piece tradeable and also makes it wearable by both plate and chain classes, where the original No Drop pieces are only wearable by plate classes.

Basic Smithing Information
The most basic smithing recipe uses a flask of water, a certain size and type of ore, and the right kind of mold for the item you wish to make. The most common kinds of ore are just plain "ore", "medium quality ore", "high quality ore", and "velium". Ore and medium quality ore are only available on vendors. High quality ore is available both as a drop and in limited quantities on vendors. Velium is only available as a drop. They all can come in small pieces, which are stackable, and small bricks, large bricks, and blocks, which are not stackable. You generally need to use one of the conversion recipes to turn your raw ore into bits, sheets, or folded sheets, which then go into the recipe for whatever you wish to make.

When smithing you combine your ingredients in one of the stationary forges located throughout a city. (You may have heard of the infamous "never fail forge" located deep in Dalnir. It sounds too good to be true because it is. This forge will indeed never fail, but only works on the recipes for a certain quest, and cannot be used for anything else.) Simply put your ingredients into the forge and hit combine. Often when turning your raw ore into one of the prepared states (bits, sheets, etc) you may get back more than one when successful, so watch for notes about a recipe's yield when buying or collecting ore. You may also sometimes need one of the several different kinds of hammers that are sold by ore vendors. When a hammer is required, you will get it back whether or not you succeed at an attempt, so they can be reused indefinitely. There have been recent reports that the Velium Smithy Hammer or Combine Smithy Hammer can be used in place of the plain ole generic Smithy Hammer. If the recipe specifically calls for one of the specialty hammers then you must use that one, but if it only calls for a regular Smithy Hammer, you should be able to use either of the others. Please report it to the message boards if you find recipes with which this does not hold true.

You may also have heard of cultural smithing. Cultural recipes are those that can only be done by a person of the right race and can only be created in one of the special forges in that person's home city. The special forges cannot be used for regular recipes or by anyone who is not of the right race. If you try to open the forge but get a message saying that you cannot use that forge, it is because it is one of the cultural ones. There should also be regular ones elsewhere in the city, so keep looking. See the Smithing Recipes section for specifics about the various things you can smith.

Velium Hound Fur: Velium Hounds are found out in Western Wastes. It seems that getting sufficient fur might not be as easy as it sounds. Definitely bring a tracker or ten to help you beat the farmers to the wolves. The wolves share a spawn table with the other animals in the area so you could try killing other roaming animals. The only problem with this is that eventually all that is left are various creatures like cragwyrms that give Claws of Veeshan faction hits, so everyone leaves the zone until the next time the zone is reset. The wolves are not on any faction so the dragons don't seem particularly concerned when they see you killing them. If you are good faction with the dragons, you can probably ignore them. Just be aware that there is one dragon near the Temple of Veeshan zone which is on the Kunark dragon Ring of Scale faction, and one in the wyvern caves which appears to be on Guardians of Veeshan faction, to which everyone is kos. If you haven't the resources to collect them yourself, you can buy them from other people but expect to pay anywhere from 500pp to 3k EACH, depending on your server. If you find that as disturbing as I do, tell the developers that you want it fixed. You might suggest making them a lot easier to collect or No Drop or Lore. Paying 24k for just one portion of the components to one step of a very long quest for a single item is just ridiculous.

Velium: Get yerself back to Crystal Caverns or Velketor's! Remember your old buddies the orc miners and the crystalline spiders? They miss you! Go pay them another visit. If you still have an aversion from collecting last time, you can also try the various icy-looking golems in places like Velks or the Tower of Frozen Shadow or down the pit in Icewell Keep. The blocks are a new drop with this shawl, however, so it's possible they might not be in all these less used zones yet. There are extra recipes provided in the Overview of the Recipes up above so that you can convert the different kinds of velium that drop into the large bricks and blocks that you need. There is no need for you to use all of those recipes if you have enough large bricks and blocks.

Coldain Velium Temper: You can acquire the temper you need for making folded sheets either by buying from the vendor in the Thurgadin Mining Company at 41, -111 in Thurgadin, or by making it yourself. It costs about 26pp each to buy, and about 6-15pp each to make, depending on whether you loot or buy your research components. Allspice can be bought from several different alchemy vendors around Norrath, including Hulda in the Thurgadin bank. Brown algae is available only from Blumblum Swigwater, one of the othmir in Cobalt Scar. Celestial solvent is only available from a few Poison Vendors in Luclin. There is a list of research components that work for celestial essence here.

Unrefined Gems: These drop from the shimmering geonids in the Wakening Lands cave and from the wyverns in Western Wastes. They are No Drop. As far as the geonids go, only the shimmering ones drop gems. However, every single shimmering geonid drops one of the three gems, so you shouldn't have to kill the poor things for ages. Gems from them seem to drop in about the right proportions so you shouldn't have to kill dozens and dozens to get that last right gem unless you have an exceptionally unlucky streak. Regular geonids are placeholders for the shimmering ones, so you might also have to kill some of them to get spawns. You do take very big faction hits on all of the geonids so you might want to focus on wyverns if geonid faction is important to you.

As for the wyverns, the burrowing wyverns seem to drop a gem every time like the shimmering geonids do. They also seem to sometimes drop off of huntresses and hunters. These are on Claws of Veeshan faction, but do not give faction hits when killed. As with hunting velium hounds, be careful if you are near the Temple of Veeshan, as there is a dragon on Ring of Scale faction around there, or in the wyvern caves, as there is a dragon on the kos-to-everyone Guardians of Veeshan faction in there. You might want to consider targeting the wyverns when you are killing velium hounds, to collect both ingredients and help refresh the spawn table at the same time.

General Bragmur: You will find him to start the action bit at -3400, 9000 in Iceclad. His respawn is about 4 hours in case you happen to catch him shortly after someone else has killed him or completed the quest. Reports are that his pathing during the trek to the gnomes is a little flakey, he will sometimes disappear and then reappear as he is walking, so don't panic. It might be reassuring to have a tracker in case you lose sight of him entirely. Some folks have also reported that it helped to have someone who can feign, to agro the General and lead him back to the appropriate route in case he warps back to his spawn point or otherwise gets off track. He also sometimes seems to agro on members of your party even if they are not kos and did not do anything to attack him, so it may be good to have an enchanter at the ready with Memory Blur loaded. As you travel, you will encounter five waves of attack from the giants and their wolves, some harder than others. It sounds like three coordinated groups of 55+ are required at the very barest minimum. Remember that you will also be agroed by all the green wolves and giants and obnoxious dervishes that you encounter along the way. It might be smart to have a few folks as the designated greenie brigade to help keep them out of everyone else's hair while fighting the real attacks. Please give those nasty dervishes a whack for me while you're at it. You may also wish to walk the path ahead of time through all of the locs indicated below, so that you know where the General should be going and are prepared for each fight.

- First Wave: (-3550, 7550) 4 Kromriff Tracking Wolves spawn and attack. These cannot be snared or rooted. Unsure about stuns or mezzes. The wolves are not difficult.
- Second Wave: (-2200, 7250) 4 Frost Giant Skirmishers spawn and attack. They hit for 178 max I believe and were again easily dispatched.
- Third Wave: (-1100, 5950) Commander Kvarid and 3 Frost Giant Skirmishers spawn and attack. (They spawn on the General.) They cannot be stunned, mezzed, rooted or snared. The Frost Giant Skirmishers are 55ish, and Commander Kvarid is 57.
- Fourth Wave: (1500, 2250) 5 Kromriff Tracking Wolves spawn and attack.
- Fifth Wave: (3700, 2650) Commander Vjorik and 5 Frost Giant Skirmishers spawn and attack. (They spawn on the General.)

The various wolves and giants that you will fight during this process also drop some very nice gear. So far reported have been the:

- Snowchipper: 1HS 10/20, AC 5, str/sta/dex 5, sv cold 10, 3% to parry, weight 4.0, recommended level 51, war,rog,brd,shd,pal,rng/all
- Drakkel Wolf Claws: 1H Piercing 10/20, AC 10, dex/int/cha 10, sv cold 10, hp/mana 40, weight 2.0, recommended level 51, effect: Wandering Mind, brd,rng,wiz,mag,enc,nec,bst/all
- Spiked Velium Mallet: 1HB 10/20, str/sta/dex 5, sv cold 10, 3% to block, weight 1.0, recommended level 51, effect: Frostcall, war,rog,mnk,brd,shd,pal,clr,dru,shm,rng/all
- Ice Forged Helmet: head item AC 18, str/wis/int 5, sv cold 10, hp/mana20, weight 4.0,recommended level 51, effect: Velium Shards, war,brd,shd,pal,clr,rng/all
- Tracking Wolf Collar: neck item AC 10, wis/int 5, hp/mana 40, sv cold 10, 2% to dodge, weight 1.0, recommended level 51, all/all

Forge of Icewell Keep Royal Forge of Icewell Arms Set.12 - Royal Field Plate
==========
The field plate of the Coldain Royal Armory is lightweight and good for any expedition where battle may occur. The following are the summarized steps of the process:

1. To start you will need to first hammer out the folded sheets of velium that the armor is constructed from. Place a Block of Velium in the forge, as it become more malleable begin to hammer it flat with a Velium Smithy Hammer. When flat pour some Coldain Velium Temper onto the sheet. Fold the sheet over on top of itself and hammer it down flat once again.

2. Now begin to work on the Velium Rings that will link the pieces of the armor together. To make a set of rings, places a large brick of velium into the forge and heat it up a bit. Take a metal file and file off small pices and shape them into a circular shape. Cool them in a vial of coldain velium temper to strengthen them.

3. Take a break from the hot forge and prepare to fashion the soft fur padding which will be placed on the inside of the armor. The fur will serve as comfort and to keep the body warm. The softest fur is found from velium hounds. Take a patch of their fur and sew it into patterns that will fit inside the armor. Use silver thread to accomplish this.

4. The preparations are now complete. You can now begin to fashion the armor. Use a Coldain Smithing Hammer to hammer the folded velium sheets into a plate mold. Once the sheet has been hammered into the mold. Begin attaching the velium rings to the outer areas of the armor that will connect to the other pieces. Then begin attaching the soft fur padding to the insides of the armor piece. For creating Bracer and Boots you need 1 folded velium sheet. For vambraces gauntles and helmet you will need 2 folded velium sheets. For the breastplate and greaves you will need 3 folded velium sheets to fill the mold.

Royal Forge of Icewell
Precious Gem Study v.1
==========
Now that the armor is created you can begin to set a gem within it. We have found three gems that when faceted will seem to add an aura that radiates from the armor. It is our firm belief that Brell himself is pleased with the fusion of Ore and Mineral and bestows powers unto the armor. Three different gems are used in the process of creating this armor: Diamonds, Emeralds and Sapphires. These are not normal gems that circulate through the economy; these are gems pulled fromthe raw ore and faceted to draw upon its powers. To facet the unrefined gem you will first need a set of fletching tools to chip away the raw edges. Place the gem firmly in your jewelry kit and slowly chip away at all sides until a nice smooth edge is formed. When you have finished with the lapidary place the piece of armor you wish to work on into your jewerly kit. Use your etching tools to farm a base for the gem to fit in. Then place the gem into the base you just created and you are finally done. The optimum effect of gems has been found as follows: Diamonds for the Breastplate and Greaves, Sapphires for the Vambraces and Bracers, and Emeralds for the Boots, Gauntlets and Helmets.

VEESHAN'S PEAK KEY WALKTHROUGH

This quest begins at Emporer Ganak in Trakanon's Teeth. The reward for this quest is the key to Veeshan's Peak the highest level dungeon in the game.

In order to obtain the key Emporer Ganak will require you to give him four pieces. The first three are obtained via questing. These include the Medallion of the Jarsath, Medallion of the Kylong and the Medallion of Obulus. Full details on those quests can be found by following their respective links.

The fourth piece must be obtained by killing the poison dragon Trakanon in Sebilis. This of course requires you to first obtain the Sebilis Key.

Turn in Trakanon's Tooth along with the three completed medallions and you will be rewarded with the key to Veeshan's Peak.

Medallion of Jarsath

This quest begins at an NPC named Xiblin (-5781, 2938) on the chessboard island in Timorous Deep. It constitutes on fourth of the Veeshans Peak Key quest. Xiblin can pieces the medallion of the Jarsath back together for you but you will first need to bring him the pieces. These pieces are scattered throughout Kunark.

- The first piece can be found laying on the ground in the Swamp of No Hope at location +52, +2935. It lookslike a bag. If the medallion is not there then you will have to sit and wait for it to respawn.

- The second piece can be obtained by killing an NPC by the name of an Ancient Jarsath in Firiona Vie. This NPC is pretty tough(low 40's) to solo for melee types without fear kiting so you might want to bring some back up. He is a rare spawn. You will likely have to wander around slaughtering every NPC you come into contact with for a few hours to get him to spawn.

He is easy to detect when he does spawn however as he is the only undead being in the zone so just bring someone along who can sense the dead and have them cast it every couple of minutes.

- The third and final piece can be found on a Bloodgill Marauder in the Lake of Ill Omen. He spawns at the entrance to the underwater ruins in the middle of the lake (-380 -51). He is level 40 even.

Return these pieces to Xiblin and he will reward you with the Medallion of the Jarsath.

Medallion of the Kylong

This quest constitutes one fourth of the Veeshans Peak Key quest. It begins at an NPC named Professor Akabao (-2400 -3000) in a tower in the Lake of Ill Omen. He can piece together the medallion of the Kunzar for you if you can acquire the pieces for him. The pieces are scattered throughout Kunark.

- The first piece can be obtained via the Niblik's Gems quest in Chardok. Niblik's Gems quest this quest begins in Chardok at a non-aggro NPC named Niblik. He will reward you with a piece of the Medallion of the Kylong in exchange for a ruby and a black sapphire.

- The second piece can be found laying on the ground upstairs in the library of Kaesora. Be careful when you go visible here if you attempt to do it solo as mobs will attack you from downstairs in the library even though they do not appear to have a line of sight.

- The third and final piece can be found on an NPC by the name of Verix Kylox who spawns in Karnor's Castle. Be sure to bring a decent group for this one.

Medallion of Obulus

This quest begins in the Burning Woods at an NPC named Slixen Klex. His location is -681.59, -1120.76, -559.74. He is level 50 and was indifferent to both good and evil races.

- The first piece can be obtained by tracking down Sselot. Sselot can be found in the Warslilk Woods (3956, 296). He will not give you his portion of the medallion unless you give him a burnished stave. These can be found randomly in Chardok. Sselot is an Iksar so may KOS you without bard or enchanter assistance.

- The second piece can be found on The Pained Soul, found in Trakanon's Teeth near the entrance to Sebilis. /loc is -1811 -4365, right under an arch.

- The third piece can be found on the rotted skeleton (2250 -5140) who can be found in the Dreadlands not far from Karnor's Castle. If coming from the zone from the Frontier Mountains take a left and follow the zone line up in to the mountains. The placeholder spawns quickly and is normally a different type of skeleton. He is a static spawn so is easily spotted. Spawn time appears to be about 8 minutes.

Medallion of Jarsath + Medallion of Kylong + Medallion of Obulus + Trakanon's tooth, all givin to Emporer Ganak will = Veeshan Peak Key

The Scepter of Shadows -

Quest Details and Dialogue

Getting the Scepter in Akheva

Getting ready for the dialogues...
Head to Akheva. From the zone in, run straight, past the fallen pillar. When you get to the next room, head right. Going left will take you to Va'Dyn. Go down the next set of stairs. To your right is IV. Go left, you will see a large "gate" with two "shades" standing on the left and right edges of this gate.

Pull the far right shade, it will bring 2 mobs. Clear them, then move in hugging the right side. Cross directly over the open area and kill the alien midget mob that is by a set of stairs. Then run up those stairs where you will fight 3 alien mobs that have 4 arms each. They only hit for ~160s and can be slowed. Be sure to root the last one. Sometimes they will drop a "Ans Xundrau xi Tekar" 13/25 3 to all stats dagger, melee and caster only.

At this point, you can drop down from the stairs and you will see a number of green con "Sacrificed Remains" and a "Shimmering Presence."

From there you will need items from a mage and a necro to continue the script.

Dialogues and actions...
A shimmering presence's voice invades your mind.
'Shadows can not exist without light. Bring me a wisp stone so that my balance can be righted by their soft glow.

This points to a MAGICIAN SPELL:
Name: Summon Wisp
Level: 4
Type: Summon a No-Rent Miscellaneous Object
Actual Effects: Summons Wisp
Description: This will summon a "wisp stone" that acts as a light source when worn for those who cannot see well at nighttime.

Give the summoned Wisp stone and Spirit of Akelha `Ra will spawn.

You say, 'Hail, The Spirit of Akelha`Ra'
The Spirit of Akelha`Ra 's hollow eyes look up at you. You have the distinct impression that she can see right into the darkest shadows of your soul. She opens her mouth to speak but the sounds you hear come from inside your mind. 'Greetings mortal, thank you for releasing me from my [tormented prison].
You say, 'what tormented prison'
The Spirit of Akelha`Ra appears to be fading in and out of existence as you speak to her. The spirit's voice fills your mind. 'I am Akelha`Ra, once high priestess of Luclin and leader of the Akheva. This form you see before you now is a fading remnant of my former existence. The storm was the cause of my imprisonment in the world of undying [spirits].

You say, 'what spirit'
The Spirit of Akelha`Ra says 'We Akheva are immortal entities placed in this plane by the mistrees of shadow. We are her most perfect creation. Death has no meaning to us, as even in death we find rebirth through the power of the mistress. My imprisonment was caused by my seperation from the power of the mistress by [Atenha`Ra]. It was she who sent the storm to destroy me and all that followed me. '

You say, 'who is atenha ra'
The Spirit of Akelha`Ra says 'It is more then a little ironic that Atenha`Ra is a reflection of myself. An entity created from my own consciousness, a reflection of a shadow. She now holds the seat of grand power in [Vex Thal], and I have not the power to gain entry to the city, let alone face her. You must find my scepter that was lost in the storm to gain entry to Vex Thal. The scepter has likely lost much of it's power from being shattered. Once it is reassembled you will need to merge a Orb of Luclinite with a source of celestial power inside the scepter. The spirits whisper that the emperor of the Shissar holds the power to manipulate such energy. Be weary of him, he is heralded as the slayer of gods, the defiler of realities. '

You say, 'what Vex Thal'
The Spirit of Akelha`Ra says 'Vex Thal is the sacred home of the Akheva. The place where Luclin's power directly touches this world...ungh... I can not summon the frame of my scepter in my current weakened state. I need a soul to regain my pow...' As she speaks you can see her slowly fade out of existence. You wonder how long her spirit will stay with this world. She seems entirely unable to speak to you now, and can only muster the strength to point at the ground at Dimi 's feet. Dimi reaches down a picks up a small emerald off the ground, but it disappears silently into the shadows. Akelha`ra looks as if she is trying to speak again. '

This points to a Emerald Essence. Hand it in to collect the Scepter Frame that will allow to reassemble the Scepter.

You say, 'what frame of your scepter'
The Spirit of Akelha`Ra opens her mouth to speak, but the voice in your head is no longer audible. You reach forward to touch the fading shadow of a creature and draw back in horror as your hand disrupts the spirit before you. She evaporates into the shadows once more.

SERU BANE WEAPON

It's divided into 3 parts to make 1 weapon. First, we make some tempers. This requires:

1 Fungoid Sap (Ancient Shrikers in Deep)
1 Meteor Dust (Sun Revenants/Rocks in Grey)
1 Shiknar Ichor (Shiknar in Fungus Grove)
1 Shissar Blood (If you don't know where it comes from, you should be in Ssra right now =P)

This makes 1 temper. Difficult, but not extremely hard to make at 250 skill with the brewing trophy. Average is 2 fails per stack.

Next, we need the Yttrium Steel Sheet to be made. This is very difficult for even 250 smiths with the trophy. This requires:

2 Small Bricks of Yttrium Ore (Various mobs all over luclin)
1 Temper (from above recipe)

Now then, once you have your steel sheet, you combine it with another temper, a few molds for the appropriate weapon, and viola, one weapon capable of melee damage against Seru! This combine is trivial at 175 smithing and the result is no drop, so YOU must have the skill at this point. Everything else is droppable up to here!

SHISSAR BANE WEAPON

Go to the basement of Ssra. There is a mine filled with Soriz Slaves, etc...

An extremely rare drop from that area is ore used for Corrupted Shissar Weapons. The other component is Shissar weapons from elite temple guards.

KEY TO LORD INQUISITOR SERU

PART I (S Seru zone)

I looked for Torsten Reidan and hell I couldn't find him. Which of the 4 buildings is he in? Hand, shield, club thing, and eyeball symbol above the door. I whent in each one and did the wall port on the 3rd floor for each of the 4 buildings and no dice. Am I missing something? Does he only spawn at a certain time?

He's in the Heart Praesertum (south east building I believe) on the first floor. He's in one of the rooms behind the first doors that you come to when you enter the building.
You say, 'Hail, Torsten Reidan'

Torsten Reidan says 'Oh, hello there. Sorry I didn't notice you before I was thinking of an old friend. This used to be his room. I guess no one else has been assigned to these quarters.

You say, 'What old friend?'

Torsten Reidan says 'His name was Bregun Dorey. What a funny little halfling he was. He had a good heart and worked hard. That is up until one day he just started acting odd, very nervous like he was hiding something. Then all he would talk about was Bixie Treats and then show off some weird heirloom charm bracelet. His time for the question came and due to his odd behavior he was sent to Marus Seru. I sure wish I knew how he was doing.

Head out to Marus Seru and fine Reotho at one of the Recuso camps:

You say, 'Where is Bregun Dorey?'

Reothe says 'Bregun Dorey... I have not heard that name in many years. I will never forget it. He was very unique, always running around with an odd metal hat on. He swore that it would keep out the mind probing magics of the Question. I know where he was last seen, and I will tell you if you help by getting us some [supplies].

You say, 'What supplies?'

Reothe says 'Get me two Bark Potions, a Spring Crystal, and a Harvest Crystal. I will tell you where I last saw him headed. If you buy them in Sanctus Seru do not tell them you are giving aid to the Recuso or you shall be prosecuted as well.

Head back into Seru, get him what he wants and hand it in:

Reothe says 'This is great! We can treat our ingured and have something to eat for weeks. I can vaguely recall Bregun heading towards the Lair of the Netherbians. You might ask a guard there if they have seen him.
You gain experience!!

Legionnaire Dalini is like the 3rd guard down from when you zone from Marsus Seru, he says something like no loitering when you hail him. The Dawnshroud Cider triggers Bregun to spawn so he won't be up without doing that part. Legionnaire Dalini is the only guard in Netherbian that will spawn Bregun. If he is not up, you can kill the guards to reset the spawn without taking faction hits.

You say, 'Where is Bregun Dorey?'

Legionnaire Dalini says, 'Yeah maybe I know Bregun. You know, I sure am thirty with all this guard work I am doing. I know what I want, some Dawnshroud Cider! Yeah, go fetch me a cider and we will see if I remember anything when you get back.

Vantak Mere sells Dawnshroud Cider for 52pp at loc 830, neg 600 in S.Seru.

Legionnaire Dalini says, 'Ahhh! That is the stuff! Yeah I saw the halfling with the crazy hat. He runs around in the caverns, hanging out with the Troglodytes. It seems he somehow befriended them, I guess they enjoy his madmen antics.

Bregun is in the Trog cave .. he's straight in from the main hallway, second right from Dawnshroud Peaks, in one of the caves.

You say, 'Hail Bregun Dorey'

Bregun Dorey says, 'Trog trog trog trog?'

You say, 'Trog'

Bregun Dorey says, 'Ha! What are you talking about?! Strange thin goyu are. Wait a minute, come closer. Are you from Norrath?

You say, 'I am from Norrath'

Bregun Dorey says, 'I thought so, you armor looks to be made from things found not here. Have you heard of Rivervale?

You say, 'I have heard of Rivervale'

Bregun Dorey says, 'Good.
Say 'Good' and he he will respond.

Give him 4 Bixie Crunchies (not stacked).

how do i make bixie crunchies?
Bixie Parts (Misty Thicket) and Frosting is the recipe. Trivial at 46 according to eqtraders

When you give him the crunchies you get a bixie charm to Torsten then you run back and forth relaying messages between the two. Reward is:

PART II

Find Euzan Jurek in the Hand building, 2nd floor. Tell him you were sent by Torsten.

You say, "Torsten sent me"

Euzan asks you to replace records to show that they had already been through the question thing that occurs. He gives you Records forgot the name.

File cabinet is on the 3rd floor in the heart building (SE building) Each hallway that ends with a portal to take you to the Praesertum's have a door off them, inside these rooms you will usually see 1-2 npcs maybe none....around the corner in a little alcove is the file cabinet

Give the replacement files to the File Cabinet, you get back the old records and a guard spawns and attacks you, He was green and died rather quickly. There were no faction hits at all for killing him

When I tried to get the new records from the File Cabinet I was getting rejected because of bad faction with the filing cabinet which seems like a bug to me. I went into wolf form and the cabinet became indifferent and then the trade in worked. Sneak from behind works as well.

Take the old records to Euzan (and Earring) and he rewards you with the 2nd earring.

PART III

Now you must goto Katta, and find Tilbok Furrunner.
Tilbok Furrunner is located @ neg144, neg1971.

It's in a large castle on the second floor.
He will give you a satchel and tells you to return the satchel with reports from each Constillium from Sanctus Seru - the plan is to get into the Arx's chambers and kill Seru.
Tilbok Furruner reads through the report, hands you a small satchel then starts to explain, 'Finally news from Euzan. I knew that it would take a long time to get planted within Seru, but i still worried about their mission constantly. This report shows that you have earned trust from Euzan, so I in turn will show the same trust. Euzan and Torsten were placed in the city for information. They are deep undercover and risk their life everyday. Every person in that city is ingrained with the [purpose] of either destroying Katta or converting his people.'

Your faction standing with Hand of Seru got worse.

Your faction standing with Eye of Seru got worse.
Your faction standing with Hand Legionnaries got worse.
You gain party experience!!

You say, 'what purpose?'

Tilbok Furrunner says 'The teaching in the city is that Katta feigned his death to blame it on Seru. When in fact Seru actually poisoned Katta. The crusade that Seru leads is false and must be stopped. We must gain access to Seru's [chambers] and destroy him and show the city the truth.

You say, 'what chambers?'

Tilbok Furrunner says 'We do not know much about Seru's Chamber, that is what we need you to find out. This will require great effort on your part. We need you to head into Sanctus Seru and bring back reports from each Consillium. I do not know who will have these reports, and I have only heard rumor that they exist. Return to me with the Satchel full, and your Etched Earring.

ALTERNATIVE ADVANCEMENT

General Information:

The alternative advancement system allows anyone who has purchased and installed EverQuest(r): Shadows of Luclin to further customize their high level (51+) characters. Customized features include things such as minor permanent statistic and resistance boosts, unique skills based on your class (warrior, magician, etc.) or archetype (fighter, magic user, and priest), and general skills available to everyone. These skills include anything from enhanced metabolism to improvements in skills already available to your class. You can also gain a title for your character based on the choices you make when enhancing your character. These titles will be visible to other players.

Gaining these alternate skills and powers will require the expenditure of experience points. You will be able to funnel incoming experience either into your alternative advancement pool or into your standard experience pool. You can even choose to have a percentage of your incoming experience go into each pool. Once enough experience has entered the alternative advancement pool, you will receive skill points that may be used to acquiring your enhancements. When you acquire the proper amount of training points, you will have the option of choosing which enhancement you wish to gain. Some enhancements may have prerequisites. A prerequisite is a skill or skills that you will need to obtain before you can get the enhancement.

Experience loss due to death suffered by the character will be taken from the "Leveling" experience pool, it will not impact your alternative advancement pool.

You can access the Alternate Advancement menu by clicking on the ADV button in the inventory screen.

Note: All characters will be able to open the interface screen for Alternate Advancement. But only those that actually purchase the Shadows of Luclin expansion will be able to earn any of these abilities.

Also Note: EverQuest is an evolving game. We may add new abilities or change existing ones at a future date. We will, of course, attempt to keep changes to a minimum and will update this document to reflect such changes.

Unlocking Archetypes and Class Abilities:

There are three types of Alternate Abilities: General, Archetype and Class Abilities. Each is a stepping stone for the next. Attaining a certain number of General abilities is required before you can learn any abilities from your Archetype. Similarly, you will have to attain a prerequisite number of abilities from your Archetype to start gaining abilities from your Class group. There are also level requirements for each of these levels. Keep in mind that you can't gain any of these abilities unless you own Shadows of Luclin.

These requirements are in addition to any prerequisites needed for some abilities.

General abilities: A character must be level 51 or higher to open up the General abilities.
Archetype abilities: A character must have spent six skill points on General abilities and be 55th level or higher to open up the Archetype abilities.
Class abilities: A character must have spent twelve skill points on Archetype abilities and be 59th level or higher to open up the Class abilities.

Skill Levels and skill points:

Once you have gained enough experience points toward alternate advancement (enough to fill the experience bar) you will earn one skill point. It is these skill points that allow you to purchase alternate advancement abilities. Each ability will require a certain number of skill points to purchase one skill level with that ability.

Every ability available through the Alternate Advancement system has a skill level associated with it. For many of these abilities there is only one skill level, meaning that once you purchase the ability you have attained all the skill available for that ability. But several abilities have more than one skill level. Gaining a second or third (or more) skill level in an ability will improve that ability. However, it is important to note that a second skill level is usually more costly than the first, and the third more costly than the second. That expense is rewarded, however. If additional skill levels cost more, the skill level also means a greater increase in the power of that ability.

Let's look at two examples:

Improved Natural Strength has five skill levels. However, each skill level for this ability costs one skill point. Each time you raise your skill level with this ability you gain two points of strength.

Healing Adept (from the Priest Archetype) has three skill levels. Each skill level costs progressively more skill points. The first skill level costs two skill points for a 2% improvement in healing spells. The second skill level costs four points, but improves that percentage to 5%. The third skill level costs six skill points, but raises the percentage to 10%.

Titles:

Upon attaining enough skill ranks with the Abilities of each type (General, Archetype and Class), characters will be granted a title to show their efforts. The title for anyone meeting the requirements for General Abilities will be given the title Baron or Baroness. Other titles will be given as the character progresses through their alternate advancement, but we don't want to spoil the fun by giving them all away here.

Ability Types:

There are two types of abilities, passive and active.

Passive abilities are always on and always have effect. Most abilities are passive. In fact, all General and all Archetype Abilities are passive.

Active abilities need to be triggered by the player. Every active ability has a Refresh Timer associated with it. This indicates how long it will be after using the ability before it can be used again. Refresh Timers are given with two times, in game time and real life time. For every minute that passes in the real world, 20 minutes passes in the game world.

General Abilities:

The General abilities are available to any character level 51 and above that has the Shadows of Luclin expansion. All General Abilities are Passive.
Every skill level for every General ability costs one skill point.

Improved Natural Strength: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Strength by two points.

Improved Natural Stamina: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Stamina by two points.

Improved Natural Agility: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Agility by two points.

Improved Natural Dexterity: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Dexterity by two points.

Improved Natural Intelligence: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Intelligence by two points.

Improved Natural Wisdom: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Wisdom by two points.

Improved Natural Charisma: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base Charisma by two points.

Improved Natural Fire Resistance: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base resistance to fire by two points.

Improved Natural Cold Resistance: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base resistance to cold by two points.

Improved Natural Magic Resistance: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base resistance to magic by two points.

Improved Natural Poison Resistance: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base resistance to poison by two points.

Improved Natural Disease Resistance: (5 skill levels) - Each skill level with this ability increases the character's base resistance to disease by two points.

First Aid: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the maximum percentage of healing that the character can grant using the Bind Wound skill. The first skill level will increase the maximum by 10%, the second by 20% and the third by 30%.

Improved Natural Run Speed: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level will increase the character's base run speed. This increase only adds to the character's natural running speed, it will not function with any other speed increase such as Spirit of Wolf or riding a horse.

Improved Natural Lung Capacity: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the time that the character can hold his breath. The first skill level improves lung capacity by 10%, the second by 25% and the third by 50%.

Improved Natural Metabolism: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level reduces the character's need for food and water. The first skill level reduces the consumption of food by 10%, the second by 25% and the third by 50%.

Improved Natural Regeneration: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level improves the character's ability to heal. Each skill level increases the character's base regeneration by one point every six seconds.

Archetype Abilities:

The Archetype abilities are available only characters level 55 and above that have spent six skill points on General Abilities. There are three Archetypes - Caster, Melee and Priest.

Enchanters, Magicians, Necromancers and Wizards can choose abilities from the Caster Archetype.
Monks, Rogues and Warriors can choose abilities from the Melee Archetype.
Clerics, Druids and Shaman can choose abilities from the Priest Archetype.

Hybrids can choose their abilities from the Archetypes of both of their parent classes (with a few abilities excepted).

Paladins, Rangers and Beastlords receive both Priest and Melee Archetypes Bards and Shadowknights receive both Melee and Caster Archetypes.

Important Note: Some Archetype abilities are restricted and can only be acquired by certain classes. For example, Spell Casting Mastery improves the use of specialization skills. Hybrids don't get specialization, therefore they can not gain the Archetype Ability to enhance specialization. Other restrictions will be listed in the skill description.

Caster Archetype Abilities:
Abilities from this Archetype are available to Enchanters, Magicians, Necromancers and Wizards, as well as Bards and Shadowknights. The first skill level of each Archetype ability costs two skill points. The second skill level of each Archetype ability costs four skill points. The third skill level of each Archetype ability costs six skill points. All Archetype abilities are passive.

Channeling Focus: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level reduces the chances of spell interruption due to damage or movement. The first skill level reduces the chance of interruption but 5%, the second skill level increases the reduction to 10% and the third brings the reduction to 15%.

Mental Clarity: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level improves the character's ability to recover mana. Each skill level increases the character's base mana recovery by one point every six seconds.

Spell Casting Deftness: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level reduces the casting time for beneficial spells with a casting time greater than four seconds. The first skill level reduces the casting time of these beneficial spells by 5%, the second skill level increases the reduction to 15% and the third brings the decrease to 25%. Bards can not gain this Archetype Ability because they do not have 'casting times' over four seconds.

Spell Casting Expertise: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level negates any chance of spell failure (fizzle) for spells of a certain level. The first skill level prevents failure of spells under 20th level, the second skill level prevents failure of spells under 35th level and the third prevents failure of spells under 52nd level.

Spell Casting Fury: (3 skill levels) - Gives the caster the ability to do 'critical' damage with direct damage spells. Each skill level increases the chance to do critical damage with a direct damage spell. The first skill level gives a 2% chance for critical damage, the second increases the chance to 4% and the third increases the change to 7%.

Spell Casting Mastery: (3 skill levels) - Each skill increases the caster's chance of successfully using his specialization skill for the spell he is casting. This works for all spell types. The result is a reduced chance of spell failure (fizzle) and a greater chance of a reduction of the mana cost for the spell. The increase in the caster's chance to successfully use his specialization is 5% for the first skill level, 15% for the second skill level and 30% for the third skill level. Hybrids can not gain this ability because they do not have the specialization skill.

Spell Casting Reinforcement: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the duration of caster's "buff" spells. The first skill level increases the duration of buffs by 5%, the second raises the increase to 15% and the third raises the increase to 30%. The only Caster that can gain this ability are Enchanters.

Spell Casting Subtlety: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level reduces the amount of attention casting spells generates for the caster. The first skill level reduces the amount of 'hate' generated by spell casting by 5%, the second skill level improves the 'hate' reduction to 10% and the third improves the 'hate' reduction to 20%.

Melee Archetype Abilities

Abilities from this Archetype are available to Monks, Rogues and Warriors, as well as Bards, Beastlords, Paladins, Rangers and Shadowknights. The first skill level of each Archetype ability costs two skill points. The second skill level of each Archetype ability costs four skill points. The third skill level of each Archetype ability costs six skill points. All Archetype abilities are passive.

Combat Agility: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level gives the character an increased chance to avoid being hit in combat (damage avoidance). The first skill level increases the character's ability to avoid being hit by 2%, the second skill level raises the damage avoidance increase to 5% and the third raises the increase to 10%.

Combat Fury: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the character's chance for a critical hit (or grants a percentage where none exists). With all three skill levels, non-warriors will approach the basic ability to critical that warriors have. But a warrior with three levels of this skill will retain his a significantly greater chance to critical than any other class.

Combat Stability: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level gives the character an increased ability to reduce the damage he takes in combat (damage mitigation). The first skill level increases the character's damage mitigation by 2%, the second skill level raises the damage mitigation increase to 5% and the third raises the increase to 10%.

Fear Resistance: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the character's resistance to fear affects. The first skill level increases the character's resistance to fear by 5%, the second skill level raises the character's added resistance to 10% and the third raises the increase to 25%. This ability also increases the character's chance to break out of fear once it has taken hold.

Finishing Blow: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level gives the character a chance to kill an opponent with a single blow. The opponent must be fleeing and must have less than 10% of their hit points remaining. The first skill level grants a 1% chance for a finishing blow, the second skill level raises the chance for a killing blow to 2% and the third raises the chance to 5%. Note: classes without a natural chance to critical - which is all classes but warriors - will need to gain at least one skill level of Combat Fury for this ability to work.

Improved Natural Durability: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the character's natural hit points (hit point total without any buffs or magic items). The first skill level increases the character's hit points by 2%, the second skill level raises the hit point increase to 5% and the third raises the increase to 10%.

Natural Healing: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level improves the character's ability to heal. Each skill level increases the character's base regeneration by one point every six seconds. This healing is in addition to the increase gained from Improved Natural Regeneration and any natural bonuses to regeneration due to race.

Priest Archetype Abilities

Abilities from this Archetype are available to Clerics, Druids and Shaman, as well as Beastlords, Paladins and Rangers. The first skill level of each Archetype ability costs two skill points. The second skill level of each Archetype ability costs four skill points. The third skill level of each Archetype ability costs six skill points. All Archetype abilities are passive.

Channeling Focus: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level reduces the chances of spell interruption due to damage or movement. The first skill level reduces the chance of interruption but 5%, the second skill level increases the reduction to 10% and the third brings the reduction to 15%.

Healing Adept: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level improves the character's effectiveness with instant effect healing spells. The first skill level increases the effectiveness of the character's healing spells by 2%, the second skill level raises the healing increase to 5% and the third raises the increase to 10%.

Healing Gift: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level gives the character a chance for a 'critical' healing effect when casting instant effect healing spells. A critical effect will double the healing granted by the spell. The first skill level grants a 3% chance for a critical healing spell, the second skill level raises the critical healing chance to 6% and the third raises the chance to 10%.

Mental Clarity: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level improves the character's ability to recover mana. Each skill level increases the character's base mana recovery by one point every six seconds.

Spell Casting Fury: (3 skill levels) - Gives the caster the ability to do 'critical' damage with direct damage spells. Each skill level increases the chance to do critical damage with a direct damage spell. The first skill level gives a 2% chance for critical damage, the second increases the chance to 4% and the third increases the change to 7%.

Spell Casting Mastery: (3 skill levels) - Each skill increases the caster's chance of successfully using his specialization skill for the spell he is casting. This works for all spell types. The result is a reduced chance of spell failure (fizzle) and a greater chance of a reduction of the mana cost for the spell. The increase in the caster's chance to successfully use his specialization is 5% for the first skill level, 15% for the second skill level and 30% for the third skill level. Hybrids can not gain this ability because they do not have the specialization skill.

Spell Casting Reinforcement: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the duration of caster's "buff" spells. The first skill level increases the duration of buffs by 5%, the second raises the increase to 15% and the third raises the increase to 30%.

Class Abilities

The Class abilities are only available to characters level 59 and above that have spent twelve skill points to purchase Archetype Abilities. Obviously a character can only choose Class Abilities belonging to their class.

There are two types of Class ability. The first type is similar to the Archetype abilities, with three skill levels. The cost for those types of skills are always the same. The first skill level of these Class abilities cost three skill points. The second skill level costs six skill points. The third skill level costs nine skill points.

The second type of Class ability only has one skill level. However, that one skill level costs a different number of skill points for each ability. The skill point cost for each of these abilities is shown in the ability description.

All Class Abilities are passive unless a refresh time is shown.

Bard Class Abilities

Acrobatics: (3 skill levels) - This ability reduces the amount of damage that the Bard takes from falling. Each skill level increases the damage reduction.

Adv. Trap Negotiation: (3 skill levels) - This ability reduces the Refresh Timer for the Bard's Sense Traps and Disarm Traps skills, making those skills available sooner after use. Each successive skill level further reduces the time needed between uses of these skills.

Ambidexterity: (1 skill level - cost 9 skill points) - This ability makes the Bard more skilled with the use of two weapons by increasing his chance to successfully dual wield.

Body and Mind Rejuvenation: (1 skill level - cost 5 skill points - Prerequisite: 3 skill levels of both Melee Archetype abilities Natural Healing and Mental Clarity) - This ability gives the Bard one additional skill level of both Mental Clarity and Improved Natural Healing.

Extended Notes: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the range that the Bard's group songs can reach. The first skill level increases the range of the Bard's group songs by 10%, the second raises the range increase to 15% and the third makes the increase 25%.

Instrument Mastery: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the Bards skill with all instruments, even beyond the normal limitations.

Jam Fest: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level of this ability increases the effective level of the Bard with songs that use level in their calculation (for example, some songs calculate their damage based on the bard's level). Note: this does not allow the Bard to sing songs above his level.

Physical Enhancement: (1 skill level - cost 5 skill points) - This ability gives the Bard one additional skill level in their Natural Durability, Combat Agility and Combat Stability abilities.

Scribble Notes: (1 skill level - cost 3 skill points) - This ability reduces the time required for the Bard to memorize songs by about 50%.

Singing Mastery: (3 skill levels) - Each skill level increases the Bards skill when singing, even beyond the normal limitations.

Beastlord Class Abilities

Ambidexterity: (1 skill level - cost 9 skill points) - This ability makes the Beastlord more skilled with the use of two weapons by increasing his chance to successfully dual wield.

Body and Mind Rejuvenation: (1 skill level - cost 5 skill points - Prerequisite: 3 skill levels of both Melee Archetype abilities Natural Healing and Mental Clarity) - This ability gives the Beastlord one additional skill level of both Mental Clarity and Improved Natural Healing.

Double Riposte: (3 skill levels) - This ability gives the Beastlord a chance for a double riposte any time he successfully ripostes. The first skill level gives the Beastlord a 15% chance for a Double Riposte, the second skill level raises that chance to 30% and the third skill level makes the chance 50%.

Pet Discipline: (1 skill level - cost 6 skill points) - This ability allows the Beastlord to better control his warder. You will be able to funnel incoming experience either into your alternative advancement pool or into your standard experience pool. You can even choose to have a percentage of your incoming experience go into each pool

/alternateadv 30

Will put 30% of your experience into your alternate advancement experience bar. There is also a slider bar to control percentage

BARD EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Start

The Quest starts in the Dreadlands where you must find Baldric Slezaf. He is located in the Undead pyramid city near the teleport areas. He was inside the far west pyramid, location was positive 770, positive 9700. (Thanks Talespin Spellwind for location.) Baldric Slezaf will ask you for four items. They are the top part of page 24, the bottom part of page 24, page 25, and a Lute made by Forper Fizfla.

The quest for the top part of page 24 starts in Western Karanas, where you must find Konia Swiftfoot in the guard tower -516 , -2433. He will tell you to take a torch to Fajio Knejo. Fajio can be found in Misty Thicket at approximately -250, -250. This is on the safe side of the wall close to the entrance to the dangerous side where the two guards are stationed. Give him the torch and he will give you another torch to take to Andad Filla. (Kind of like the Olympics.)

Fajio says: 'Run Onwart, my friend, to the far off Desert of Ro and give this torch to Andad Filla.

Andad Filla is in South Ro -3043 , +1243. He spawns and sits very near to the Innothule Swamp entrance and when you give him the torch from Fajio he will give you yet another torch to give to Misty Tekchita.

Andad says: You still have a way to go! Seek out Misty Tekchita near the arena at Lake Rathe. Run like the wind!

Misty is in Lake Rathetear. If she is there when you get there you can find her near the entrance to the Arena. Misty will give you a Ring called Proof of Speed. Return this ring to Konia Swiftfoot and you will get the top part of page 24.

For the bottom half of page 24, Konia Swiftfoot will give it to you for Mahlin's Bongos. To get these, first visit Braenar Swiftsong in South Karanas at -19 , +96. Asked him "what doll" and he will give you a Solusek Mining Company Invoice. Take the Invoice to Marfen Binkdirple and he will give you A Mechanical Doll. Give this doll to Braenar's Daughter, Serra. She is in the Estate of Unrest next to the Gnome Spelunker on the right on the mansion. You will need a enchanter to mesmerize the spelunker or a group to kill him. Serra will give you a note to give to Braenar. He will give you another not to give to Maligar.

Maligar is found in West Karanas at approximately +1300 , -11500. He is KoS to mostly everyone. When you give him a note Maligar's Estranged Doppleganger will spawn on top of him. You must then kill both of these things and loot from the Doppleganger Maligar's Head. To kill these two you will only need a group of high 40's to low 50's.

Take Maligar's Head to Braenar and he will give you Mahlin's Bongos. Take the Bongo's to Konia for the bottom half of page 24.

Now to find page 25. First talk to Kelkim Menkia, a female npc in South Karanas at -245, -3650. She asks you to bring her 3 guts for 3 dragons. The first guts drops from Eldrig the Old. He is a rare spawn drake in Skyfire Mountains. Its drops Chromodrac guts which are the guts you need.

The next guts are dropped from Nezekezena, a named dragon level 51 in the Burning Woods. Reports indicate that if you go to Nezekezena's spawn location (about -450, -2550 in Burning Wood) and kill everything in sight, eventually Nez or his (her?) placeholders will start spawning with a cycle time of 90 seconds. People have evidenced acquiring Burning Embers at a rate of 1 or 2 in a few hours' time with this method. Phurzikan and Nezekezna both spawn on this spot, and they are both strong; sometimes Nez or Phurz will spawn two times in a row, so your group had better be strong enough to take them. Nezekezena, if not killed when she spawns, will wander sometimes along the east and south walls of the zone, so if you can't find her near her spawn, look there. A tracker would definitely help. The guts you need from her are red wurm guts. The best way to do this camp, is have someone in your guild with an extra computer bring a ranger to the zone. Then continually track for a week or so until you get it on track. Phurzikan drops a very nice resistance shoulder called wurm scale coat. This might be a good way to convince people to help you camp these two dragons.

The last guts are dropped from Blackwing in Rathe Mountains. This is a level 35-40 dragon identical to the other drakes. To get him to spawn, kill all lizards, drakes, etc. that are close to the sphinx. He will spawn shortly. He has around 1400-1900 hitpoints. He drops huge onyx drake guts.

Take the three guts to Kelkin Mekia and she will give you page 25.

Head and Neck of the Mystical Lute

Now for the final part. You must get talk to Forpar Fizfla. You must complete three quests for him. After each quest he will reward you will part of the lute. He can usually be found in the middle windmill.

The First Quest is for the Head and Neck of the lute. Go to Vedico Windwisper in the Butcherblock Mountains. She is on the docks. She asks that you bring the Alluring Horn. This horn is dropped off of Quag Maelstrom. He is a level 45 mob in Ocean of Tears, only one zone away from Vedico. The following information was cited by an anonymous person on Illia's Beastiary. He's generally on the Seafury Cyclops island around -6000, 1000. He conned red to me at 42 and he casts drain mana a lot, (which curiously did not appear to lower my bardic mana bar at all). I was able to land a lot of Chants of Flame and Curtailing Chants so his fire/magic resistances may not be that high. He didn't hit me all that much, but if memory serves he was hitting me for around 100 or 120 per shot. He's generally seen wielding this odd weapon which looks like a thin tree trunk skewering the alluring horn he carries, which tends to make him stand out from the others. There are a good number of cyclopses on the small island, so pulling Quag alone isn't easy. But sometimes he stomps over to the shore by himself (to look in the water I guess). I don't know if he spawns all the time, or if you have to trigger his spawn by talking to the disgruntled elf at the BB docks. I went to talk to the elf first just in case, and by the time I got to the island Quag was there, and didn't despawn over the several hours I took to gauge the island and set up my offensive.

Bring the Alluring Horn to Vedico and she will give you a note to give to give to Forpar. When you give the note to Forpar he gives you another note of the 3 things he needs.

The first thing is called Backbone of an Ancient Fisherman or Phinigel's Spine. It is found off of the Phinigel Autropos in Kedge Keep. The Phinigel Autropos is a level 50 Wizard. He can be taken out with 1 well structured 55+ group. He enjoys dispelling people (usually your enduring breath.) His guardians are level 51. He is mezzable, his guardians are not, and they can complete heal. With new gear, a group of 5 people can easily do this, as long as you have one level 60 to pull (only lvl 60s can get him solo.)

The second thing is a Amalgym Tentacle or Amalgym Tendril. These are 9/25 1h slashing weapons that drop from Amalgym Warriors and Knights in Plane of Fear. They are both level 48-52 but the knights can heal, summon pets, and harmtouch.

The third thing is a Petrified Skull of Lycanthrope or petrified werewolf skull. This is dropped from the Drolvarg Warlord in Karnor's Castle. This is a level 51-54 Drolvarg who spawns in the Warlord room.

Hand in the three items and the note to Forpar and he will give you the head and neck of the lute.

Body of the Mystical Lute

When he gives you the head and neck of the lute he offers to give you the body of the lute for three items.

The first item is a Large Red Dragon Scale. This is most commonly dropped by Lord Nagafen, a level 55 dragon in Nagafen's Lair but can also be found off of Zordakilicus Ragefire in Skyfire, or Talendor in Skyfire. There is also a mob in The Hole named Nortlav the Scalekeeper. He is a level 51-55 Erudite that drops the Red Dragon Scale. He hits for about 190 on average. He has a nasty harmtouch that does around 1500 damage. He also uses harmtouch, and has a high magic resist. Wizard spells Ice Comet and the Lure Line will stick. Necromancer DoTs will also work.

Now find the Large White Dragon Scale from Vox in Permafrost, Gorenaire in the Dreadlands, or Nortlav the Scalekeeper in The Hole.

The last item you can ask a fellow smith to make. You need 2 metal bits.

Turn these three items in for the body of the lute.

Strings of the Mystical Lute

Once you get the body, Forpar will offer to give you the strings to the lute as long as you bring him one thing. Trakanon's Guts. These drop off of a clone of Trakanon. He is exactly the same except he always drops the guts. To get him to spawn, go to Trak's lair while he is not spawned. Give the body of the lute to An Undead Bard which spawns about 18 hours after a normal Trakanon is killed. He will hand it back to you and then attack you. He is level 55 monster. Once he is killed, the clone of Trakanon will spawn. Trakanon claws for 650, with a sickening melee range, and his breath attack has been known to kill whole groups in minutes. Reports say that the regular Trakanon doesn't drop the guts. You have to kill him this way but this has not yet been confirmed. Now give Forpar the Trakanon Guts, the Head and Neck of the Lute (One Item) and the Body of the Lute for Forpar's Mystical Lute.

The End

You are nearly there! Go back to the Dreadlands and find Baldric. Give him Maestro's Symphony Page 24 Top, Maestro's Symphony Page 24 Bottom, Page 25, Mystical Lute. He will give you the Singing Short Sword!

The effect on this item is a full party buff that adds 55% haste, 30 Strength, and 30 attack. It lasts for 2 minutes 30 seconds and has a range of about 150 feet. It also works as every instrument.

BEASTLORD EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

Step one: The Battle in Grimling Forest

You say, 'Hail, Historian Sharar'

Historian Sharar says 'It is a pleasure to meet you, friend. Please let me know if you have trouble finding the book that you seek. If you request something that we do not have available, I can make a note to keep an eye out for it. We are getting in a great variety of interesting new material these days. Speaking of which, I need someone to take a tome to Elder Animist Dumul. He has been frantically researching something or another. I'm sure that you could pry a little and learn more about it if you were to take this book to him. Is that something that you would be interested in doing? '

You say, 'Yes'

Historian Sharar says 'You have a braver spirit than mine, friend, but I'm glad that someone is available to assist me. Take care and keep alert. The Khati Sha seem to be very troubled by something of late. '

Handing the book to Elder Animist Dumul:

Elder Animist Dumul says 'Thank you, young courier. I will not need anything more from you at this time. We have a great deal of research to do and absolutely no time to complete said studies. Did the Historian tell you anything? Matters are bad enough without rumors floating about in the shadows. Speak up... did you hear anything about our situation? '

You say, 'Some spirits are disturbed'

Elder Animist Dumul says 'Well, my prying little friend. Someone as inquisitive as you may be of use to us. Perhaps you were sent to us by the very ones we seek to help. The spirits are capable of far more impressive manipulations. If any time warrants such trickery or nudging of fate, I would guess that this day would qualify. Be aware of one thing, youth... the beastlord that follows the path I see before us this day may not return to this house unscathed... if they return to me at all. If you are the Khati Sha I seek, prove your worth in combat and return to me with the Copper Medal of War. You can get this medal from assisting the soldiers in the Grimling Forest. '

Look up Scout Husam in Grimling Forest, and talk to him.

Scout Husman asks you for 6 people of about his level to wipe out a grimling camp nearby. Purchase a polished Acrylia Sphere from the nearby shopkeeper to start the quest. The scout will march straight out and assault a camp of grimlings. It's your job to keep him alive during the initial camp take and the follow up waves of grimlings. There are about 5 Grimlings in the camp, and the waves consist of 4 or 5 grimlings a piece. Eventually a Grimling officer will appear (who is much stronger than the Grimlings). Kill him to recieve a medallion from Scout Husman.

You must keep Scout Husman alive in order to finish the quest. Suggested force is about 6 level 40s or 2 or 3 high level 50s. As a 57 enchanter, the officer proved annoying since he could not be mermerized.

Return to Elder Animist Dumul and hand him the Copper Medal of War:
Elder Animist Dumul says 'You have returned at a most opportune time, [your name]. If this medal is indicative of your abilities in combat, I may be able to find a slight amount of hope soon. We have learned answers for many of the questions that we had prior to your last visit. Please take this seal and this container. Place them somewhere safe, while I gather the information that we've accumulated so far. Let me know when you have the seal packed and are ready to be briefed. Should you ever loose it, just ask for another. '

Your faction standing with Savage Spirit got better.

You say, 'I am ready'

Elder Animist Dumul says 'As you may have gathered during our first meeting, we have been dealing with a situation that differs from any that we have dealt with in the past. We dismissed the situation as improbable at first, but unfortunately we have just attained certain proof. Our scouts have found that an individual has discovered a means of manipulating elder spirits. These spirits have a great deal of power over their natural environments. This person has used some new magic to take that power for himself. '

You say, 'What new magic?'

Elder Animist Dumul says 'The scouts were able to witness some of the rituals used to capture the spirits. They described a process that involved the use of a wooden totem, shaped in the image of the spirit's true form. The magic-user is able to use that totem to siphon the power of the spirit. He then uses that power to transform the spirit into an entity of malign intent. Fortunately, our research has given us the name of this vile magic-user. '

You say, 'what vile magic-user?'

Elder Animist Dumul says 'His name is Draz Nurakk. It appears that he has learned the ways of the Khati Sha to the point of mastery. His magic and will seem to defy even the darkest secular beliefs of his people. We harbor no ill will toward the Iksar, but this individual must be stopped. This leads us to your mission. '

You say, 'what mission'

Elder Animist Dumul says 'We need you to meet our scouts and assist them in releasing the spirits that have already been affected by this magic. None of the scouts have reported in for some time, so you will need to find them. Once you find them, show them the seal that I gave you. They will help you to release the spirits and capture the totems. Please have the scouts help you to place the totems in the case that I gave you. If you lose the seal or damage it in combat, please return to me for another. Good luck, [your name]. You must succeed if we are to maintain the balance of the spiritual realm. '

Step two: Helping the six Scouts

The scouts appear to spawn about 36 hours after a patch, or about 16-72 hours after their previous spawn. When you hand in a Totem looted from the Spirit you just had slain, the scout will despawn right away after handing you the Wrapped Totem. The Scouts will only be up a limited time each time they are up, and will despawn some time after. The time they are up is not exactly known at this point.

Scout Locations:

1) Permafrost - Scout Janomin (by Entrance/ladder, behind some rocks)
2) Lesser Faydark - Scout Rahjiq (187, -1885)
3) Feerrott - Scout Ahlikal (374, -2439)
4) Swamp of No Hope. - Scout Eyru (-3614, 2345)
5) Stonebrunt Mountains - Scout Malom (3650, -3530)
6) Emerald Jungle - Scout Vyrak (237, 4212)

1) Permafrost - Scout Janomin; Icebound Spirit = Spirit of Zehkes (the Great Storm) (by Entrance/ladder, behind some rocks)

After handing in the Seal:
Scout Janomin says 'It is a comfort to meet you, [your name]. I was afraid that you might not be able to track me with weather out there being what it is. I must admit that my fondness of the snow is at an all time low right now. The sooner you release the spirit that resides in here, the sooner we can make a way back to a warmer climate. '

Scout Janomin says 'The spirit that you seek is deep within these halls. I tracked it into this lair more than a week ago. The spirit has taken up residence with the other bears in the lower chambers during that time. It should be relatively easy for your and your people to reach. Once you release the spirit, please return the totem to me. I will prepare it for the journey to Shar Vahl. May stealth and good fortune move with you. '

A large creature growls from deep within its icy lair. '

A large Icebear spawns in the Pits inside Permafrost, named "Icebound Spirit". He is level 55, has high Cold Resistance, but low Fire Resistance. He is immune to Slow spells, and will flurry as well as proc a hard to resist 400 DD spell. He hits for 225 damage maximum. Has a lot of hitpoints.

After turning in the Totem:
Scout Jaromin says 'Perfect work, [your name]! I am glad the Elders made such a wise choice in sending you. I must admit, I was rather scared during the exploration of these halls. This lair is quite foul, quite foul indeed! Take this wrapped totem and place it in the case that you were given. Once you have all of the totems, seal the case and make your way back to Shar Vahl. I work my way back as well. Thank you again.

2) Lesser Faydark - Scout Rahjiq; Spirit of Malevolence = Spirit of Khaliz (the Mistrunner) (187, -1885)

After handing in the Seal:
Scout Rahjiq says 'Keep your head down, mate! The spirit that you have come for is very close. I have spotted it several times today. It keeps appearing near that odd structure just over the hill. Be careful not to attract the attention of those invisible creatures that roam near the structure. Just release the spirit and return the totem to me. I'll prepare the totem for placement in the container that you were given.

The air before the large monolith grows solid, as misty tendrils wrap together in the shape of a large wolf.

The Spirit is a gigantic white wolf which spawns just east of the Shadowmen Altar. Not particularly hard to kill; has a lot of HP but only hits for maximum 225. However he procs a blindness spell which is AOE, and he will flurry. Like the Icebear, he is level 55.

After killing it:
Khaliz the Mistrunner appears in the misty corpse of the fallen spirit. The mist that makes up its shape then begins to dissipate.

After handing in the Totem to the Scout:
Scout Rahjiq wraps the totem and returns it with the seal you gave him and says, 'That spirit was very powerful. I'm glad that you were able to release it. Please keep this totem safe until you can return to Shar Vahl. Once you collect all of the totems, seal the box and return it to your master. May the spirits watch over you!

3) Feerrott - Scout Ahlikal; Spirit of Decay = Spirit of Yekan (the Weaver) (374, -2439)

You say, 'Hail, Scout Ahlikal'

Scout Ahlikal says 'It is a pleasure to meet you, but I do not have time to speak. I am waiting on official word from Shar Vahl. If you have been sent to assist me, please show me the Official Seal of the Khati Sha at this time. If you are not such a person, please carry on with your business and leave me to tend to mine. '

After handing in the Seal:
Scout Ahlikal says 'Well met, I'm glad that you made it! This jungle is oppressive, with its dank earth and dark canopy. The sooner you dispatch that spirit, the sooner we can both make our way out of this vile place. Move towards the ruins that lie about two hundred feet from here. The spirit will be there. Release it from its current form and return the totem to me. I will wrap it for you, so that you may place it in the container that you should have been given. Take care and be swift! '

A large yellow spider drifts down from the jungle canopy. Perhaps it senses the proximity of its next meal.

The Spirit of Decay spawns not very far from the Scout as a level 55 jungle-type Spider. The Spider procs an AOE dot/snare, which adds 9 Poison Counters, and does about 100 damage per tick. He will hit for up to 255 damage per hit and flurry.

After killing it:
Yekan the Weaver materializes before you. It seems to make a quick appraisal of you before fading from your sight.

After handing in the Totem to the Scout:
Scout Ahlikal says 'Amazing work, [your name]! We are all in your debt. I have wrapped the totem to prevent its harmful magic from affecting you. Please keep it in the box until you can return it to Elder Dumul. If you have not found the other spirits, please seek them out. If you have filled the container, please seal it and return to Shar Vahl. Here is your seal. May the spirits watch over you. '

4) Swamp of No Hope - Scout Eyru; Spirit of Sorrow = Spirit of Herikol (the Lurker) (-3614, 2345)

You say, 'Hail, Scout Eyru'
Scout Eyru says 'It is a pleasure to meet you, but I do not have time to speak. I am waiting on official word from Shar Vahl. If you have been sent to assist me, please show me the Official Seal of the Khati Sha at this time. If you are not such a person, please carry on with your business and leave me to tend to mine. '

Hand in the Seal to Scout Eyru:
Scout Eyru says 'It is a relief to see you. I was beginning to fear that no one would be able to find me in this miserable swamp. I wanted to get word back to Shar Vahl about my location, but I was afraid that I would lose the trail off this spirit if I were to break off my pursuit. This location is as strange of a destination for our spirit as it is dangerous. I have seen the spirit several times and it is very out of place here. I can't help but think that the transformation has left the spirit confused beyond all repair. '

Scout Eyru says 'If you move towards the large body of water just north of here, you should be able to find a vantage point that will allow you to see it. The spirit has been resting under the surface of the water there for several days now. Once you release the spirit, please return to me with the totem that binds it. I will prepare the totem, so that you may return it to Shar Vahl. ' giant reptile roars, as it sinks below the surface of the pond. It appears that it senses your approach. '

The Spirit of Sorrow is an alligator, who spawns underwater as a static spawn and is level 55. He can cast an AoE Stun spell with Whirling component (Death Roll) which is magic-based. He summons and melees for 225 damage maximum, and he can flurry. He is immune to Slow spells. Despite his appearance in the water, you can only hit him from above the water. He is immune to Slow spells.

Once the Spirit of Sorrow dies:
Herikol the Lurker sits motionless for a moment, as if pondering its location. Its form turns to water and slowly begins to melt away. '

Upon giving the Totem to the scout...
Scout Eyru says 'Splendid job, [your name]! This wrapping should help to shield you from any of the negative properties that may be manifested in the totem. You should be fine if you keep it in the box that you were given. Once you collect all of the totems, please seal the box and return it to Shar Vahl. Be careful to protect the totems during the course of your travels. The balance of power in several realms is reliant on your ability to fulfill this mission. Please do not fail us.'

5) Stonebrunt Mountains - Scout Malom; Spirit of Torment = Spirit of Sharik (the Watcher) (3650, -3530)

After handing the Seal to Scout Malon:
Scout Malom says 'Thank you for coming. I am surprised that you were able to find me. I barely know where I am at this point. I followed the vile beast that has been corrupting the spirits, but he eluded me after I followed him to that ridge up there. Fortunately, the spirit that you seek has remained at the site of its transformation. Use levitation to work your way up the falls and return to me with the totem that you will acquire from releasing the spirit. '

Something glows brightly from high above the falls.

The Spirit is a large level 55 blue Whisp, which spawns above the waterfall. It hits for 225 max but can flurry, and procs a dispell/stun spell, which is not particularly hard to resist. It's immune to Slow spells.

After killing it:
Sharik the Watcher says 'Your efforts are most brave. The realm of spirits is in constant danger these days. Mortals are tampering with the balance more and more often. Learn from these battles and make note of the importance of balance. The task that you complete this day may mock you in the days to come if you do not heed its lesson. Take care, my friend. '

After handing the Totem to the Scout:
Scout Malom says 'Great work, friend. Take this totem and place it in the case that you were given in Shar Vahl. Do not unwrap the totem and be quick in your pursuit of the others. Once you have all of the totems, please seal the case and return it to Shar Vahl. I can only hope that you will get to all of the spirits in time. Take care, friend.

6) Emerald Jungle - Scout Vyrak; Spirit of Rage = Spirit of Omakin (the Stalker) (237, 4212)

Be warned, when you hand in your Seal, it appears that a creature spawns that will make a straight run for the Scout in an attempt to kill it. It's called 'A Totem Fiendling" or something similar.

After turning in the Seal to the Scout:
Scout Vyrak says 'Well met, [your name], well met indeed! I find comfort in the fact that the jungle permitted your passage to me! Maybe there is still hope that we can stop this disturbance before any more damage can be done to the balance of the spirit realm. I have spent several weeks tracking the corrupted spirit. It seems to have made a home of the ruins just south of here. The spirit no longer resembles the entity that it once was. It is quickly becoming something foul and savage. Let us hope that you are not too late. '

Scout Vyrak says 'Destroy the spirit's current form and you will be able to retrieve the implement which has befouled it. Once you gather that totem, please return it to me and I will wrap it, so that you may carry it in the case that you were given in Shar Vahl. '

You here a massive creature roar, as if awakened from a deep sleep.

The Spirit of Rage is an Undead Gorilla. He hits for up to 225 max, flurries, and he casts an AOE Fear spell, which is not too hard to resist. He is immune to Slow spells.

After the Spirit of Rage has been killed:
Omakin the Stalker looks at you with a kind expression. The large creature smiles at you and motions for you to move away. Perhaps it senses that you have more adventure ahead of you. Its form begins to loosen, as if it were a mirage produced by the jungle heat. '

When handing the Totem to the Scout:
Scout Vyrak says 'Excellent work, [your name]! Judging by the speed with which it altered that spirit, this totem must be extremely powerful. I've wrapped it, so you should be safe from its magic. Just be sure to keep it in the case. Once you have all of the totems, seal the case and make your way back to Shar Vahl. They will be waiting for you there. I'll continue to look for the person that perpetrated this vile act. '

Step three: Timorous Deep - Battle with Draz Nurakk

After combining the six Totems in the box that was given to this purpose the result is a Sealed Box of Totems, which is to be handed to Elder Animist Dumul.

Elder Animist Dumul says 'I have received word from several of our scouts indicating your impending arrival. We are all very pleased that you were able to release all of the spirits before any true harm could manifest itself. Your efforts have not only restored balance to the spirit realm, they seem to have also acted to hinder any other plans our antagonist may have had... for the time being. '

Elder Animist Dumul says 'Our Taruun scouts have discovered Draz Nurakk's location. A scout has returned from a set of islands on the Old World. The islands are in a place called Timorous. The Taruun returned while leaving a scout behind to insure that the foul Animist does not evade us any further. You will need to find the island on which our scout has set up camp. The island has a great statue on it. Hopefully, he will still be in that location. Show him this seal and he will know that I sent you to assist. '

Elder Animist Dumul hands you the Seal of Elder Dumul at this point. Head out to Timorous Deep and look up Scout Sihmoj. Hand him the Seal.

Scout Sihmoj says 'Good to see you, now keep your head down friend. He may look out here at any moment, though he's been asleep most of the day. He's been staying in a ruined building on that island over there. I'm sure you can see it from here. You should be able to surprise him with little trouble. Just take care to avoid any traps he may have set. He's proven to be a very capable magic-user. '
Scout Sihmoj says 'When you finish with him, please bring any evidence of his being dispatched back to me in this bag. I'll direct you from there. Good luck... I'll watch from here. '

Green-con Draz Nurakk spawns in the small ruin on the opposite isle. When killed he will drop nothing. But when killed, this happens:

Draz Nurakk's corpse explodes into thousands of brilliant glass fragments! '

On his death 6 Iksars named "Draz Nurakk's Image" spawn at the same spot where Draz Nurakk was standing and they will not agro right away. They can be single pulled at level 51 or above. Five of them are level 53, the sixth one is level 55. One of the level 53 ones can't be slowed (immune to changes in speed), another of the 53 ones cannot be snared or rooted. The level 55 one is immune to mezzes and stuns; this one also has high MR. The level 53's hit for 149 maximum and can double-attack albeit not too fast, the level 55 one hits for up to 169 damage. Each of these images drop "Shards of Broken Glass" which you combine in the pouch given by the scout. Five of the Iksar are below level 55 and hence have a decay timer of 8 minutes on them.

Combine the six Shards in the bag and hand over the bag to the Scout.

Scout Sihmoj says 'I knew that this creature had power, but how do you explain this? That fight was well beyond my comprehension. I'm not sure what to do other than have you return the bag to Elder Dumul. I'm sure that he will know what to do next. Take care and be swift. '

Return to Elder Animist Dumul and hand him the bag.

Elder Animist Dumul says 'My fears were well founded, and I am glad that I have had people that are able to understand those fears. Please do not think that I have intentionally placed you in the path of harm, but I did have my suspicions about our adversary's strength. I am not surprised that he was able to deceive us in this manner. I thank the spirits that you were able to evade harm in your completion of this task. '

Elder Animist Dumul says 'Take this note to Arms Historian Qua. He has been researching a means of circumventing any protective magic that Draz Nurakk may have in place. When you meet him next, you will be well equipped to complete the restoration of balance to the spirit realm. Make your way to Qua and do as he says. '

You say, 'Hail, Arms Historian Qua'
Arms Historian Qua says 'Hail citizen, may I help you find a book or are you looking for assistance with something else? '

Hand him the Note you received from Dumul.

Arms Historian Qua says 'It is a pleasure to meet you, [your name]. The Animists mentioned that someone would be by, but for me not to wait, so I sent the information that they requested to Weapons Master Rahoul. He is having a master smith finish the blades. '

Arms Historian Qua says 'Take him this receipt and I'm sure that he'll get you the weapons as soon as possible. Take care, [your name]. It appears that a lot of people are relying on you in this matter. You may be the only person that can do this. '

You say, 'Hail, Weapons Master Rahoul'
Weapons Master Rahoul says 'Hail friend, are you a new recruit or have you been at it for a bit? '

Hand him the Receipt you received from the Arms Historian.

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'You are just the time. The weapon that Elder Dumul requested has almost been completed. We need you to gather a few items in order to complete the weapon. These items will not require much effort to acquire, but I will need to tell you where to look. Place all of the items that I request in this box and return it to me as quickly as possible. '

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'Now, seek out a large chunk of perfect acrylia ore, two Gems of the Void, and chunk of dense fungal padding. Once I have those items, I can finish the weapon that you will need to use to kill the dark animist.'

You say, 'Tell me where to find a large chunk of perfect acrylia ore?'

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'The ore that I require is often used to create living rock formations. These collections of rocks and boulders will often leave a trail of energy that causes other rocks to collect and come to life. Our scouts have seen these formations in a variety of areas. Take care when you attempt to gather this ore.'

Note: At least one reported area is in The Grey.

You say, 'Tell me where to find Gems of the Void?'

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'If you look in the Maiden's Eye, you will find entities that are the embodiment of darkness. Their twisted spirits are not allowed to escape the form that they inhabit. They have no hope of escape, unless they are released during the destruction of their material form. There are some occasions when the power that is used to keep them in this realm will turn upon itself during this period of destruction. This process is what produces the Gems of the Void. '

You say, 'Tell me where to find a chunk of dense fungal padding?'

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'When traversing the Deep, you will run across a shrieking fungus. Those creatures are much more durable and dangerous than the other fungi that you may encounter in the caverns of Luclin. It is for this reason that we use their flesh as padding. Take care when hunting them, for they will provide a good challenge.'

After gathering these components, combine them in the box he gave you and hand it in to the Weapon Master.

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'These claws should work well for you. The design was research by Historian Qua. They should work to neutralize the magical field that protects the dark animist and allow you to tear his scaly flesh from his frame. Remember that all of this is theoretical. Those claws are an original creation. You will be the first to prove their effectiveness in combat. '

Weapons Master Rahoul says 'Take the claws back to Animist Dumul and show him their design. Use them well, [your name]. May the spirits guide you in your attack. '

Note that he gave you two Claws, not one. Hand them both to Elder Animist Dumul.

Elder Animist Dumul says 'These claws are exquisite. I can see that a great deal of thought went into their design. Now it is your turn to demonstrate your proficiency in your chosen role. You have a great challenge ahead of you, for we have determined that only these claws will work to harm this dark animist, this corrupter of spirits. You will need the support of your people; but in the end, only the strength of your will can save us. '

Elder Animist Dumul says 'Our scouts have tracked Draz Nurakk to an abandoned village in the Fungus Grove. We learned of his intent to track you down. I take it that he did not appreciate your willingness to assist us. He knows who you are, so it will be best for us to get him before he can conjure up any more surprises. Find Scout Halmia in the Grove and give her this seal. Then bring the evidence of his destruction to me when you are done. Place his head, the seal, and those claws in this box and return it to me. '

He hands you the Seal of War and a box at this point, along with the two Claws you gave him moments before.

Step four: Beastlord versus the Dark Animist Draz Nurakk - Epic Conclusion

Head over to Fungus Grove and hand Scout Halmia the Seal.

Scout Halmia says 'I thank the spirits that you have arrived. I would not have been able to stop the dark animist if he were to attempt to leave. He has made camp in an empty set of huts. He has moved from hut to hut, but made no attempt to leave the area. I would be wary of traps if I were you. I must admit that I was afraid. That is why I moved to this location. He should still be there though. '

This will cause Draz Nurakk to spawn in one of the empty huts near the Caller Quest NPCs. He is level 53, triple hitting for up to 125 damage each hit. He can only be hit by spells, weapon procs and the Claws you have obtained in the course of this quest. Kill him and loot his head. Put it in the box together with the Claws and the Seal, and combine it. Return the result to Elder Animist Dumul to receive your Epic.

Elder Animist Dumul opens the container and looks at its contents and says, '[your name], you have saved the balance of the spirit realm. Your selflessness has made an impression that will last well beyond the effects of your recent deeds. The inhabitants of this realm are all in your debt. Your efforts to restore balance in the material realm have been worth more than we can reward you for.' '

Elder Animist Dumul shouts 'Citizens of Shar Vahl, please take the time to acknowledge the efforts of a true champion and hero to our people. [your name] has worked valiantly with great personal risk, to restore balance to our realm. We, the Khati Sha of Shar Vahl, feel that only a spirit as strong as [your name]'s can be entrusted with the Claws of the Savage Spirit. Please take this time to give [your name] your thanks and respect.'

The Beastlord Epic rewards consists of a pair of Claws:

CLERIC EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

Quest Abstract:

- Obtain "Lord Bergurgle's Crown" from Lord Bergurgle and give it to Shmendrik Lavawalker, triggering spawn of Natasha Whitewater.
- Natasha Whitewater will kill Shmendrik Lavawalker, then "a spirit of flame" will spawn and attack you.
- Loot "Damaged Goblin Crown" from "a spirit of flame" and give it to Natasha Whitewater to receive "Ornate Sea Shell (I)".
- Give "Ornate Sea Shell (I)" to Omat Vastsea to receive "Coral Statue of Tarew".
- Give "Coral Statue of Tarew" to "a seeker", kill resulting "Plasmatic Priest" spawn, loot "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe".
- Kill Lord Gimblox in Solusek A, loot "Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring".
- Turn in "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe" to Omat Vastsea, receiving "Orb of Frozen Water" and causing Natasha Whitewater to spawn.
- Turn in "Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring" to Natasha Whitewater to receive "Ornate Sea Shell (II)".
- Turn in "Ornate Sea Shell (II)" to Naxot Deepwater, receiving "Message to Natasha".
- Kill resulting spawn of Ixiblat Fer, loot "Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer".
- Kill Overking Bathezid Di'Zok, loot "Singed Scroll".
- Turn in "Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer" and "Singed Scroll" to Omat Vastsea, receiving "Orb of Clear Water" and causing Natasha Whitewater to spawn.
- Give "Message to Natasha" to Natasha Whitewater to receive "Shimmering Pearl".
- Give "Shimmering Pearl" to Zordak Ragefire, kill him and resulting Zordakalicus Ragefire spawn, loot "Heart of Zordak Ragefire".
- Turn in "Heart of Zordak Ragefire" to Omat Vastsea, receiving "Orb of Vapor" and causing Jhassad Oceanson to spawn.

- Give "Orb of Frozen Water", "Orb of Clear Water", and "Orb of Vapor" to Jhassad Oceanson, receiving "Orb of the Triumvirate" and causing Avatar of Water to spawn.
- Give "Orb of the Triumvirate" to Avatar of Water, receiving the Water Sprinkler of Nem Ankh.

Outline

Step One: Obtain the Orb of Frozen Water

NPC: Shmendrik Lavawalker

NPC: A Spirit of Flame

NPC: Lord Bergurgle

NPC: Natasha Whitewater

NPC: Omat Vastsea

NPC: "A Seeker"/Plasmatic Priest

NPC: Lord Gimblox

Step Two: Obtain the Orb of Clear Water

NPC: Natasha Whitewater

NPC: Naxot Deepwater

NPC: Ixiblat Fer

NPC: Overking Bathezid Di'Zok

NPC: Omat Vastsea

Step Three: Obtain the Orb of Vapor

NPC: Natasha Whitewater

NPC: Zordak Ragefire/Zordakalicus Ragefire

NPC: Omat Vastsea

Step Four: Obtain the Orb of the Triumvirate

NPC: Jhassad Oceanson

Step Five: Obtain the Water Sprinkler of Nem Ankh

NPC: Avatar of Water

Step One: Obtain the Orb of Frozen Water

Kill Lord Bergurgle, then turn in his "Lord Bergurgle's Crown" to Shmendrik Lavawalker. Natasha Whitewater will attack him immediately after spawning. When he dies, kill the resulting "spirit of flame" spawn. Loot the "Damaged Goblin Crown" and give it to Natasha Whitewater, for which you receive "Ornate Sea Shell (I)" She despawns after receiving "Damaged Goblin Crown". Turn in "Ornate Sea Shell (I)" to Omat Vastsea and receive "Coral Statue of Tarew" in return. Give "Coral Statue of Tarew" to a certain "seeker" and kill the resulting "Plasmatic Priest" spawn, looting a "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe". Kill Lord Gimblox and loot "Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring". Turn in the "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe" to Omat Vastsea, receiving "Orb of Frozen Water", and Natasha Whitewater will spawn.

NPC: Shmendrik Lavawalker

Location: Lake Rathetear, loc (3600, 0).

Spawn Timer: Approx. 3 hours (+/- 15 minutes, I thought he showed up 15 minutes early)

Level: 30

Hit Points: Approx. 1494

Melee Damage: Very low (2-20)

Spells Cast: Cancel Magic, Smite, Greater Healing

Accepts Items: "Lord Bergurgle's Crown", results in "Oil of Fennin Ro" and Natasha Whitewater spawns.

Drops: Plasmatic Priest Robe (cannot be equipped)

Spoken Text: (when hailed) Shmendrik Lavawalker says 'Hail, good [your name] !! Be wary near the waters of Lake Rathe! The Riptide goblin king, Lord Bergurgle has been commanding his minions to murder and rob all who come near it! I am here seeking his death but I am afraid I am no match for all of his subjects. I shall reward you greatly for the death of Lord Bergurgle. I simply ask that you bring me his crown as proof.

(when attacked) Shmendrik Lavawalker says 'I shall sear the flesh from your bones and your soul shall be carried to oblivion by my flames!

(when given "Lord Bergurgle's Crown") Shmendrik Lavawalker shoves the crown into a scorch marked leather satchel and cackles uncontrollably as madness twists his features and flames dance in his eyes. You [your name] have reduced the Riptides into chaos! Without a king to keep them in control they will ravage the settlements surrounding this lake! After the slaughter I shall return and easily burn the remainder of the villages and fishing shanties to the ground! None shall escape the fires of the Tyrant!!

NPC: A Spirit of Flame

Location: Lake Rathetear

Spawn Timer: Spawns immediately in place when Shmendrik Lavawalker dies

Level: 40

Hit Points: Approx. 3300

Melee Damage: Moderate (up to 97)

Spells Cast: None, no native damage shield

Drops: Damaged Goblin Crown

Tactics: Natasha Whitewater will attack the Spirit of Flame, which may in some cases cause its corpse to disappear. It may be possible to keep her out of the fight using root, mesmerize, atone, or something similar, but the safest way to do the quest is to kill Shmendrik Lavawalker and the Spirit of Flame once to get the Damaged Goblin Crown, then wait for a second Shmendrik spawn to turn in Bergurgle's crown and complete this part of the quest.

NPC: Lord Bergurgle

Location: Lake Rathetear, loc (2800, 150) in underwater cave. Cave entrance loc is (2831, -912, -221).

Spawn Timer: Rare spawn with placeholder and 28 minute spawn timer. Surrounding DW goblins are on 6 minute timer. "Deep", a level 60 mob (beta neutral faction), can spawn in the tower nearby.

Level: 39-40

Hit Points: Unknown but substantial for his level

Melee Damage: Moderate (approximate max. 97)

Spells Cast: Complete Heal

Drops: Lord Bergurgle's Crown

NPC: Natasha Whitewater

Location: Lake Rathetear, spawns when Lord Bergurgle's Crown is given to Shmendrik Lavawalker.

Accepts Items: "Damaged Goblin Crown", results in "Ornate Sea Shell (I)" (actual item name is "Ornate Sea Shell", identifies as "Ornate Sea Shell", referred to herein as "Ornate Sea Shell (I)"), then Natasha despawns.

Spoken Text: (when spawned) Natasha Whitewater shouts, 'The Triumvirate of Water has decreed your fate, Shmendrik Lavawalker!! I am here to deliver said fate!!'

Shmendrik Lavawalker says, 'I'll slay you like I slaughtered your fellow missionaries! The Triumvirate can not decide the fate of a follower of the Tyrant!!

Natasha Whitewater says, 'Enough!! Your existence has come to an end!

Natasha Whitewater says 'This conflict has been destined by the waters of the Triumvirate!

(when hailed) Natasha Whitewater says 'The Riptide goblins must have their crown returned to them. If you would be so kind as to give me the crown I will make sure that it reaches them. Hopefully they are capable enough to repair the damage that has been done to it.'

(when given the crown) Natasha Whitewater says 'I will have this crown returned to the Riptide Goblins immediately! Should you ever come across an Erudite named Omat Vastsea, give him this sea shell. The waters of Norrath shimmer with awareness of your deeds here today!

NPC: Omat Vastsea

Location: Timourous Deep, loc (-11567, -2227). To reach him, take the cave entrance at loc (-11530, -3728), then the entrance at (-11336, -1307).

Accepts Item: "Ornate Sea Shell (I)", results in "Coral Statue of Tarew". "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe" results in "Orb of Frozen Water" and Natasha Whitewater spawns.

Spoken Text: (when hailed) Omat Vastsea bows deeply. 'I have been expecting you, [your name] . The waters have foretold your arrival. I am High Priest Omat Vastsea of the Triumvirate missionaries. Please feel free to enjoy the quiet solitude of this inn.'

You say, 'who are the triumvirate'

Omat Vastsea says 'The Triumvirate of Water are: E'ci, the mistress of ice; Tarew Marr, the lord of water; and Povar, the formless master of vapor and mist. We Triumvirate missionaries are granted great divinatory powers and wisdom through our devotion to the Triumvirate and must defend the waters of Norrath from the ravages of the Tyrant of Fire, Fennin Ro.

You say, 'who is fennin ro'

Omat Vastsea says 'The Tyrant of Fire, Fennin Ro, is the merciless lord of fire in all its forms. The rivalry between the tyrant and the Triumvirate is as old as the gods themselves and is an eternal battle. We witness the struggle every moment of our lives as the Oasis of Marr succumbs to the heat of the surrounding desert and is replenished by the swelling of the Lifire River. That fragile balance between the elements must be maintained but the Plasmatic Priesthood threatens that balance.

You say, 'who are the plasmatic priesthood'

Omat Vastsea says 'The Plasmatic Priesthood are worshipers of the Tyrant of Fire, but they have been driven mad by their fanaticism and have forgotten the importance of the balance. In their madness they would set the whole world aflame, leaving nothing but lifeless ash.

(after turning in the shell) Omat Vastsea says 'So, you are a friend of Natasha's? That is good to see. She is a very wise and gifted woman. The Riptide goblins have adopted a new king but are still in a vulnerable state until his subjects accept his rule. The Plasmatic Priesthood is aware of the weakened state of the Riptides and has convinced the Fire Peak goblins to strike against them. Although I do not agree with the mannerisms or actions of any goblin clan, such a war would be detrimental to all who are caught in its path. Lord Gimblox of the Fire Peak clan has been meeting with a member of the Plasmatic Priesthood in the Temple of Solusek Ro. Locate the Plasmatic Priest, hand him this statue to hinder his powers, then eliminate him and bring me his robe.

(after turning in the "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe") "You have proven yourself to be one who is willing to take responsibility for his own actions. Such a trait is desired by all deities to be present in their faithful. I pray that you had the wisdom to slay Lord Gimblox as well as the Plasmatic Priest in order to prevent further advancement in the incursion against the Riptides. Priestess Natasha awaits inside the inn for Lord Gimblox's ring, make haste for she is a busy women and will depart soon"

NPC: "A Seeker"/Plasmatic Priest

Location: Temple of Solusek Ro, loc (326,38,29).

Spawn Timer: Spawns at 9am, despawns at 9pm (game time).

Level: 55

Hit Points: Approx. 3000-3500

Melee Damage: High (maximum 150)

Spells Cast: Complete Heal, Tremor, Annul Magic, Reckoning

Accepts Item: "Coral Statue of Tarew", changes into "Plasmatic Priest" and attacks immediately.

Drops: Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe, Darkwood Staff

Spoken Text: You say, 'what solusek ro' a seeker says 'Solusek Ro is the Master of Fire and the Keeper of Power.

You say, 'what plasmatic priest' a seeker says 'You speak of things that should not be spoken! It would be in your best interest to leave this temple at once and return to lands less consumed by flame!

(when given "Coral Statue of Tarew") A seeker shakes violently as his hand closes on the coral statue and flames dance in the depths of his eyes! The statue begins to emit a reddish glow then shatters in a burst of fire and smoke! The flames in the plasmatic priest's eyes vanish with the explosion and only madness remains! 'The Triumvirate thinks that destroying my spirit of flame will stop me?!! I will kill you all now, the goblins will continue to war, and when my spirit is restored I will ensure that Ixiblat Fer consumes all of Norrath in his flames!!'

Tactics: AE Tremor spell can aggro surrounding temple mobs on him. If they get the kill, you lose the corpse and have to start over. Pulling him to the zone after turning in the statue is one way to avoid this result. He summons, so be sure not to damage him until you reach the zone. If you jump down from the upper level on the way to the zone, he has been observed to teleport directly to your group. Another potential way to manage the situation is to use Atone or another memory wipe spell to clear aggro on the mobs. Appears to be impervious to stun.

NPC: Lord Gimblox

Location: Solusek A, loc (-796, -366)

Spawn Timer: Rare spawn, 19 minute timer, placeholder is a "Large Fire Goblin" or "fire goblin shaman". Clearing surrounding king/torturer spawn areas MAY increase spawn rate by some reports, though it is more likely to be strictly random.

Level: 30

Hit Points: Approx. 1800

Melee Damage: Moderate (approximate max. 76)

Drops: Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring

Step Two: Obtain the Orb of Clear Water

Immediately after completing the previous step, turn in "Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring" to Natasha and receive the "Ornate Sea Shell (II)". Turn in the "Ornate Sea Shell (II)" to Naxot Deepwater, receive "Message to Natasha" and kill Ixiblat Fer, looting "Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer". Kill Overking Bathezid Di'Zok, looting "Singed Scroll". Turn in "Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer" and "Singed Scroll" to Omat Vastsea, receiving "Orb of Clear Water" and causing Natasha Whitewater to spawn.

NPC: Natasha Whitewater

Location: Timorous Deep, near Omat Vastsea.

Spawn Timer: Spawned when "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe" is given to Omat Vastsea.

Accepts Item: "Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring", results in "Ornate Sea Shell (II)" (actual item name is "Ornate Sea Shell", identifies as "Ornate Sea Shell II", referred to herein as "Ornate Sea Shell (II)")

Spoken Text: (after turning in "Lord Gimblox's Signet Ring") "Thank you, [your name] , for your services thus far. The Triumvirate missionaries are, so far, impressed. However, there is yet another threat rising from the Plasmatic Priesthood that may have dire effects on all of Norrath if it is not stopped. An Iksar member of the Triumvirate missionaries has discovered that the Plasmatic Priesthood has somehow convinced the sarnak summoners of Chardok to assit them in summoning Ixilblat Fer to Norrath. Take this shell to Naxton Deepwater in the Burning Woods so that she knows I have sent you. We ask that you return with the Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer as well as evidence to show that the Plasmatic Priesthood is dealing with sarnaks. High Priest Omat will await your return. I Must depart now. I pray for your success."

NPC: Naxot Deepwater

Location: Burning Woods, approx. loc (3400, -2150).

Spawn Timer: Spawns at 6pm, despawns at 6am.

Accepts Item: "Ornate Sea Shell (II)", spawns Ixiblat Fer and returns "Message to Natasha", an unreadable note. She will charge Ixiblat Fer and suicide if you do not keep her from doing so. If she is still alive after Ixiblat Fer dies, you can respawn it right away if you have another person waiting with an "Ornate Sea Shell (II)".

Drops: Triumvirate Missionary Robe (this item is now NORENT as well)

Spoken Text: (when hailed) "Beware these woods! The sarnak claim this land as their own and wicked creatures walk beneath the burning foliage."

(after turning in "Ornate Sea Shell (II)") "Praise the Triumvirate! Natasha sent you just in time! Those twisted sarnak summoners are summoning Ixiblat Fer as we speak! We must stop Ixiblat Fer while he is still weak or all of Norrath may be set aflame! Please do me one more favor, should I perish to this beast of fire. Give this note to Natasha when you next see her, and if you should perish and I survive, I will make sure the waters never forget your reflections of your deeds this day."

NPC: Ixiblat Fer

Location: Burning Woods, loc (-2000, 1500)

Level: 62

Hit Points: Approx. 32000

Melee Damage: Godly (Max 575)

Spells Cast: AE Fire (300 pt dd, same as Noble Djorn/Overseer of Air, resistible)

Drops: (always) Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer (plus one of) Circlet of Fire, Mantle of Fire, Gloves of Fire, Belt of Fire, Cloak of Flames

Tactics: This is a high level (52+), multi-group (24-30 person) encounter. Most people pull him to the Skyfire zone before fighting, and report that he follows pullers reliably without aggroing additional mobs. His magic resistance is reportedly average to below average for his level, and he is NOT immune to fire-based spells. Mage fire pets will be immune to his AE fire proc, however. He will attempt to flee when low on health, and he apparently has a high regen rate which will take effect near the end of the fight if he is not finished quickly. Slowing/debuffing him is highly recommended. Charmed wurms do good damage as well.

NPC: Overking Bathezid Di'Zok

Location: Chardok, but use this map <http://www.geocities.com/walbort_chosen/walkthrough/chardokroyal.gif> for the correct spawn locations.

Spawn Timer: 2 hours, no known placeholder

Level: 63+

Melee Damage: Uber (approx. max 385)

Spells Cast: Fiery Death (AE, approx 500 hp dmg, cancels 1 buff), Complete Heal, Gravity Flux, Gate

Drops: Singed Scroll which reads, "Greetings Overking Bathezid. The time has come for you to return the boon owed to me from so long ago. I have need of your most powerful summoners to bring Ixiblat Fer into the mortal realm and rain fire upon my enemies. Your old friend, Zordak Ragefire", other drops include Argent Defender (33/49 2h slash), Incarnadine Breastplate, Vibrating Gauntlets/Hammer of Infuse Tactics: This is a high level (55+), multi-group (24-30+ person) encounter. The best location for the fight is a matter of opinion. If you fight in his room, you must be careful not to aggro the queen, plus Gravity Flux may aggro mobs in above rooms (Herbalist room) if they are not kept clear. If you fight in the hallway, he may gate (cannot be interrupted) and begin summoning people to their deaths. Another successful tactic involved clearing up to the Herbalist room and fighting the Overking there. He has approx. 6 guards (avg. level may be ~54) with him. Draining his mana will prevent use of Complete Heal and Gate late in the fight.

NPC: Omat Vastsea

Location: As above

Accepts Item: "Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer " and "Singed Scroll", results in "Orb of Clear Water".

Spoken Text: (when given "Sceptre of Ixiblat Fer " and "Singed Scroll") I commend you on your success over the fire elemental lord, Ixiblat Fer. The fact that the Plasmatic Priesthood has mustered up the power to summon such a being means drastic actions must be taken to stop the fanatic cult of Fennin Ro. I wonder what kind of favor Zordak Ragefire performed for the sarnak summoners to convince them to assist in the ritual that brought forth Ixiblat Fer. The dragon Iksar hybrid abominations are not beings who ally with others easily. All I have seen in my divinations of the High Plasmatic Priest are riddles, and signs that the one who slays him may be awarded an Orb of the Triumvirate. If you are the one whom my visions foretell, then seek Zordak Ragefire and bring me his heart.

Step Three: Obtain the Orb of Vapor

Immediately after completing the previous step, give "Message to Natasha" to Natasha Whitewater to receive "Shimmering Pearl". Turn in the "Shimmering Pearl" to Zordak Ragefire. He will transform from a level 60 vendor to a level 55 NPC and attack you. When he is killed, Zordakalicus Ragefire, a named fire dragon, will spawn on the spot. Kill him and loot the "Heart of Zordak Ragefire". Turn in the "Heart of Zordak Ragefire" to Omat Vastsea, receiving the "Orb of Vapor" and causing Jhassad Oceanson to spawn.

NPC: Natasha Whitewater

Location: As above

Spawn Timer: Spawned when "Blood Soaked Plasmatic Priest Robe" is given to Omat Vastsea.

Accepts Item: "Message to Natasha", results in "Shimmering Pearl"

Spoken Text: (when given "Message to Natasha") Natasha Whitewater lowers her head in mourning and whispers a prayer. It is a shame that fate has decided one so young and from such a background should perish, but we must not attempt to change what was destined to be. Priestess Naxot sacrificed herself selflessly so that others may be spared the horrors Ixiblat would have brought to Norrath. May the waters of Norrath forever remember her reflection. I thank you for delivering Naxot's message to me and give you this pearl imbued with the power of the Triumvirate. Should you find Zordak Ragefire, speak with him before all else and hand him this pearl. No mortal enemy of the Triumvirate can resist its enchantments.

NPC: Zordak Ragefire/Zordakalicus Ragefire

Location: Solusek B in back of Nagafen's lair.

Spawn Timer: Uncertain. Kel posted an approximation for his spawn formula which may or may not be accurate: "At zone boot-up, do the following- spawn Nagafen, spawn Magus Rokyl, do not spawn Ragefire, set Ragefire-respawn to false. When Magus Rokyl dies, do the following- set Magus Rokyl respawn timer at four game-days, if Nagafen is not up and Ragefire-respawn = false then spawn Ragefire and set Ragefire-respawn to true. When Ragefire dies, do the following- set timer at 16 game-days, if Nagafen is not up at respawn time, then spawn Ragefire, otherwise do not respawn Ragefire and set Ragefire-respawn to false." Alternately, Aarich speculated "that his spawn is 0-65 hours (72 is the max I bet as one of the developers posted they can delay pops for up to 3 days) after nag dies. Then after you kill him it is 23-24 hours."

Level: 60 (initial spawn), 55 (after receiving "Shimmering Pearl"), 54 (dragon form)

Drops: Initially, he is a vendor that sells Imbue Fire Opal (Solusek Ro deity-specific spell) and Oil of Fennin Ro (~1700pp). In dragon form, always drops "Heart of Zordak Ragefire", plus one or more pieces of "Blazing" armor and Nagafen loot table items, including red dragon scales. Known "Blazing" items include Blazing Greaves of Fennin Ro, Blazing Vambraces, and a breastplate (AC 20, +5 WIS, +5 INT, +8 CHA, +20 SV FIRE, plate classes/all races but Iksar, effect: Sunbeam).

Spoken Text: (when hailed) Zordak Ragefire stares at <your name> with unblinking eyes. A wide grin crosses Zordak's face and flames flicker in the depths of his eyes. 'Welcome to the new fortress of the Plasmatic Priesthood! It's a shame about Lord Nagafen's untimely death, really it is! Such a powerful and noble creature should not perish at the hands of mortals.'

(when given "Shimmering Pearl") Zordak Ragefire laughs maniacally as he crushes the pearl in his hands with inhuman strength. 'The Triumvirate missionaries think their petty magic can affect me!! I will send your heads to Omat as a symbol of what is to come for all of his missionaries!'

Tactics: After being given the pearl, Zordak Ragefire will attack you. When he is killed, his true (dragon) form, Zordakalicus Ragefire, will spawn on the spot where he dies. Zordakilicus Ragefire is a clone of Lord Nagafen, but will not banish level 53+ characters. Normal Nagafen tactics apply, except that he runs at the end of the fight, as in the above picture, and may hit somewhat harder than Nagafen.

NPC: Omat Vastsea

Location: As above

Accepts Item: "Heart of Zordak Ragefire", results in "Orb of Vapor" and Jhassad Oceanson spawns.

Spoken Text: (when given "Heart of Zordak Ragefire") Omat Vastsea says 'I see now that Zordak Ragefire and the exiled elder dragon Zordakalicus were the same being. That explains how he resisted our attempts to divine his affairs and past. Each of these orbs I have granted you represents one of the Triumvirate. Jhassad Oceanson awaits on the shore below to perform the ritual that will merge the orbs into a single Orb of the Triumvirate and summon an avatar from the Plane of Water. Present the Orb of the Triumvirate to the Avatar of Water when it arrives and allow your destiny to be unraveled.

Step Four: Obtain the Orb of the Triumvirate

Immediately after completing the previous step, turn in the "Orb of Frozen Water", "Orb of Clear Water", and "Orb of Vapor" to Jhassad Oceanson, receiving the "Orb of the Triumvirate" and resulting in "Avatar of Water" spawn.

NPC: Jhassad Oceanson

Location: Timorous Deep, near Omat Vastsea

Spawn Timer: Spawned when "Heart of Zordak Ragefire" is given to Omat Vastsea.

Accepts Item: "Orb of Frozen Water", "Orb of Clear Water", and "Orb of Vapor", results in "Orb of the Triumvirate".

Spoken Text: (when given "Orb of Frozen Water", "Orb of Clear Water", and "Orb of Vapor") Jhassad Oceanson kneels in the sand and places the three orbs into a large abalone shell bowl. A blue glow surrounds his hands as he waves them over the orbs resting in the bowl. The orbs crack and fall apart, releasing their contents, then reform into a single glowing orb. Jhassad Oceanson gently removes the Orb of the Triumvirate and places it in [your name]'s hands. 'The Avatar of Water approaches. You must hand him the Orb of the Triumvirate and it will be decided if it is your destiny to wield the Nem Ankh Sprinkler.

Step Five: Obtain the Water Sprinkler of Nem Ankh

Immediately after completing the previous step, turn in the "Orb of the Triumvirate" to the Avatar of Water, receiving "Water Sprinkler of Nem Ankh".

NPC: Avatar of Water

Location: Timorous Deep, near Jhassad Oceanson

Accepts Item: "Orb of the Triumvirate", returns "Water Sprinkler of Nem Ankh"

Tactics: The Avatar of Water spawns, roams along the shore, then returns to stand by Jhassad Oceanson. You may turn in the Orb at any point in the Avatar's pathing, but you will not receive experience unless you turn it in once it has stopped.

DRUID EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Start

First off, know this: if you took part in any raids on the Plane of Growth, kiss the epic goodbye. Your faction will be toast to everyone who should be your allies. You can walk through PoG totally unmolested and even get a quest for a great pair of gloves, but never, EVER, kill anything up there or be a part of a group that does. Don't heal anyone, don't SoW them. On person reported going from ally to indifferent with Tunare for SoWing someone who was part of a raid.

Also, even though it's tempting, didn't kill the Millers in Qeynos Hills like so many have done, and don't kill Holly Windstalker, no matter how annoying that bitch is. Both are on the Ranger faction table and there's no repairing that faction.

It starts with Telin Darkforest (Level 55) in Burning Woods. He's hidden in a grove of thick trees near to the Skyfire zone and has been spotted at 3234, 2871. Use tracking to find him, and invis to get through the zone unmolested. Ask him "what action" and he will give you a worn note. If he doesn't, then your faction is too low. Faction can be built up fast by doing the muffin quest in Freeport.

Next, find Faelin Bloodbriar in Greater Faydark. She spawns around 1500,500, or south-west of the Crushbone entrance. She has orc pawn placeholders, so kill every pawn you see to make her spawn. Once she spawns, you better be SoWed, because she runs constantly and won't stop when you hail her. Give her the note (and keep running after her) and you'll receive a ring. After giving her the note she depops.

Go to Kithicor Forrest and track Giz X'Tin, a dark elf who will not attack you. He can be found on the path to Highpass Hold, but is usually closer to the WC zone than HPH. Be very careful of the other dark elves in this zone. Give him the ring and he gives you a dark metal coin. After you hand him the ring a level 50 Darkelf Reaver spawns and attacks you. Have SoW on you so that you can run away.

Go back to Telin Darkforest and give him the Coin. He will give it back to you as worn metal coin and tells you to find Athele. She is in the East Karanas , just north of the barbarian fishing village. Once you start this section, you begin a chain of events, so don't do it until you are ready to finish the job.

Give her the worn metal coin and receive a worn amulet. Give this amulet to Sionae (-2300, -930), then to Nuien (-3650, -300) and finally to Teloa (-3800, -2860). Teola will say to follow her, but don't. A Dark Elf Corruptor and two Darkelf Reavers (all around level 50) will spawn around -1500, -1000. The Corrupter will depop after 10 seconds if not attacked and the Reavers will attack and kill all of the druids you just dealt with, so have a small army ready. You must take out the Corrupter. Loot immediately to get his tome. His buddies will attack the druids down by the shore if you don't stop them. If you don't kill him in time, or don't loot in time, and his buddies kill the druids and despawn, you won't get the book and will have to start over from the beginning. Also keep in mind these inkies are Shadow Knights, so don't be too close to their spawn point or you will be harm touched.

If the Reavers kill the druids, just wait one hour of real time (not EQ time) and Athele will spawn again. Give her the tome and she gives you an Earthstained Note. Bring this to Ella Foodcrafter, a Halfling running around in Misty Thicket. Like Faelin, she constantly runs, so you have to chase her. Give her the Earthstained Note and she will tell you that she needs a mixture. She will give you her mixing bowl. It is a Container so you need a free slot in the Inventory. She also mentions some kind of ancient bowl that she needs.

The Hardened Mixture

You must forage four items that you have to combine in Ella's mixing bowl. Forage a Chilled Tundra Root from Everfrost Peaks, a Sweetened Mudroot from Misty Thicket, a Speckled Moldy Mushroom from Innothule Swamp and a Heartfruit from Greater Faydark. You need a forage skill of over 100 to do this, so I hope you've been building up your forage skills.

Go to these zones, you can forage these items anywhere within the zones, find a nice safe space and hit forage continuously. The four items look like edible foods, but you'll get a message saying "You have foraged something that does not look edible." This can take several hours so be prepared to be very bored. When you get the items, combine them in the bowl and you get a Hardened Mixture. After this you will no longer need the mixing bowl.

The Runed Bowl

Now go to the Chess Island in Timorous Deep. The easiest way to do this is to take the barge from the Oasis docks to Timorous Deep. From this island, cast levitate, Sow and invis (there's a deadly Iksar on Chess Island, you want to avoid him) and run south. Do it from something elevated, like the docks, so you skim over the water. Run straight south. Use track to locate Alrik Farsight. He's at about -6500, 2000. Note that Succor and Egress both take you within 100 feet of Alrik. Egress is a level 52 Druid spell, and Succor is a group form of that, received at level 57.

Uninvis yourself, hail him, then say "How do you make an ancient bowl?" and "I can take the artifact." He gives you a crushed pot and sends you to Felwithe. Hail Farios Elianos in Felwithe South before you give him the crushed pot. Farios is in the merchant building near the caster's guild. When you enter Felwithe South, you'll see the entrance to the merchant straight ahead, whereas the entrance to the caster's guild is to the left.

If he doesn't respond to you then your faction with Keepers of the Art is too low. Do NOT give him the pot. Indifferent is not enough, you need amiable. You can build up faction fast with the batwing-quest in Felwithe South.

(This quest is simple and cheap but time-consuming. In EC, right near the zone to WC, there is a merchant south of Orc 2 camp, an Erudite. She sells bat wings, cheap. Select the wings from her list, hold down shift and click on Buy about 5-6 times. You'll have 5-6 stacks of wings. Head back to Felwithe South, run to the mage guild, and hand in wings, 4 per stack in all 4 give slots, to Niola Impholder, a trainer in the Felwithe Mage guild. It took me two full backpacks of wings to go from indifferent to amiable, and I am a Wood Elf follower of Tunare.)

Once Farios cons amiable and talks to you, give him the pot and you receive a grocery list. The dialogue with the NPCs for this segment is pretty funny. He will give you the receipt for the bowl if you do a job for him. Bring this grocery list to Merchant Nora in the Shop of All Halos in Felwithe north, which is near the cleric guild. She gives you in return a bag of Provisions. Bring it to Farios and he gives you the receipt for the ancient bowl. Head back to Alrik Farsight in Timorous Deep. He will give you an ancient pattern when you give him the receipt.

The pattern says that you have to combine it with a piece of enchanted clay and platinum speckled powder in a pottery wheel. NO skill in pottery is required.

Platinum speckled powder can be obtained through another sub quest. Forage a Rose of Firiona in Firiona Vie and give it to Merdan Fleetfoot in Surefall Glades, a male ranger in the back of the zone, near the water. The old wooden painting that you receive has to be brought to the human skeleton (Level 40) that roams the western part of Frontier Mountains . It can be found wandering on the western and southern areas, far from the giant fort. Invis yourself to be left alone by the wandering mobs. Look for "A Human Skeleton" on track. Give him the painting and he will crumble, and you'll have a silver chained locket in your inventory. Back to Surefall Glade. Give the locket to Niera Farbreeze, a human female in banded armor, also near the water but close to the druid guild building. She will hand you the platinum speckled powder.

Enchanted clay can be obtained through Kinlo Strongarm in Kaladim's EverHot Forge. If you ask him "what mud" and "do it for me" he will tell you that he would like to have a colored axe for his service. He wants a Jade Reaver that can be found in the City of Mist off of a Black Reaver who is about level 52. This is not easy at all. The Reaver is a rare drop and the Black Reavers are a real pain to take down. You will need at least one full group of 50+ players if not two, and one must be a rogue with high lock picking skills.

Hand Kinlo the axe and you get the enchanted clay. If you hunted dwarf citizens in Butcher, invis yourself and head to the forge. The merchants, thankfully, are on a different faction table. Just go to the Everhot Forge and hand Kinlo a Jade Reaver to get the clay. Now combine the pattern, clay and powder in any pottery wheel to make the Rune Crested Bowl.

The Stones

Go Back to Misty Thicket and hand Ella Foodcrafter the hardened mixture and the rune crested bowl. She will make for you a softly glowing stone from it. Ella tells you to find one such as yourself. For the Druids this means to seek out Foloal Stormforest in Firiona Vie.

Foloal is a half elf on the wall that circles the city of Firiona Vie at the north end. Ask her "are you one such as myself?", "what answers?" and "what about Venril Sathir?" She tells you to bring her the stone you already have from Ella and the gem that can be found on Venril Sathir.

You can kill Venril Sathir in Karnor's Castle, but why? Venril is a very tough shadow knight. He is only killed by the strongest guilds or big raids because he is level 55, hits for 300 FAST, has a 1000+ life suck spell and has two personal clerics that heal him whenever he gets hurt. This guy is extremely hard so you might want to be in a good group to do this part.

Better thing to do is let some uber guild take him down. He gets killed for his loot all the time. His remains will spawn in 24 hours, or less. When you see Venril Sathir Remains on track, get your friends together, fast. The Remains will be indifferent to you and just stand there. Hail him and he will respond.

First, conjure a Globe of Fireflies. Dance of the Fireflies is a level 5 druid spell that you may not have even bought, but you'll need it for this. Hand him the globe. A new VS will spawn. Then give him the level 49 cleric Resurrection spell, which you can buy at any cleric guild. He will attack you. Step back and let your tanks take him out. Thankfully, this new VS is not as brutal as the original, but he's no cakewalk either.

The remains will drop two stones, called Pulsing Green Stone. You can use either stone. Because the two stones are twins, and both druids and rangers need to take out VS, I ended up splitting the job with another guild. My guild and a second both teamed up (out of necessity since we got there at the same time) to take out Venril, and both me and another druid each got one stone. It’s something to consider yourself.

Take the Softly Glowing Stone and Pulsing Green Stone back to Foloal Stormforest. She will give you a warm pulsating stone. This is the time where the quest splits up into the Druid and the Ranger parts. Up to now, they've been identical. Foloal tells you to take the stone and walk your path. The Druid's path leads back to Ella Foodcrafter in Misty Thicket. Give her the stone and you will get the Elaborate Scimitar (10/30 9 wis 10 mana 5 sv poison and disease). Now you have one of the four final pieces and a pretty good weapon in its own right. She asks you to collect the Cleansed Spirits of Antonica, Faydwer and Kunark and hand them along with the scimitar to Xanuusus.

The Cleansed Spirits

In almost all cases with the cleansed spirits, on all three continents, you will have to kill placeholders before a Tainted animal will spawn. Once you kill the Tainted, a Corrupted version may or may not spawn. It’s always pot luck and you may have to kill several Tainteds to get one Corrupted. In all cases, a Corrupted will spawn immediately after the Tainted is killed, there’s no delay, and it will spawn from the corpse of the Tainted, not at the original spawn spot. So a lot of patience is required. The good news is that when the Corrupted spawns out of the Tainted, some of them won't agro on you, so you have a few seconds to regroup before attacking again. But don't sit around or it will depop.

The Cleansed Spirit of Antonica

Go to North Karana and find a Withered Treant. It is at the far north end of NK, at the base of a mountain wall. It’s very close to Xanuusus, who gets the three Cleansed Spirits and the Scimitar when you are done. Hail him and ask him "What Sickness" and he will respond that he wants you to cleanse Antonica of its sickness. He means to kill three things.

The first one is the Corrupted Mammoth. He is below level 30, spawns in Everfrost Peaks , pops near Permafrost zone line and Mammoth Calves are his place holder. I got this one while hunting Icy Orcs at Redwind's temple. From level 25 to 30 you can camp the Icys and get good XP, all the taking out Mammoth Calves to make him pop and keeping an eye on Tracking for the Tainted Mammoth. When you see the Tainted, take it out and immediately a hopefully a Corrupted Mammoth will spawn. Kill it and a Chunk of Tundra will drop. That's what you need.

The second monster is the Corrupted Aquagoblin Shaman. He is mid level 30 in Lake Rathe with side spawns on tops of the underwater-tower. There is a female dark elf named Deep for the Cleric Epic Quest. Ignore her and she'll ignore you. Do this in wolf form so the other goblins won't agro on you. Some people have chosen to fight under water, but if Enduring Breath wears off you could be in a heap of trouble. You are better off kiting the goblins at the top of the tower to the surface, especially since these gobs are clerics and cast some strong cleric spells. They can dish out a serious hurting, plus they can heal themselves. Kill the gobs at the top of the tower only, don't bother with the ones around the base. Eventually a Tainted Goblin will spawn. Kill the Corrupted and get a Clean Lakewater item. It looks like a globe of water.

The third one creature is the Corrupted Hill Giant in Rathe Mountains. You want to hunt in the HG area south of the hill with the Guard Tower in Rathe, where Cyclops can also be found. The same process applies here. Kill HGs around the tower and a Tainted Hill Giant will spawn. Kill it and hopefully a Corrupted will spawn. When it dies, loot an Ancient Rock from it.

Give the 3 items looted from all the Corrupted monsters to the Withered Treant in NK to receive the Treant Heart.

Go to Yeka Ias (2330, -2340) in South Karana, who is far to the east of the bridge and along the water, and give him the heart. He will give you the Cleansed Spirit of Antonica. This is the easiest of the three spirits.

The Cleansed Spirit of Faydwer

You will meet a pained Unicorn in Lesser Faydark. Ask him "What Corrupt" and he will tell you, "Pained Unicorn tosses its head back, drool falling from its mouth. The priests of the sick, channel filth and sickness into the lands. Too late did we notice to stop them. Here, in the ocean, and in the underwater city of old. Go to those places and find the corruptions. Bring them to me." Collect for him the items looted from the Corrupted Seahorse, the Corrupted Cyclops, and the Corrupted Brownie.

The first monster, the Corrupted Seahorse is located in Kedge Keep. He is around level 52 and needs 1-2 strong groups to be killed. It's passed the area where Estrella and Undertow, the named Seahorse, spawn. This guy hits for about 141 damage and is a cleric, so he can complete heal himself. Bring clerics and barbarians to stun him when he starts to cast a spell. KK is a rough zone, bring lots of scales for Enduring Breath or get an EB item like a fishbone earring. You MUST bring an enchanter for crowd control because there are a lot of crowds.

The second creature is the Corrupted Seafury Cyclops. You need 3-4 high level people to take this one out. It spawns on an island west of Sister Island in OOT. Take the boat from Freeport, get off on Sister Island, and head west. The first island is the one with a mage spell vendor in a tower. The next island to the west is Sea Fury island. There's around a half dozen Sea Furies, which are cyclops. You can pull them to the shore or other island until a Tainted spawns. The best tactic is fear kiting because they hit hard and are around level 52. The Corrupted also summons. The item dropped is Seavines.

The third creature is the Corrupted Brownie. He is a level 55 druid and can be taken out by a full group of mid level 40s, especially with a necro or enchanter to fear kite. His placeholder is a Brownie Scout. All Brownie Scouts spawn at location 0,0. Camp there and kill every brownie that spawns. The Tainted will spawn at the same location. The Brownie is a druid so get your magic resist up and be ready to get hit hard.

Now head back to the Unicorn. The Unicorn will give you a gleaming horn for the 3 items looted from the corrupted. This has to be handed to the gnome Silox Azrix in Ak'Anon to get the Cleansed Spirit of Faydwer. He is near the mines on the left side of the green river. There is another green gnome near him but you can do this part with superior camouflage on you if you are KoS or otherwise disliked there because you need no faction for Silox.

The Cleansed Spirit of Kunark

Ulump Pujlik, a named Froglok in Swamp of No Hope tells you to give his own essence along with the 3 corrupted things to the gnome that hurts the land. His location is -108, -1762. He is around level 55+ and hits for over 200 damage with 32000 hitpoints and almost 100% magic resist. The only spell that works is the wizard Lure spell. You should have 2 groups with 4-6 melees and 2-4 healers to kill Ulump, casters with pets if you can, and damage shield the tanks. He drops the Froglok Essence.

The 3 corrupted mobs of Kunark are the Corrupted Gorilla, Corrupted Barracuda, and the Dragon Faydedar. The Corrupted Gorilla is mid-40s and spawns in the Emerald Jungle in the northern part of the plateau. Take the giant stairs on the western side of the zone and then head north from the stairs, to the zone wall. Tottering Gorillas are its placeholder. Only pull Tottering Gorillas, the rest are pointless. The best way to get the gorilla is to use invis to get around, track them down and pull to the northern zone wall away from other mobs. Make sure that Severilous, a very powerful dragon, is not around. He will agro if you are in wolf form. The gorilla can be feared with Repulse Animal. He drops the Green Tree Bark.

The second monster, Corrupted Barracuda, is found in the main lake of Lake of Ill Omen at around -900, -900. Same old story here, kill the placeholder, a Deepwater Barracuda, until the Tainted spawns. Placeholders are on a 10 minute timer and this will consume many boring hours. You can determine if the Tainted Barracuda will spawn the Corrupted very easily. Exit the water. If it follows you onto land, that Tainted WILL spawn the Corrupted. If it doesn't follow you, it won't spawn the Corrupted, but you still have to kill it anyway. The Tainted that comes on land is significantly tougher than the other barracudas and you will need help, like a necro to fear kite. Kill him and get the Pure Lakewater.

The last, final and toughest mob in this whole ordeal is the dragon Faydedar in Timorous Deep. He's really small for a dragon and looks like a lowland basilisk in Butcherblock, but don't be fooled. He is at least level 53 and hits rapidly for up to 250 damage and has major magic resist. His spawn spot is in an oasis at the very southern end of Timorous Deep. Take the boat from the Oasis dock to Timorous and have a 57 or higher wizard evacuate you to Chess Island, or just levitate and run there. A better deal is the necro spell Dead Man Floating, since it gives you levitate AND lets you breathe under water. From there the oasis is to the southeast. Don't go straight south because you'll hit Raptor Island and the agro range of those raptors is ridiculous.

The entrance is at approximately -11300, -3500. It's a large mountain range with a hidden cove. On the far eastern side is an underwater cavern. Swim in and you come up in an inside ring, with yet a second circular area to enter, like a circle within a circle. The second entrance is on the north side of the inside ring. So when you get inside, go right and follow the inside wall, so it's on your left. There is a second underwater entrance that will bring you into the lagoon. You can get an idea from the map at EQAtlas.

The tactics are: load up with about four or five useless, dummy buffs like see invisible, save vs. poison, etc. THEN put on your good buffs. He will dispel you several times, so let the garbage buffs go first. You need as high fire and magic resist as possible, those are his main weapons. Get all the fire and magic resist gear you can and have a bard to twist Psalm of Mystic Shielding and Psalm of Cooling. Also, remove SoW and turn run to walk. He WILL fear people. If you are SoWed and running you will go quite a distance. Never, under any circumstances, should a caster sit to med when they go OOM. You will be summoned and killed. Last, never heal yourself. Have someone else do it.

When you go to trigger him, have the casters hiding in the second tunnel that leads into the oasis. This will keep them out of range of the AoEs and Dragon Roar. Take the tanks with you to the shore where you will see a dwarf fisherman named Dolgin Codslayer. Give him the Froglok Essence you got from Ulump. Dolgin will give it back to you and depop. This triggers Fay. Have the tanks melee him down to 80 or 70 percent, then bring in the casters from the tunnel to nuke him and start healing the tanks. His magic resists are very high, but cold spells and wizard lures can stick, as will Tashan. But to be honest, lots of tanks and lots of clerics really are the tactic here. Casters won't be much help except wizards for lures and enchanters to haste the tanks. Kill him and loot the Pod of Seawater.

Hand the 4 items to the Gnome Nekexin Virulence in Overthere. He is by the water at the far north end of the zone, to the east of the evil outpost. Approach from the far east, heading west. The evil outpost, with those damned goons, is on the far west of the zone by the water and you don't want to go near it. Give him the Froglok Essence, Pure Lakewater, Green Tree Bark and Pod of Seawater. He will depop and give you the Cleansed Spirit of Kunark.

The End

Well you have made it. Done something extremely difficult. You have made it through the most difficult Druid Quest in the game. Hand the 3 Cleansed Spirits and the scimitar to Xanuusus the Treant in North Karanas to receive the Nature Walker 's Scimitar.

ENCHANTER EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Start

The quest starts in the second floor of the Vasty Deep Inn in Erudin. There you will find Stofo Olan. Hail him:

You: 'hail Stofo Olan'

Stofo Olan: 'Good day, I have discovered something truly wonderful! If I only had the materials required so I can copy my notes and send them to my teacher.'

You: 'what materials?'

Stofo Olan: 'The materials I need are a mechanical pen, ink of the dark, and white paper. Bring me those and I will give you a copy of this information.'

You: 'who is your teacher?'

Stofo Olan: 'My teacher is Jeb Lumsed. He was last seen in the regions of the newly discovered lands. If you wish to find him that is where you must seek him out.'

You heard him, you need to get him the three items he asked for which are a Mechanicel Pen, Ink of the Dark, and the White Paper. These are all mini sub-quests.

Ink of the Dark

Now find Reania Jukle in the Qeynos Aqueducts.

You: 'what is the ink of the dark?'

Reania Jukle: 'Ink of the Dark, you say? That isn't an everyday item, you know. In fact i can't remember the last time someone requested it. I have given up keeping any here with me. You are going to need to find your own supply now. Sorry.'

You: 'where can I find the ink of the dark?

Reania Jukle says: 'The ink is the blood of a dark scribe. Tempt him and give him this vial. He should cooperate.'

You recieve an Empty Ink Vial from her. Now go to Lower Guk and find the Ghoul Scribe. Charm it and give it the Empty Ink Vial. It will give you the Ink of the Dark.

Mechanical Pen

Now go fine Rilgor Plegnog in the Mine of Malfunction in Ak'Anon.

You: 'What do you know about a mechanical pen?'

Rilgor Plegnog says: 'Why do you want one of those contraptions. You will spend more time repairing it then you will writing with it. But if you insist on getting one, you are going to have to do a small favor.'

Rilgor Plegnog tugs at your robe and grins evilly. Mighty nice outfit you have there. Sure beats these drab robes us three are wearing. Hmm...my favorite color is purple, in fact a shiny metallic purple would do nicely. How bad did you want that pen?'

Yep! You got it! Rilgor wants the shiny metallic robes. These robes are dropped off of the Ghoul Archmagus. He spawns in the Magi Room. To get there from the Dead Side Zone 1, go down the small hallway at the zone, turn right and go down another hill. Run through the small corridor until you come to water. Jump into the water and swim to the right. You will come up at the bedroom. Take the passage all the way to the left. Follow this until you come to a big room with bats in it. Take the passage to the left of you. Next, follow the wall to the right, past the Greater Ice Bone Skeletons. Until you come to a group of steps with a bridge. Jump off the bridge to the left. Go straight down a hallway and you will come to a jail. Keep going straight down that hallway until you can turn to the right. Turn to the right and follow that hallway to the magi room. For a map go to www.graffe.com. The magus is a 30 minutes spawn and has a placeholder which is usually a Kor Ghoul Wizard or a Dar Ghoul Knight. He spawns 1 every 5 times. So expect him to spawn once every 2 and a half hours. The rare drop is a Shiny Metallic Robe which drops 1 every 6 times. If you get up early in the morning and get into a group there I bet by the end of the day you will have one. Note that the Shiny Metallic Robe is not no drop and can be purchased for approximately 7,000 platinum.

The White Paper

Now you must get the white paper. You need to find Chrislin Baker at 1050, -1990 in West Karanas. Give her a paper and quill. These can be found at any enchanter guild.

Chrislin Baker gives you a hug. 'Thank you so much. I did some cleaning after you left and found this behind a barrel. It may have been left behind by the person who took my materials. You can have it'.

She hands you a Bandit Sash. Receiving the sash will spawn Thracken Griften, a level 55 very aggressive Bandit at around loc 800,-11570. You need to kill him to get the white paper. He is totally magic immune so you will need lots of tanks and clerics. Pets are also useful.

Go back to Erudin and give Stofo the three items.

'Yes, that is what I wanted.'
'Here, take these notes.'
'My teacher will be very interested if he knows what I have found'.

He will give you a Copy of Notes.

Jeb Lemused

Now you must find Jeb Lemused, who is in the form of a sarnak imitator in the Burning Woods. He is not always around. To make him spawn, kill nearby sarnaks. Hail him when he spawns.

You: 'Are you Jeb Lumsed?'

A sarnak imitator: 'Yes I am. Use your most enlightened magic to seek the truth of what is around you. When that is done, you will know what you seek’

You give the Copy of Notes to Jeb Lumsed.

A sarnak imitator: 'I see that you have what I was waiting for. Stofo does do excellent work. It seems that you are to start on a long journey. Take this seal and it will guide you on your next step. Seek out the masters of enchantment. In time we will craft the Serpent for you. When you have collected the four parts of the staff, you must combine them in a bundle for me. If you need a sack, just let me know.'

You receive a coin called 'jeb's seal'

You: 'I need a sack'

A sarnak imitator: 'Take this sack and combine the items I requested in it. Then return it to me.

You receive an enchanter's bag.

You: 'What serpent?'

A sarnak imitator: 'The first truly powerful enchanter, Krilan Pedin, crafted the Serpent years ago. He trained his students to carry on the trade in a five-step process. Each student then became a master and chose one of their own students to pass the legacy on to. Four others and I, myself, are current practitioners of the crafting.

You: 'Who are the four other masters?'

A sarnak imitator: 'The masters are enchanters who have reached the plateau of understanding. Their names are Modani Qu'Loni, Mizzle Gepple, Nadia Starfeast, and Polzin Mrid. All are master crafters in their own right.

You: 'Who is modani?'

A sarnak imitator: 'Modani is a master of illusions. You should seek him out first. Keep a careful eye out for him - he is never in his true form. The last time I spoke to him, he seemed very excited about his voyage to the elven outpost. You may or may not find more clues about his location there.

You: 'Who is mizzle?'

A sarnak imitator: 'Mizzle is a gnome who has mastered the use of enlightened magic. Go to him once you have spoken to Modani. Mizzle is not one to travel, so you should not have to look far from his home to find him.

You: 'Who is Nadia?'

A sarnak imitator: 'The mistress of charm, Nadia is very beautiful. She, too, traveled with her relatives to the new land. I just recently received a letter from her. She says more and more pilgrims and explorers are arriving every day, and that the outpost is well defended now.

You: 'Who is Polzin?'

A sarnak imitator: 'Master of the Phantasms - he is the last one you will seek out. Hmm...Polzin is native to Erudin, however, after the incident near Paineel, no one has heard from him. I hope that he is well.

Modani Qu'Loni

The Master of Illusions is Modani who can be found in The Overthere at +540 -940. He is in the form of a Scorpion and is surrounded by other Scorpions. You can either kill these others or have someone lure them away. Once you get to Modani, hail him.

You: 'hail Modani Qu`Loni'

Modani Qu`Loni: 'The hidden self inside a myriad of magic is one that walks quite softly. Yes, that is what you must seek.'

You give Modani Qu'Loni Jeb's Seal.

Modani Qu`Loni: 'Ah yes, Jeb's seal. The time to craft a Serpent must have come. I will need components collected to craft the first of the pieces. I will also provide you with a sack in which you must combine the items. Are you ready to collect them?'

You will get Jeb's Seal back.

You: 'I am ready to collect them.'

Modani Qu`Loni: 'Scattered throughout the world are various items. To prove your worth, go collect these and return them to me. The Xolion Rod, Innoruuk's Word, Chalice of Kings, and snow blossoms.'

You: 'I need a sack.'

Modani Qu'Loni: 'Take this sack and combine the items I requested in it. Then return it to me. '

You receive an Enchanter's Bag

You: 'What is the Chalice of Kings?'

Modani Qu'Loni: 'The Chalice of Kings is the chalice of elven kings. Recently thought to be lost to the ages, it was recently discovered. I need its magical powers to create a magical liquid.'

The Chalice of Kings

To get the Chalice you first have to kill Prince Selrach Di'Zok. He is a 61 warrior in Chardok. Once you have killed him, loot his head. Then, find Joren Nobleheart in the Felwithe Magician Guild. Hail him and give him the head.

'Vengeance has been fufilled! However, the King still has a heavy heart. Not until Firiona has been return can this sadness be lifted. But in appreciation of your efforts, I am honored to present to you the King's Chalice'.

You receive a Chalice of Kings.

The Xolion Rod

Now for the Xolion Rod. The Xolion Rod is found off of Vessel Drozlin near the Shaman Guild in Cabilis East The easiest way to get there is to follow the sewer tunnels to the second opening. Then follow this and you should find him. For more info go to eqmaps.com. He hits for 315 damage (max). He can be killed with 1-3 55+ groups. Loot from his corpse the Xolion Rod.

Snow Blossums

To get the snow blossums, go to Bozlum Blossom (Loc 540, 1150) in Oggok.

Ask her 'What is wrong Bozlum?'
'Boz like to grow perty flowers in her garden. But garden no more.'

'What happened to your flower garden?'

'Boz not know what happen. Only see der biggins footprints in it. Me perty sure my puppy not smash garden. He has tiny feets. Right, puppy?'
Bozlum Blossom pet wags his tail.

Next, go to Brokk Boxtripper who is in a hut very close to her cave. Next to him on the ground will be a pair of Large Muddy Sandals. Take the Sandals to Bozlum for a Scribbled Parchment which she asks that you give to Brokk. When you give the Parchment to Brokk he will give you a Gift to Bozlum which you should take to her.

'Oh, dat silly Brokk. He sent me too many of these perty flowers. Me not know where put them all. Here, you take some cause you help Bozlum. Me like you. Flowers make you smell perty, too'.

She will then give you Snow Blossums.

Innoruuk's Word

The final item you need for Modani is Innoruuk's Word. These are dropped from Verina Tomb in Neriak Third Gate in the Cleric Guild. She is a very easy level 60 with a spawn time of 48 hours. She can be taken down by just 1 55+ group. Have someone that is a Dark Elf or can use Dark Elf Illusion, pull her to the Third Gate zone line. Then, have the enchanter slow and tash her. Have the tanks bash and hit her. If she tries to cast Complete Heal just keep her stunned. There is also a guard at the zone line which you can either mesmerize or kill. She will not hurt any faction.

1st Part of the Staff

Put the Chalice of Kings, Xolion Rod, Innoruuk's Word, and Snow Blossums into the bag that Modani gave you and hit combine. You will get Sack for Modani. Give the Sack to Modani in Overthere and you will receive the 1st Part of the Staff.

Mizzle Gepple

Find Mizzle Gepple in Ak'Anon. He will be in the form of a Clockwork VIIX. Hail him.

You: Are you mizzle?
Clockwork VIIX: 'Oh hello! I'm Mizzle, that I am. I bet you want to be given true clarity, don't you?'

You: 'What are the required components? I am ready to collect them.'
Clockwork VIIX: 'Then bring me a spoon, the one key, the lost scroll, and the book Charm and Sacrifice. I will then reward you with what you seek.'

Ask him for a sack and he will give you an Enchanter's Bag. Next you will have to collect the four items. Most of these items are just found on the ground and have long spawn times so this part might be a little tedious. Atleast you won't have to kill anything that hard.

The Components

The Spoon is dropped from Cazel in Oasis of Marr. He is a rare spawn and has a 300 pop regeneration. Even though he is only 51, the regeneration makes him seem much higher and you need a couple of high level groups to kill him. He will drop the Spoon. The One Key is found in the Overthere on a ledge at approximately -190, -380. You will need levitate to get there. The spawn time is 24 hours. The Lost Scroll is found in the bottom of Dalnir. It is inbetween a bed and the wall at -18, 54. The spawn time is 24 hours. Finally, the Book of Charm and Sacrifice is found in the Plane of Air on a table to the right of the Efreeti spawn. Again the spawn time is 24 hours. Combine all these items in the Enchanter's Bag to get a Sack for Mizzle. Give the Sack to Mizzle in Ak'Anon and you will get the 2nd Piece of the Staff.

Nadia Starfeast

Now find Nadia Starfeast in Firiona Vie at -3870, 2525, -75. Hail her and ask for a Sack. She will give you an Enchanter's Bag. She asks you to fill it with an enchanted diamond, sapphire, ruby, and emerald. To do this you must first get the dull versions of these gems by talking to her:

'What gems?'
'I have prepared some gems that you will need to trap the essence. You will need to force a diamond, sapphire, ruby and emerald onto special creatures to obtain their essence.

'I need a sack'

She gives you an Enchanter's Bag.

What diamond?'
'Here is the diamond that I have prepared for you. Its only purpose is to trap the essence of a particular book worm. If you should fail in your first attempt. Do not worry, I will provide you with another.

You receive a Dull Diamond

'What sapphire?'
'Here is the sapphire that I have prepared for you. Take it and give it to the one referred to as the Golden Faerie.

You receive a Dull Sapphire

'What ruby?'
'Blood red is the ruby that I have given you. The city that you must travel to has no sun, but still a day and night. And at night, the mist could suffocate one. Tis the fate of poor Jaxion.'

You receive a Dull Ruby

'What emerald?'
Nadia Starfeast jumps. 'Eeekk... a scorpian. I thought they rid this area of these critters. Those things give me the creepers. Take this emerald and be on your way.

You receive a Dull Emerald.

The Gems

To get the Enchanted Diamond you must get to the Spectral Librarian in Kaesora at location 85, -415. Once you enter Kaesora, cast levitate and invis, and go straight forwards and drop down the hole. Don't go all the way down - just keep heading straight ahead onto the ledge in front of you. Enter the room with the three spiders and turn right and go through that door. Directly behind that door there is a secret wall which you go through then just before you hit the corner, cast invis vs. undead. Enter the building you see when you go round the corner. The Tortured Librarian is the placeholder so if it is there just simply kill it and wait for the spectral to spawn. Once you see the Spectral Librarian, mesmerize it and hand it the Dull Diamond. It will give you back the Enchanter Diamond and then turn into an enraged spectral librarian. Right now you have two choices. The first one is to gate out. The second one is to kill him. If you choose to do this, three freed souls will spawned once he is dead. These have hardly any hit points but can do quite a bit of damage with their area effect spells.

To get the Enchanted Sapphire you must get to Felia Goldenwing in Skyfire. She spawns rarely close to the Burning Woods zone. The people who hunt here do see her daily so if you get in a group and wait she is bound to come around sometime. Once she is sighted, quickly charm her. She is KoS to all other mobs in Skyfire. Give her the Dull Sapphire and she will give you the Enchanter Sapphire.

To get the Enchanted Emerald you must get to Impaler Tzilug in Overthere at -90, 810. Once you see him, charm him and give him the Dull Emerald. You will get the Enchanted Emerald.

To get the Enchanted Ruby you must get to Wraith of Jaxion in City of Mist. It will spawn next to Neh'Ashiir's building near the Reaver. Charm him and then give it the Dull Ruby. You will get the Enchanter Ruby.

Combine the Enchanted gems in the Enchanter's Bag. You will get a Sack for Nadia. Give the Sack to Nadia.

'Excellent, you have done what is required. Here take this part, and seek the fourth master, to complete your quest'.

You will receive the 3rd Part of the Staff.

Polzin Mrid

Now you must find Polzin Mrid in The Hole in a garden. His is at location 210, -50.

'Hail Polzin Mrid!'
'Yes, young one?

Give Polzin Mrid Jeb's Seal.

'Jeb has spoken with you already, excellent. Tell me are you ready for the test of the phantasm?

You receive Jeb's Seal back.

'I am ready for the test of the phantasm'

'It will be simple, go collect these items and return them to me. Head of a serpent, essence of a ghost, essence of a vampire, and sands of the mystics. Do so and you will receive the last of the pieces. Be sure to combine them in a sack first. Just ask and I will provide you with one.

'What is the head of a serpent?'
'Serpent is probably not an accurate term form what you must return to me. It is actually the remnants of a spirit. The spirit is one which was eradicated long long ago by the Iksar. I believe they were called the Shissar. You may need to travel to the Iksar city to learn more about these creatures.

'What is the essence of a ghost?'
'You don't have to look far to find roaming spirits. One in particular though has more meaning then the other sorry souls trapped here. You see, Kindle was a dear friend of mine. I came in search of him when he stopped writing. Wel....look at me now. I fear that I have succumbed to the same fate as poor Kindle.

'What is the essence of a vampire?'

'The essence of a vampire is just that. Only the most powerful of these creatures will possess what you need.

'What sands of the mystics?'
'They are sands that were imbued with the magical might of the mystics. Mystics use a ritual involving their own blood to create a powerful bond with the sand. One will need to search the shores.

The Components

The Essence of Ghost is found off of The Ghost of Kindle in The Hole. She can be found in the Undead Tower. There are a few other spawns in here such as reavers. They are all non aggressive except for the reavers unless you attack them which you will have to do. You must kill The Ghost of Kindle and the two reavers. On her corpse will be Essence of Ghost.

The Head of a Serpent is found off of a Wraith of a Shissar in Plane of Fear. The Wraith is about a 3 day spawn. It quad hits for 300 and spawns deep inside the Amygdalon temple. The Shissar herself is actually extremely easy to kill. The hard part is getting to her. You basically have to clear the whole Plane, and then pull her from the temple. This could take many hours, or it could take a few, it depends on the skill of your guild.

Sands of the Mystics is found off of The Tangrin at 3500, 2800 in Field of Bone. This is a 54 monkey with high magic resist and a harmful stun. The only thing that really sticks are Wizard Lure spells. He hits for about 230.

The Essence of Vampire is found off of forsaken revenants in Plane of Hate. These are level 49-51 creatures that are rare. As well as the Essence of Vampire, they drop Apothic and Insidious armor so they are uncommon. What's even worse is that Essence of Vampire is a rare drop so it will take a long time to do this.

Combine the four items in the sack given to you by Polzin. You will get a Sack for Polzin. Give him this sack.

You will get the 4th Part of the Staff

The End

Return back to Jeb Lemused in Burning Woods. Ask him I need a sack and he will give you an Enchanter's Bag. Combine the four staves in the bag and you will get an item called Bundle of Staves. Give the Bundle of Staves to Jeb.

'The path you trod was long and hard. Now you are worthy to bear the Serpent. Use it well'.

You will receive the Staff of the Serpent.

Note: If you ever need an Enchanter's Bag to combine quest items, all you need to do is ask any quest NPC, "I need a sack." This will cause them to give you an Enchanter's Bag.

MAGICIAN EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

NOTES

The Planes

This isn't self-evident since some people simply don't know about it. The Planes of Sky and Hate are not connected to any other zone through normal means; you cannot zone into them the same way you zone from Freeport to East Commonlands. There is only one way to get to the Planes: the level 46 wizard spells "Alter Plane: Hate" and "Alter Plane: Sky". These spells teleport the wizard and his group to the port-in house in the Plane of Hate, or the first island in the Plane of Sky. Note that it uses up a reagant (a "Fulligrans Soulstone of Innoruuk" for Hate, and a "Cloudy Stone of Veeshan" for Sky) which each cost 125pp.

Other Notes

Some of the other epic quests (Cleric and Monk, for example) require you to do things in a certain order. You must get item A, give it to mob B, which will cause mob C to spawn, who you kill for item D, and so on. The magician epic has items that can all be acquired in ANY ORDER. The only time that "order" matters is, as noted above, when you turn in the Element of Wind items, because this causes the Master of Elements to spawn. (There are one or two instances with the Power of the Orb sub-sub-quest where you are "supposed" to talk to someone who gives you an item to give to someone else, but, these SHOULD BE optional. Do them anyway! It's epic, man!)

Also, in the cases of items from the Plane of Hate and Plane of Sky, you need to be level 46 to even be teleported into those zones. For your own safety, we recommend that you are at least level 47, and preferably 49 (as our level 49 pets are MUCH more powerful than our level 44 pets), before you enter the planes.

As a result of this, it is impossible to complete the quest before level 46 (and since the result is a level 46 spell, even if you somehow managed to get it before you were level 46, you could not scribe the spell or summon the Orb anyway). You can talk to most (if not all) of the quest NPCs, and turn in any items you DO acquire for the appropriate reward, but since you have to be 46 to use the spell (and you have to be 46 to go to Hate and Sky to get their corresponding items), there is little point in worrying about it until you are level 46.

Some Terminology
always drop - This refers to items that will always drop when you kill the mob. There are possibly some cases where the drop rate might be high but not 100%, but when I mark something as "always drop", it means that every time I've killed the mob, it's dropped the item. More to the point, there are no recorded instances of the mob NOT dropping the item. This doesn't mean that it won't happen, just that no one's yet seen it happen.
common drop - At least 20% of the time. While one in five may not seem all that common, since most of the mobs here are rapid spawns, you'll end up with the item in short order assuming you camp the mob for a little while.
semi-rare drop - 10-20% of the time.
rare drop - 5-10% of the time.
very rare drop - less than 5% of the time.
Keep in mind that these are GUIDELINES; since we don't have enough data to be positive about them, the terms are assigned to tbe best of our ability.

Spawn Times

All spawn times are in REAL TIME, NOT GAME TIME. E.g., a spawn time of "1 day" means 1 regular real life Earth day, not one day in Norrath (which is 72 minutes in real life).

- INTRODUCTION -

The Magician epic quest reward is a level 46 spell, Summon Orb. Once you receive the reward, you scribe the spell, which you then may use to SUMMON your epic weapon, the Orb of Mastery. The nice side effect of this is that when you die, you may SUMMON ANOTHER EPIC WEAPON BEFORE YOU RETRIEVE YOUR CORPSE! Plus, it doesn't require any reagents like malachite to summon, so you essentially get a free pet for 500 mana (not to mention a kickass primary slot weapon).

Spell: Summon Orb
Level: 46
Mana: 500
Casting Time: 5 seconds
Recast Time: 5 MINUTES (yes, 5 minutes)
Effect: Summons the Orb of Mastery

The Orb has the following stats:

Item: Orb of Mastery
Type: 1H Blunt
Damage/Delay: 20/30
Stats: +100 MANA, +20 INT, +15 STR, +5 DEX, +10 STA, +20 CR, +20 FR, +10 MR
Special Attributes: MAGIC ITEM NODROP LORE ITEM Slot(s): Primary Hand Slot
Weight: 1 pound
Effect: Manifest Elements (1 charge)

The Orb's effect, Manifest Elements, is a right-clickable summon of a huge pet that has the appearance of an air pet (but it is NOT an air pet!). The casting time is 18 seconds (according to one source; can anyone verify this, preferably WITH A STOPWATCH?). The orb does NOT disappear when you summon the epic pet with it. Reports indicate that the Orb does NOT act as a focus item for your pets, and since the other pets have differing resistances that can be greater than the epic pet's, there is still an occasional reason to use them.

According to Chris Babb, the epic pet always hits for max 67, is always level 49, has a DD attack for 160 damage and a 6 second stun, has 2500hp and a 50 point damage shield. If anyone else can confirm these numbers, that would be great.

- QUEST RUNDOWN -

To get the Orb of Mastery (or really, the Summon Orb spell), you turn in the four Elements to the Master of Elements in the Plane of Sky. Each of the four Elements (Wind, Water, Earth, Fire) is itself a sub-quest, where you must turn in three or four items to an NPC, who will reward you with the corresponding element. (Earth and Fire each require four items; Wind and Water each require three items, for 14 items total.) All but three of the 14 items are simple drops from mobs; some high-level and rare, some lower-level and common. Two of the 14 items are your lower-level focus items from the Temple of Solusek Ro. The last item, the Power of the Orb, is an item for the Element of Fire sub-quest. The Power of the Orb itself requires 3 sub-items to be traded in; each of those 3 sub-items needs either 3 or 4 items. A tree diagram looks like this:

The symbol preceding each item indicates whether or not:
* = a level 60 magician could (probably) do it solo
+ = it will require multiple people to get (i.e. not even a level 60 mage could safely do it solo)

Do not confuse the "POWER of Water", "POWER of Earth", etc. with the "ELEMENT of Water", "ELEMENT of Earth", etc. The "Power of" items are for the "Power of the Elements" sub-sub-quest of the Power of the Orb sub-quest, and the "Element of" items are the four items you turn in to the Master of Elements to GET YOUR EPIC QUEST REWARD.

A WARNING: DO NOT COMPLETE THE ELEMENT OF WIND QUEST UNTIL LAST OR YOU WILL POP THE MASTER OF THE ELEMENTS AND HE WILL DEPOP BEFORE YOU GET THE OTHER ELEMENTS DONE. This means that you should have completed and acquired the Element of Fire, Element of Earth, and Element of Water, BEFORE you go to the Plane of Sky and turn in your items for the Element of Wind.

However, Dohpaz Xorbelbeeb of Prexus says that if you go to Kihun Solstin and say, "I want to see the master" and the Master of Elements will spawn. Graccil Baldinghead of Tribunal confirms this to be true, as do several other people.

- DETAILED STEPS -

Summon Orb (The Orb of Mastery)
(Plane of Sky: "Master of Elements", quest)

Turn in the following four items:
Element of Fire
Element of Earth
Element of Water
Element of Wind
to the Master of Elements, a named air elemental in the Plane of Sky. Each of the four Elements is a quest all its own, and they are detailed below.

The Master of Elements spawns when you give Kihun Solstin, who is also in the Plane of Sky, the three items he needs in order to give you the Element of Wind, so be sure to turn in the items to Kihun Solstin LAST, when you are ready to complete the quest. (Or, as is noted above, you can say to Kihun, "I want to see the master", and the Master of Elements will then spawn.)

When you talk to the Master, the following conversation ensues (thanks to Balasarius NoxDominus of The Seventh Hammer for the text):
You say, 'Hail, Master of Elements'

Master of Elements says 'I... am... the... Master... of... Elements.. Elements... Forgive... me. I am... unaccustomed.. to.. speaking.. this.. mortal... tongue. Might.. you... be... the... One?

You say, 'I am the One'

Master of Elements says 'Trilith... Magi'kot.. knelt.. before.. the.. orb.. in.. his.. his.. last.. few..

moments... of.. mortal.. life. He... too... believed.. that.. he.. had.. the.. power.. and.. balance.. needed.. to.. grasp... control.. of.. the.. elements. He.. was.... flawed. Coming.. to... me... is.. a.. matter.. of.. no.. small.. import. Only.. only... one.. who.. is.. of.. balance.. and.. power... power.. may.. control.. the.. Orb.. of... Mastery. Give.... give.. me.. the.. Elements.. you.. have... gathered.. and.. I.. shall.. see.. if.. you.. are.. ready.. ready.. to control.. the... Elements.. of... life.. life.. life.

Hand the four Elements to the Master, and he says the following:

Master of Elements says 'You... are.. balanced... and.. powerful.. for.. a.. mortal... Soandso ..... Soandso . More.. so.. than.... Magi'kot. But.... you.. are.. not.. yet.. ready.. to.. transcend.. transcend... this.. mortal.. coil. Take.. take.. seize.. this.. Orb... for.. you.. are.. worthy.. of.. reward.. and.. with... the.. aid.. of... the... balance.. balance.. contained.. within.. the.. Orb.. you.. may.. yet.. reach.. the... ultimate... Mastery.

At this point, he hands you the Summon: Orb of Mastery spell scroll. Memorize it immediately, and then force a save to your character by trading 1 copper to someone, or camping out quickly, or gating!

Once you memorize the spell, you can use it to summon the Orb of Mastery:

Element of Fire

(Skyfire Mountains: Jennus Lyklobar, quest)

Jennus Lyklobar is a male gnome magician wandering the edge of the Skyfire Mountains. I found him near coordinates (+1800, +5000), on the wall, walking north, but I've also seen him scaling the slopes of the mountain behind the entrance to Veeshan's Peak. He wears a magenta-colored robe.

You say, 'Hail, Jennus Lyklobar'

Jennus Lyklobar says 'Hello and well met, Soandso ! A [race] like you is rare here.. Do you come seeking what I possess? Fire, fire, fire and fire is mine! I surround myself with fire, I bathe in fire, I consume fire, I am the Master of Fire! Hahahaha, but I digress. Have you come for the element of Fire, seeking to fall to the same fate as Trilith Magi'kot?

You say, 'I have come for the element of fire'

Jennus Lyklobar says 'The Element of Fire I can provide you, but you must prove you are able to contain its power. Bring me the Torch of the Elements now kept by a doomed lord of merchants, the burning embers from a notable member of wurmkind who can be found a short journey from here and a blazing wand, which you should be familiar with. And you must surrender the tome Rykas gave you. But I think you would be happier if you stayed with me and learned more of the beauty of the one true element, FIRE! FIRE! Hahahahahahah!

Turn in the following four items to Jennus Lyklobar, and he will reward you with the Element of Fire:
Torch of the Elements
Blazing Wand
Power of the Orb
Burning Embers
Once you turn in the four items, Jennus says (thanks to Senrye Talbanath of Drinal for the text):
Jennus Lyklobar says 'I see that you are well versed in the ways of Fire. Indeed, if you are as adept in the other, lesser elements, you may just sieze the Orb of Mastery after all, and avoid Magi'kot's fate. Take this element, and guard it well, for more trials are to come, I assure you. Succeed and you shall be remembered always! Oh, and Soandso ? Watch out for the puddles! HAHAHAHAHAHA!

You gain experience!!

At this point he gives you the Element of Fire:

+ Torch of the Elements

(City of Mist: "Neh`Ashiir", rare drop)

Note that, according to various in-game story elements, Neh`Ashiir is supposed to be FEMALE, but the model used was that of a ghostly Iksar MALE. As a result, "he" and "she" are used interchangeably here (mostly "he"). If anyone can get me a new screenshot of Neh`Ashiir now that the new character models have been added due to Luclin, that would be spiffy (assuming his/her model has changed).

You need a rogue with a Pick Lock skill of 200 to get through a door in the rear of the City of Mist that leads to Neh'Ashiir's area, so don't forget to bring one.

Uzz of Bristlebane sends the following info:
I have seen Neh`Ashiir on lvl 55 and he is a Enchanter his PH is a Black Reaver that spawns in the top hut. When the Reaver is killed another mob spawns in his place and it can be Neh`Ashiir or another Black Reaver if a Reaver then you need to kill him again until you get Neh`Ashiir to spawn. Black Reaver can be up to lvl 52 and is totaly MR, FR and others i think too.
Jeff (no surname? no game name? tsk tsk ;)) sends the following info:
He spawns in the final hut in the Sky area of City of Mist. I've killed him 6 times, no Torch so far. I hear people have to kill him up to 10 to 15 times to get it. His spawn time, along with all hte other Reaver-related mobs, is a few hours. I don't know exactly how many, but it's too long to stay and wait for another with a full group without them getting too antsy to leave.

He's harder than Lord Ghiosk, but a LOT easier than Rak'Ashiir, thank goodness.

I took him out with 2 groups, levels 53-60, with no shaman or chanter to slow. I think if I had just one group 55-60 with a shaman or enchanter I could have done it with that. I never saw him cast any spells, but since we killed him very quickly, we could have missed his spells entirely.

A tactic for killing him a lot that a good friend of mine told me (thanks Zandar!) is to bind on a safe spot on the Sky ramp, and then whenever you're ready to take him on, get a bunch of folks, get a CoH anchor, and gate and CoH them all up directly to him. It makes it a LOT easier if you don't have to kill everything in the zone to get to him every time (which is what you have to do otherwise).

Neh`Ashiir can spawn after any black reaver kill in the upper house, so there isn't really a "spawn time" involved.

Name: Neh`Ashiir

+ Blazing Wand
(Kedge Keep: "Undertow", common drop)

Undertow is located in the Temple of Prexus inside Kedge Keep, which is north of Estrella's lair. The Temple itself consists of two sections: the pews and the chapel. The pews are the first part you will see, when you enter from the south. The chapel is at the north end of the Temple, and rises high into the ceiling. Undertow lives at the very very top of the chapel, so when you fight him, you may want to pull him down into the Chapel area to keep him from getting pushed into a wall and poofing.

+ Burning Embers
(Burning Wood: "Nezekezena", "Gylton", "Phurzikon", rare)

The Burning Embers are a confirmed drop off Nezekezena, Gylton (again confirmed by Zephermen Furycaster of Rodcet Nife), and now (thanks to Orko Soulblighter) Phurzikon, another named wurm in Burning Wood.

Reports indicate that if you go to Nezekezena's spawn location (about (-450, -2550) in Burning Wood) and kill everything in sight, eventually Nez or his (her?) placeholders will start spawning with a cycle time of 90 seconds. People have evidenced acquiring Burning Embers at a rate of 1 or 2 in a few hours' time with this method. Phurzikon and Nezekezna both spawn on this spot, and they are both strong; sometimes Nez or Phurz will spawn two times in a row, so your group had better be strong enough to take them.

Nezekezena, if not killed when she spawns, will wander sometimes along the east and south walls of the zone, so if you can't find her near her spawn, look there. A tracker would definitely help.

Phurzikon apparently spawns on the same spawn point as Nezekezena.

Thanks to Kelston Bernstar for contributing info about Nezekezena and Phurzikon.

Marthisdil of Prexus confirms that BOTH Nezekezena AND Phurzikon can drop the Burning Embers, and have, as of 2001-04-25.

Kindir tells me that Nezekezena and Phurzikon also have another place where they can spawn in Burning Wood: At (+2450, +600). It's the same deal as the other spawn point; 80-90 second spawn time with placeholders. Zacatac of Bristlebane confirms this; he says that the actual loc is (+2700, +1000), but the info is otherwise correct.

Apparently Gylton, another named wurm in the Burning Wood, can also drop the Burning Embers. Barbel Tchitchaah of Karana says (edited for clarity :)):
About Gylton's spawn: I'm not sure of the exact loc. This named wurm wanders near the Skyfire zone. Once you kill him, either he spawns again or Entalon spawns (5 minutes after), and when you kill Entalon, either Entalon or Gylon spawns again. I've never had many difficulties finding him, just kill a few mobs near Skyfire (just after the ruins, before the way to zone), and eventually you'll see him. Of course, a tracker would be a great help. Gylton hit for around 145-155 max, isn't always the same level. I saw him be level 45, but lower sometimes too. He's a warrior type wurm (huge hit range, very low aggro range, Ring of Scale faction), and I don't feel he's harder than a standard wurm of the same level. About soloing him at level 49, I would say yes, you basically would use the same level spells I use when I see him: Earth pet to tank and root, Shock of Swords of course (never never never use fire based DDs, they will resist fire too much to be effective), but also the level 49 conjuration-based Rain of Swords, Gylton and wurms in general have low resists against it, so it's actually mana effective and a good way to kill him fast with SoS between waves (editor's note: Verant is considering fixing the rain spells so that one of the waves is not eaten up by your pet, so this may become an even more efficient spell!). Just make sure you are at full mana and use a SoW potion before fighting and nuke all you can, you'll be fine :) If you got a druid to track, you can switch to snare kiting also, but beware of adds in this zone. Make Gylton follow you near the Skyfire zone, because fighting in the forest can be very dangerous.
Note that Gylton has been spotted as far east as (+3440, -2468).

Jeremy Champlin, who plays on Bristlebane, however, has said that no mage he knows of has gotten the Burning Embers off Gylton; you're probably better off focusing on Nezekezena.

Name: Gylton

* Power of the Orb
(Lake Rathe: "Rykas", quest)

Rykas can be found in Lake Rathetear, on the rocks at approximately (+950, -650). He is a gnome wearing a bright yellow robe. As far as I know, he never moves from his spawn area, and he's pretty much always there. I showed up to find him in the middle of the game day (around 2pm game time) and he was sitting there with his earth pet.

Note that Rykas, lately, has been found other places in the zone. Apparently if you aggro him, he'll follow you until he kills you, or you leave the zone or lose aggro -- and he WON'T wander back to his spawn point! He's been sighted by me at the South Karana zone, the Rathe Mountains zone, and a few other random spots besides his spawn point. It's unknown whether you can deal with him, quest-wise, if he's not at his spawn point, but I assume you can. If you feel up to it, have someone kite him back to his spawn point, or kill him so he respawns, and you can deal with him there.
You say, 'Hail, Rykas'

Rykas says 'Greetings Soandso , I am Rykas, chronicler of knowledge. I have journeyed all throughout the lands of Norrath, and I have learned many tales of adventure from people I have encountered during my travels. I have learned of legends known and unknown to most mortals. Are you in search of knowledge?

You say, 'I am in search of knowledge'

Rykas says 'A small task is needed if you wish to learn more. Do you wish to learn the tale of Magi'kot?

You say, 'I wish to learn more'

Rykas says 'If you seek to learn the tale of Trilith Magi'kot, your journey shall begin in the Commonlands. Search for Jahsohn Ak'sot and give him this token. He will share some of the knowledge I have bestowed upon him, and point you further down your path to Mastery. Bring me the Words of Mastery, Power of the Elements, and the Words of Magi'kot....Then you shall learn more about the power of the orb.

Rykas then gives you the Token of Mastery:

Take the Token of Mastery to Jahsohn Aksot in the West Commonlands and give it to him (see the Words of Magi'kot entry below).

At this point, acquire:
Words of Magi'kot
Power of the Elements
Words of Mastery
and give them to Rykas. The order in which you give them does not matter; I gave them to him all at once, and it worked perfectly. Upon doing so, he said:
Rykas says 'I see that you have completed the quest I laid before you. That speaks well of your dedication, yet you do not realize your journey has just begun. Study this tome.

You gain experience!!

Rykas then rewards you with the Power of the Orb, a scroll that you can read. Immediately after he gave me the Power of the Orb, he despawned, and then he INSTANTLY respawned about 10 feet away. This probably has something to do with game mechanics, and it doesn't affect the quest at all.

If you read the book, the pages appear thus:

The text reads:
An elementalist's power comes from the Orb of Mastery. The Elements of Earth, Fire, Wind and Water are contained within the orb. The Master of Elements holds the Orb.

He can be found within the Plane of Sky. No mortal has been able to contain the true power of the Orb.

Trilith Magi'kot presented himself to the Master of Elements and the Orb of Mastery. The power of elements brought agony to his mind and body. Magi'kot was not of Balance.

Fire burned his eyes unto blindness, Wind put his mind into a spin, Earth entered his body and aged him like the mountains, and finally, Water washed his memories of mortal life away.

Failing his test, the Orb exacted its terrible price, and now Magi'kot is part of the Orb.

The bearer of this tome should seek out the Master of Fire and present it to him, for there is much left to be revealed.

The Master of Fire is Jennus Lyklobar, found in the Skyfire Mountains.

Words of Magi'kot
(West Commonlands: "Jahsohn Aksot", quest)

Jahsohn Aksot is a human mage who is found wandering in the West Commonlands. He is near the Kithicor zone border, either wandering along the road that leads south from the Kithicor border, or a little ways east, wandering through the trees. If he has summoned a pet (he does not always do this) you can use Sense Summoned to find him. Otherwise, bring a tracker, or just wander around until you see him. He is wearing a bright blue robe.
You say, 'Hail, Jahsohn Aksot'

Jahsohn Aksot says 'Greetings, Soandso .

At this point, give him the Token of Mastery that was given to you by Rykas in Lake Rathetear. Note that you DO NOT HAVE TO DO THIS PART OF THE QUEST; turning in the Token is optional.
Jahsohn Aksot says 'What is this? I cannot believe you found it! Where did you get this?

You gain experience!!

You say, 'Rykas gave it to me'

Jahsohn Aksot says 'I have not heard of anyone speaking that name out loud in years. Rykas once shared a tale with me, though I have lived with fear in my mind ever since. He told me afterwards that I did not have the balance I thought I had. Have you come for the Words of Magi'kot?

You say, 'I have come for the Words of Magi'kot'

Jahsohn Aksot says 'The Words of Magi'kot can only be shared with those elementalists whose minds are of balance. The Words were separated into three pieces by a high council of Magi who feared that the story would bring an end to elementalists throughout Norrath. If you feel you wish to read from the sacred Power of the Orb then an elementalis of such power should easily accomplish this task.

At this point, acquire the three Torn Pages of Magi'kot as described below, and give them to Aksot.
Jahsohn Aksot says 'Have you forgotten something, Soandso ?

Jahsohn Aksot says 'Rykas may have been right about you, Soandso . Now, go find Walnan. Walnan was apprenticed to a very powerful Mage. After her apprenticeship was complete, she wished to begin teaching other beings of Norrath. Even those who knew nothing of the art! I do not believe she was successful, though. Seek her out to further your tale. Good luck in your journeys, Soandso !

You gain experience!!

Aksot then rewards you with the Words of Magi'kot:

* Torn Page of Magi'kot 1 (Kithicor Forest: "dread wolf", "dreaded wolf", "enraged dread wolf", always drop)

Reports indicate that any of the dread wolves ("dread wolf", "dreaded wolf", "enraged dread wolf") in Kithicor at night, will drop this item. Be careful; even a level 46 mage with his strongest pet can be overrun in seconds by himself. You can probably do this part solo at 49 without too much difficulty, but for safety's sake, TAKE A GROUP WITH YOU ANYWAY. I got my page 1 off an "enraged dread wolf", which was easy to kill once I was able to engage it near the West Commonlands zone border, without fear of random zombie troopers showing up to ruin my day. Or rather, night. I had the help of two warriors, a cleric, and a wizard, and we dispatched the enraged dread wolf easily. Then a zombie trooper showed up, and my pet soloed it while the others took on a dread wolf that came out of nowhere! Both the enraged dread wolf and the dread wolf dropped the Torn Page of Magi'kot 1.

Senrye Talbanath of Drinal tells me that she and some friends went to Kithicor to get the Torn Page of Magi'kot 1. They killed 5 dread wolves and 1 dreaded wolf, and none of them dropped the page; they also killed two enraged dread wolves, and both times the page dropped. This may have been random chance, or it may be indicative of a change in the drop rates. In either event, it's probably still more efficient to kill whatever wolves come your way.

* Torn Page of Magi'kot 2 (Unrest: "a tentacle terror", always drop)

At level 39 I was on a guild raid into Unrest. Nearly every mob in the zone conned blue to me, with the exception of some Festering Hags, and these puppies. Get a group of high 30s/low 40s together, and you can clear out the entire Unrest basement single-handedly. Of the handful of Tentacle Terrors we killed, at least 2 and maybe 3 of them dropped the page. These nasties are usually found in the last room in the basement, where Garanel Rucksif (the ghost dwarf) spawns. They aren't all that hard to kill, but you'll want a group, because TTs are casters, either shadow knight or necromancer class (though they didn't have any pets, and they didn't harm touch that I could tell). They cast lifetap- and disease-based spells.

Also please note that there are tentacle terrors in Najena, but the Najena TTs are much lower level AND THEY DO NOT DROP the Torn Page of Magi'kot 2.

Somebody Who Didn't Bother To Leave His Name told me that "a dark terror", in the Unrest basement, can also drop the Torn Page 2.

Name: a tentacle terror
Zone: Estate of Unrest
Location: End of the basement, in the rooms at (+500, +50).
Spawn time: 6 minutes?
Drops: Torn Page of Magi'kot 2

(Lower Guk: "a bloodthirsty ghoul", "a frenzied ghoul", always drop)

I spent about half of level 42 in the Frenzy camp in Lower Guk. This was a good level to be there; most mobs conned low blue to even (a handful of yellows); the groups' members ranged anywhere from 38 to 52. I was there for exp and loot, since I wasn't really aware of the fact that the page dropped from bloodthirsty ghouls (and, as it turns out, the Frenzied Ghoul itself can also drop the page). If you are in this camp for even a couple of hours, you will with certainty see bloodthirsty ghouls, and probably at least one frenzied ghoul, and about one out of four of the BTs dropped page 3. (I saw about four pages while I was there, not including the one that a party member looted accidentally 'cause he didn't know what it was.) BTG's are strong warriors, but a normal Frenzy group can take them easily. If you're building a party to go down there (and for some reason it's not already camped), BRING AN ENCHANTER. The best room to camp in is the rectanguler anteroom just outside of the frenzied ghoul's room, since only a couple of weaker frogloks actually spawn in that room; you can actively pull from the surrounding rooms into it safely.

Name: a bloodthirsty ghoul

+ Power of the Elements
(Butcherblock Mountains: Walnan, quest)

Walnan tends to wander along the path from the Butcherblock docks, to near Kaladim. When I found her, she was standing behind a tree just upslope of the road near the last dwarf guard hut before you reach Kaladim. However she can be in the area north of the road near the docks. Your best bet is to cast Sense Summoned in this area, which will hopefully lead you to Walnan's pet. However, she does not always summon one, so you might need to find 20+ druid, 35+ bard, or ranger to track her for you. Walnan is a female High Elf wearing a purple robe.
You say, 'Hail, Walnan'

Walnan says 'Hallo Soandso ! I am Walnan, elementalist, summoner, wanderer, and sometimes teacher. Might you be a elementalist in search of the truth?

You say, 'I am in search of the truth.'

Walnan says 'The truth is something not all people can handle or understand. If the truth of the elements is what you seek then the Power of the Elements shall reveal all. Have you come to learn of Magi'kot?

You say, 'I have come to learn of magi'

Walnan says 'Magi'kot was the most powerful elementalist of his age. He may have been the most powerful mortal mage of all time, such was his mastery. He wished to obtain infinite knowledge and wisdom in order to further expand the arcane art of Summoning. Do you know what became of Magi'kot?

You say, 'No.'

Walnan says 'Only a few elementalists and followers outside our circle know what truly happened to Magi'kot. Even now, many are fearful to speak of his name. If you truly wish to continue, here is what you must do. Gather the Power of the Earth, warded by a fae creature. Then seek the Power of Fire, held by an elemental. Next you will need the Power of Wind, held by a twirling and prancing wanderer who has been corrupted. Finally, the Power of Water, held by a ravenous beast who is the minion of a fallen Sarnak. Bring them all to me, and I shall give you the Power of the Elements.

At this point, gather the four Powers (described below) and give them to Walnan. Give her all four at once; the order does not matter.
Walnan says 'Wait, Soandso , are you not forgetting something?

You gain experience!!

Walnan then rewards you with the Power of the Elements.

* Power of Earth
(Lesser Faydark: "a faerie guard", rare drop (?))

If you've killed faerie guards for your Robe of the Elements quest, well, you know how they go. I got lucky; some guildmates and I were in Lesser Faydark helping a druid guildmate camp Brownie Scouts for an epic quest item. During a break in the spawns, I SoW-ran with my air pet over to the faerie village, and pulled the faerie guard who spawns east of the village (behind a tree). One Shock of Swords, and two seconds being beat on by my pet, and the faerie dropped dead. I guess I was lucky because she dropped both the Power of Earth (a black ball, looks like a black pearl or a Glowing Black Stone) and the Twice-Woven Cloak (for the RotE quest), so I was able to go complete the RotE yet again.

Faerie guards are easy if they're green to you, since they will only come one at a time when you pull them. They are typical warrior mobs, nothing out of the ordinary for their level (max 24). Don't confuse them with Fairy Guards, who are not the same mob (I don't know whether they drop the same loot).

Faeries have the Faerie faction, though as far as I know only faeries are sensitive to this faction, so once you kill a few faerie guards, you will be KOS to the faeries and will not be able to travel safely through their village. However there don't appear to be any other places in Norrath where this faction comes into play.

Two separate sources have stated that they camped the Faerie village, killing more or less everything in sight, upwards of 8 hours before getting their Power of Earth. Damn, I'm lucky.

(The "undead sprite guards" that were part of the LFay invasion earlier this year, apparently no longer exist -- so I'm removing the information about them. Thanks to Arasmour Painecaster of Karana.)

Name: a faerie guard
Zone: Lesser Faydark
Location: Faerie village at (+1200, +3700)
Spawn time: Unknown

Casts: Nothing.

Appearance: Like any other faerie. Small, floating, and pink.

* Power of Fire
(Sol A: "blazing elemental" rare drop, "lava elemental", common drop?)

Boring but easy camp if you have your 39 pets or better, and even at 34 you SHOULD be able to do this solo although it will be more work. I personally had to camp for about 3.5 hours to get the Power of Fire; lucky for me, it was 4 am and I was going to give up for the night after one last spawn, and lucky me, it had the Power of Fire.

The Blazing Elementals spawn in the north part of Sol A, in a pit that has two false ceilings (rather, false floors in two other rooms) and a ramp that leads into another room where nothing spawns. (If you have the EQ Atlas map of Sol A (http://www.eqatlas.com/solusekseyemap.html), the Blazing Elementals pit is marked at spot 3, and the unoccupied room is the small, perfectly square room just southwest of the "3".

At first I camped in that room, waiting for the Blazing Elementals to spawn (they are on roughly a 19-minute spawn timer) and meanwhile pulling some of the surrounding goblins just to pass the time. I even tried clearing out the entire circular area surrounding these rooms (everything north of -200 on the map), but that was too much effort. I finally figured out that the simplest way to do it, was to sit in the Blazing Elemental pit ITSELF, and wait for the BEs to spawn. They would immediately aggro on me, and my fire pet (sitting there waiting with me) would beat them to dust in a few seconds. One of the reasons I did this was because I could simply sit there meditating, and I'd read a book, so I wasn't bored. (Even killing green goblins over and over got tedious.) The mobs would spawn, I'd move away a few steps, and my Jobaner would kill them. The other reason was, given enough time, Blazing Elementals will cast a fire shield on themselves JUST LIKE YOUR FIRE PET, and their shield is JUST AS STRONG. My level 38 fire pet (from my 44 spell) nearly died the first time it fought a Blazing Elemental, because of the fire shield it had (my pet hit so much it was beating ITSELF to death). So I had to quickly sit, memorize Nullify Magic, and dispel the BE's fire shield. Sure I probably could have just nuked it, but...

If you sit in the BE pit itself, the BEs will aggro on you before they can shield themselves, and your pet will have absolutely no trouble disposing of them. The BEs are level 25. The only other threat is the Reckless Efreeti, who is level 28 and spawns near the back of the pit. He is more or less a level 28 generic warrior mob, easily disposed of by my pet. I only saw him once, near the end of my camp, and he had no fire shield, nor did he cast any spells. My pet wiped him out in no time, solo. He dropped the Platinum Armband.

The upshot of all this is, the BE camp is boring as hell, yes, but the best solution is, sit in the BE pit with your fire pet guarding you, and get a good book and dig in. I've heard stories of anywhere from a 20 minute camp to a 20 HOUR camp before getting the Power of Fire (which has the graphic of a red gem, just like a Ruby), but it's probably on average about a 4-5 hour camp. Just stick with it and you'll get it.

It is commonly considered as true that the lava elemental in the rear of Sol A (behind the gnome castle) drops the Power of Fire as its common loot, but I have not personally confirmed this. If you are camping the blazing elementals, and want to deal with running over to see if the lava elemental has popped, feel free to do so. Also, Dark Elf magicians or people who have bad faction with the gnomes in Sol A will have a difficult time doing this, which is probably why the Power of Fire drops off the BEs.

Sumoner Deltorros of Bristlebane says that the Power of Fire is at best an uncommon drop off the lava elemental; at least, the PoF does NOT drop every time you kill the lava elemental.

Bahmut Illuminarie of Ayonae Ro says that he killed the lava elemental 9 times before the Power of Fire dropped.

Arasmour Painecaster of Karana says that the easiest way to camp the lava elemental is to kill the roamer in that room -- the static spawns are not PHes for the lava elemental. If you are high enough level you should be able to solo the roamer without getting any adds from the static spawns.

Appearance: Fire elemental

* Power of Water
(Kaesora: "enraged ravener", "famished ravener", "hungered ravener", "ravener", common drop on all four mobs)

Any of the various raveners in this zone can drop the Power of Water. I got lucky. I went to Kaesora by myself; there were one or two other people in the zone. I levitated down the eastern drop from the entry room, summoned a pet, went linkdead, came back, summoned another pet, and was almost immediately attacked by a famished ravener. My earth pet rooted it and I nuked it half to death; my pet finished it off. The ravener dropped the Power of Water, and I immediately gated out.

Kaesora is a dangerous dungeon, even at high levels, to visit yourself. (I was foolish to do so; take a group with you!) Raveners are found all over the dungeon, but they are not very common mobs; they are found mostly in the upper levels to the east of the entry room, and sometimes down in the Five Towers area where Xalgoz lives. Raveners will drop the power of water rather frequently; one good night's session camping the dungeon for exp will almost certainly get you a Power of Water.

* Power of Wind

(Mistmoore: "a gypsy dancer", common drop)

Gypsy Dancers themselves are only level 25-26, but the room they primarily spawn in (the ballroom in Mistmoore) also contains lots of higher level mobs, usually in the low 30s. If you have a group of 30+ people and can safely handle one mob at a time (either because you have a monk to pull or an enchanter to mez), then breaking in and camping the ballroom should be not too difficult.

Note that Gypsy Musicians and Gypsy Ambassadors do NOT drop the Power of Wind. ONLY Gypsy Dancers.

Icemagi Vizax of Tarew Marr says that the gypsy dancers drop the Power of Wind every time.

Name: a gypsy dancer
Zone: Castle Mistmoore
Location: Ballroom inside the castle (with chandeliers and the piano) at (-150, 0).
Spawn time: ? (probably the same as most regular mobs in the zone, which appears to be around 6 minutes)
Drops: Power of Wind
Class: Warrior
Level: 24-26
Hit Points: 604-741
Casts: Nothing.
Hits for (max): Unknown (probably not more than 50-60).
Notes: None.
Appearance: Human female gypsy, just like those found in the gypsy camps around Norrath (like North Karanas or Lavastorm).

Words of Mastery
(Najena: Akksstaff, quest)

Akksstaff wanders in random places in Najena. When I found him, he was literally standing at the zone border to the Lavastorm Mountains. Reports have him in almost any spot in Najena; inside various rooms, in the dungeon cell with Linara Parlone, in the goblin caverns, etc. He is a male Dark Elf wearing a hideous brownish-green robe.

Kelston Bernstar reports that Akksstaff's spawn point is in the hallway that leads to Rathyl's and Linara's cells, and he will eventually wander. Akksstaff can have a spawn time of (apparently) anywhere from a couple of hours up to THREE DAYS. So don't kill him! Akksstaff has also been seen spawning in Najena's room itself!

For my part, I was in Lavastorm on my way to Nagafen's Lair, and I shouted, "Anyone heading to Najena, if you see Akksstaff, it's worth 20 platinum pieces." A few minutes later, someone sent me a tell that Akksstaff was standing at the zone, so I rushed over there, talked with Akksstaff (below) and gave the lucky player his 20pp.
You say, 'Hail, Akksstaff'

Akksstaff says 'What do you want?! Foolish High Elf, I am in no mood to treat with beggars. I have half a mind to turn Jobober here loose on you! Well, don't keep me waiting, state your business or be off with you!

You say, 'magi'

Akksstaff says 'Ah, that I can help you with. Magi'kot was a powerful elementalist, able to control the power of the elements which surrounded him. He was not able to fully master the elements when I was learning from him, but soon after my departure I heard rumours that he was going after the Orb of Mastery. At the time, I did not feel he was ready to harness all the elements, but Magi'kot listened to no one. He was in search of power beyond any held by a mortal. Do you wish to hear more?

You say, 'I wish to hear more'

Akksstaff says 'Then bring me the torn pages of Mastery, there are four pages that can be found upon the women In this keep, though have a care, Najena's followers guard her treasures carefully, and delight in punishing trespassers.

At this point, find the four Torn Pages of Mastery and give them to Akksstaff, all at once. The order does not matter.
Akksstaff says 'Very well. Take these words back to that shriveled old gnome, Rykas, if you wish to complete this quest. Now leave me, Soandso , it sickens me to be this cordial for so long. And Jobober needs exercise. Go!

You gain experience!!

Akkstaff rewards you with the Words of Mastery.

* Torn Page of Mastery Earth
* Torn Page of Mastery Fire
* Torn Page of Mastery Water
* Torn Page of Mastery Wind (Najena: "a magician", "a goblin magician", "Rathyl", very rare drop, "Trazdon", "BoneCracker", "Najena", "Drelzna", possible drop but unknown;
The Feerrott: "an alligator", very (?) rare drop)

When you're in your 20s, Najena is a good place to go for loot and exp. It's a "doable" dungeon, meaning a single group of mid-to-high 20s (or even low 30s) can crawl through the dungeon, clearing it out room by room. A single crawl, even if you kill every mob in the dungeon, is not likely to net you all four pages; I spent a good 5-6 hours there both at levels 40 and 46, killing literally every mob in the dungeon, before I gathered all four Pages. Keep at it, and you'll get it. Note that the Pages can drop off both the goblin magicians found in the northern caverns, as well as the Dark Elf magicians, and even a few of the named mobs in the zone. I personally looted the Wind page off of Rathyl. (Ualdail of Fennin Ro confirms that he looted the Water page off of Rathyl incarnate, who can spawn right after you kill Rathyl.)

If you're higher level like I am (45+), it's relatively trivial to solo literally the entire zone. Just run about killing everything you see, and eventually you'll get all the Pages. You can even go to Najena's room, since the new spell Summon Companion allows us to pull our pet out of the pool near Najena's room once we're done killing her and her friends.

The spawn time in this zone is around 18 minutes, and it will take about that long to hit all of the other spawns you need to hit. These are:
BoneCracker and the necromancers in his room (you only really need to hit this once, for the key that BoneCracker drops), plus the Ogre Captain (again, only once, for the key he drops).
Trazdon and the magician[s] in his room. (I don't know whether Trazdon is capable of dropping the Pages, because I only killed him once and he didn't drop them that time, so it's hard to tell. But the magicians certainly do drop the pages, so it's worth a trip.)
The magician at the front gate of the castle area (where the entry caverns end).
The magician in the room behind her.
The two magicians in the Crystal Room.
The two necromancers and Drelzna (or her PH, another Necro) in Drelzna's room. (As necromancers do not drop the pages, this is not strictly a necessary trip, though Drelzna does drop the key to Najena's room. Fun Fact: Did you know that Drelzna used to drop Journeyman's Boots as her rare drop?)
The three magicians in the antechamber outside Rathyl's room.
Rathyl or his placeholder (a magician or various elementals) in Rathyl's room (and Rathyl reincarnate, if it spawns).

The three goblin camps in the north caves. One is in a cul-de-sac to the west; the other two are in rooms to the east and north.
If you hit these spots in this order, you will sooner or later get all the Pages. Be wary of other people camping the dungeon for exp and loot; don't run over their camps. But do shout to the zone that you're looking for the Pages, and if people could please not loot them and tell you, that would be nice. A friendly group of low-20's adventurers were camping Trazdon's room when one of the magicians there dropped the Water Page (the last one I needed); I gave one of them the 12 platinum I had earned in the 2 hours I spent trying to get the Water Page, and she was ecstatically thankful.

You will need some keys to get around the dungeon. The best order for this, is thus: Go to BoneCracker's room and kill him. He will drop the "Dull Bone Key" (DBK). Then go to the nearby Ogre Captain, and kill him, for he drops the "Shiny Metal Key" (SMK). The SMK opens the cell outside Rathyl's room; the DBK opens Rathyl's room itself. Kill Rathyl or his placeholders until Rathyl drops the "Bloodstained Key" (BSK) (this key is NORENT so if you go linkdead or camp, you will need to get it again). The BSK opens the door to Drelzna's room. Drelzna drops the "Golden Crescent Key" (GCK), but this only leads to Najena's room, and you don't really need to go there, so just stick the GCK in a bag and forget about it unless you really feel like killing Najena. The GCK is also NORENT. (The DBK and SMK are NOT NORENT, you can hang onto them forever, and probably should if you have to camp this place more than once.)

Virtually nothing in this dungeon has more than 600 hit points or hits for more than 50 damage (except the Widowmistress, a high-30s dark elven rogue who is incredibly fast and incredibly dangerous, and spawns in the northwest corner of the dungeon, beyond all the goblin camps). The magicians and necromancers will all have pets and will cast their appropriate class spells, but otherwise are trivial to kill at high level. They can be difficult at lower levels, however (fighting 3 necros solo at 39 can get you killed if you aren't careful). The named mobs are, as expected, somewhat more difficult, but not much.

A quick summary of which pages dropped of what mobs in Najena, although I don't know whether there's any relationship between them:
Water dropped off a magician in Trazdon's room.
Wind dropped off Rathyl.
Earth dropped off a magician in the main castle area, although I also saw several pages of Earth drop off the goblin magicians in the north caves.
Fire dropped off a goblin magician in the north caves. I believe I also saw fire drop off one of the dark elf magicians, but I saw it drop off the goblins at least 3 times.
Nerobus of Tunare confirms that the Earth page can drop off the Dark Elf magicians, and I think it's reasonable to assume that any of the four pages can drop off any of the magicians, fire goblins, rathyl, etc. in Najena.

The pages no longer drop in Cazic-Thule; the zone was revamped in early 2002 and is now a 50+ zone. The mobs that used to be in CT are now outside, in the Feerrott, although Nerobus of Tunare says that the alligators no longer seem to drop the pages. So, you probably have to go to Najena to get them, now.

Kelston Bernstar tells me that he has never heard of the pages dropping off Trazdon or "a necromancer", but I still keep them in the list on the off chance that they have the pages in their loot table as a rare drop.

Sumoner Deltorros of Bristlebane says that he looted the Torn Page of Mastery: Wind off of a darkboned skeleton. Darkbone skeletons, in my experience, only spawn in the front area of Najena, before you enter the keep proper.

Trezark S'Dious of Vazaelle confirms that darkboned skeletons can indeed drop the Torn Pages, albeit rarely. He also says that since Najena is a magician, she MAY drop the pages, but he's never heard of it happening. He also says that he once found a page on "Rathyl reincarnate", so killing Rathyl is worth the effort (as I said, I got my Wind page off Rathyl himself, and killing "Rathyl reincarnate" gives you a second shot at getting a page).

Eliadan Starforge of Tunare also confirms that the darkboned skeletons can drop the Pages. He got one off one of the darkbones in the room full of skeletons near Rathyl's room.

Deke Everburn of Ayonae Ro says that the necromancer who guards the portal to the Plane of Fear, Cyndreela, can ALSO drop the Pages! This seems incredibly unlikely. Can someone confirm this, preferably with a screenshot of the item on her corpse?

Element of Earth
(Firiona Vie: "Tiblner Milnik", quest)

Tiblner is known to wander along the Firiona Vie cliffs, east of the city. I have personally seen him standing at the north end of the bridge leading out of the Firiona Vie city area, but usually he wanders along the cliffs with his earth pet. The last time I saw him, he was wandering at about (-2000, -900), a little ways north of the edge of the cliffs, walking east. He is a male High Elf and wears a brown robe. Characters who have bad faction with Firiona Vie factions need to be careful as there are numerous mobs (pilgrims and others) who wander the cliffs -- not to mention the regular aggressive mobs like drolvargs, drachnids, leeches, etc.
You say, 'Hail, Tiblner Milnik'

Tiblner Milnik says 'Huh? What? Oh, you speak so fast, it took me a moment. I have become used to the slow and stately conversation the Earth holds, where a thought can span aeons. I am the Master of Earth, you know. Though I'm usually too humble to say this, that makes me the most powerful mortal in Norrath, as everyone knows that Earth is the only REAL Element, all else must give way before its power. Water is absorbed by it, Air is ignored by it, and Fire is contained in it. But you know all these things, I am sure. Are you interested in obtaining the Element of Earth? I know Magi'kot was, but we know what happened to him, don't we?

You say, 'I am interested in obtaining the element of earth'

Tiblner Milnik says 'Combining the following items can bring the Element of Earth together.

Obtain the Staff of Elemental Mastery:Earth, held by the minions of the Prince of Hate, The Dirt of Underfoot found on Slix something or the other, and of course, I shall need the Broom of Trilon and the Shovel of Ponz. Bring all these things, and I shall show you what a true Master of Earth can do, and gift you with the Element of Earth.

At this point, turn in the following four items to Tiblner Milnik in Firiona Vie:
Shovel of Ponz
Broom of Trilon
Staff of Elemental Mastery: Earth
Dirt of Underfoot
And he will respond thusly (thanks to Senrye Talbanath of Drinal for the text):
Tiblner Milnik says 'Take this Element and keep it with you. I wish you the best in your journey, but I must ask you to leave me now, this frantic pace you set makes me nervous.

You gain party experience!!

Tiblner then gives you the Element of Earth.

* Shovel of Ponz
(Temple of Solusek Ro: "Vira", quest)

One of our focus item quests from the Temple of Solusek Ro. Acquire:
a shovel from magicians in Najena or Alligators in Cazic-Thule;
the toes of a hill giant from hill giants, or (more easily) vendors near hill giant areas;
a gargoyle eye (from gargoyles or, again, vendors near places where people hunt gargoyles, like Mistmoore and the Ocean of Tears); and a ruby (there are now vendors in North Freeport who sell regular rubies).

None of these four items are NODROP, although the Shovel of Ponz IS NODROP.

Turn them in to Vira in the Temple of Solusek Ro to get the Shovel of Ponz. Vira is upstairs, on the left side of the balcony surrounding the main hall (as you face the dais).

You need good faction with the Temple of Solusek Ro to do this quest. The simplest way to do this is to kill Shadowed Men. Another way is to turn in Dervish Cutthroat rings to Ortallius in the Southern Desert of Ro. A third way is to find Ssynthi, the renegade Shadowed Man (he is aligned with the Temple) in Mistmoore, and give him the flower found on the tomb inside the building he hides behind. The fastest way is probably to kill Shadowed Men, since at 45+ you can easily pull them solo and kill them quickly.

* Broom of Trilon
(Temple of Solusek Ro: "Vira", quest)

One of our focus item quests from the Temple of Solusek Ro. Acquire:
a broom from magicians in Najena or Alligators in Cazic-Thule;
the toes of a cyclops from cyclops, or (more easily) vendors near cyclops areas;
a griffon feather (from griffons or, again, vendors near places where people hunt griffons, specifically North Karana); and a star ruby (gem vendors; the nearest one to the temple is in Freeport (or possibly Neriak, for people with the appropriate faction). NOT a ruby, a star ruby; they are DIFFERENT GEMS. Star rubies are much less expensive).
None of these four items are NODROP, although the Broom of Trilon IS NODROP.

Turn them in to Vira to get the Broom of Trilon. (See the "Shovel of Ponz" sub-quest above for information on Vira and the Temple of Solusek Ro.)

+ Staff of Elemental Mastery: Earth
(Plane of Hate: "Magi P`tasa", uncommon to rare drop)

UPDATE: The Staff of Elemental Mastery: Earth  NO LONGER DROPS OFF INNORUUK ! It now drops off a new mob in the Plane of Hate, a mini-boss named Magi P`tasa. We need details such as his HP, how much he hits for, and so on. In other words, all the stuff that would go in the fields below.

In a patch in January 2002, Verant said that they upped the drop rate for the Earth staff. What that rate is, is unknown, but if they changed the rate enough to bother mentioning it, then it's probably a significant increase.

Thanks to Bahmut Illuminarie of Ayonae Ro for some basic info about Magi P`tasa.

Arkahn Tyr'Zhal of Ayonae Ro sent me the following info:
Magi, like all mini bosses, is a semi-rare spawn with a placeholder on a 72 hour timer + or - 12 hours (60-84 hour spawn). He spawns in 10 different spots:
2 in rev house
2 on top floor in maestro's house
2 with ashenbone drakes on first floor
2 in inny's old lair
2 on second floor of second floor church.

This explains why he can spawn a ton in a few hours, or can sometimes never spawn even if hate is cleared completely. He is NOT always up after patches... but he has a very good chance of being up because he has about a 30% chance of spawning in 10 spots, but sometimes the spots could all be filled with phs (has happened before). He has 32k hp, hits for max of 200-240 (depending on level of the spawn >> 54-56 <<, and he CAN be slowed, malosini'd and debuffed in many other ways. He can be taken out with one full group if you are good and have a 60 shaman.

Drop rates are as follows:
30% chance of dropping the staff
30% chance of dropping apothic robe
40% chance of dropping apothic sleeves, pants, or crown
50% chance of dropping apothic bracer, gloves, or boots so far he is known to drop up to 3 armor pieces at a time none of this info except spawn spots has been "verified" yet but i have done a lot of research about the magi :)

An interesting note is that the "Ghoul Arch Magus" (or is it "Ghoul Archmagus"?) in Lower Guk used to be called the "Ghoul Arch Magi", until someone pointed out that "Magi" is the plural of "Magus". I wonder of they'll fix Magi P`tasa to be "Magus P`tasa". You can see him wielding the Earth Staff in the picture below.

Name: Magi P`tasa
Zone: Plane of Hate
Location: ?
Spawn time: 1 day
Drops: Staff of Elemental Mastery: Earth (uncommon to rare drop), numerous other items Class: ?
Level: 55
Hit Points: 32000
Casts: Damage shield on himself (he might recast it if you cancel his DS)
Hits for (max): 240
Notes: ?
Appearance: Large male revenant

* Dirt of Underfoot
(Burning Wood: "Slixin Klex", rare drop)

Klex is a level 50 Iksar Skeleton warrior. He has 11,000 hit points and hits for a max of 137 damage. He is not particularly fast, he just takes a while to kill. The easiest way to kill him is to partner with either a necromancer or a druid, and either fear-kite or regular kite. Kiting with a druid is a little harder, because Klex will sometimes aggro on your pet instead of the druid (you should turn your pet's taunting off, to keep Klex following the druid around while your pet gets hundreds of free attacks from behind). When Klex kills your pet, summon another one, cast your best Burnout spell on the pet, and send it after Klex. If you're with a necro and the necro can constantly keep Klex feared, then you'll have an easy time; the downside is, Klex will probably wander past many other wandering mobs, who will aggro and attack you. With a druid, you can have the druid run in a circle centered on you (meditating while your pet attacks Klex), so you don't have to go anywhere near mobs that spawn. In either case, pull Klex out of the crater he spawns in (the glowing meteor crater in Burning Wood), or you'll end up dealing with a lot of wandering hornets. The drop was common for a while, but appears to be rare now. Expect to kill Klex a number of times.

In a nutshell: Pull Klex out of the crater, to the south, where there is a large flat area with almost no wandering mobs. Kite him there, or kill him outright if you have the proper group for it.

Kelston Bernstar tells me that he killed Slixin Klex 11 times in a row recently, and the Dirt did not drop. Apparently the Dirt has been nerfed back to its original extremely-rare drop state, instead of its relatively common state. Sigh. Another easy mob we have to kill over and over...

Chard of Bertoxxulous tells me that it's possible to solo Slixin as a mage. Basically you need to chaincast your pets, damage shield them, and have as much +INT and +mana gear as possible, so that you can survive. Slixin has low magic resists and so an earth pet can keep him rooted while you med nearby. Chard says it took him about 6 pets to kill Slixin.

Name: Slixin Klex
Zone: Burning Wood
Location: Just north of the glowing meteor in the crater, at about (-500, -1100).
Spawn time: 22 minutes.
Drops: Dirt of Underfoot, other?
Class: Monk
Level: 50
Hit Points: 11000
Casts: Nothing.
Hits for (max): 137
Notes: None.
Appearance: Iksar skeleton.

Element of Water
(Dagnor's Cauldron: "Jinalis Andir", quest)

Jinalis Andir can be found in Dagnor's Cauldron. As far as is known, she never roams and is always in the same spot: approximately (-600, -2000), near the orc scout camp on the east side of the zone. She is an Erudite female wearing a blue robe.
You say, 'Hail, Jinalis Andir'

Jinalis Andir says 'Let us dispense with pleasantries, Soandso . I am Jinalis, as you know. I imagine you want to control the Elements. The Element of Water, which I possess, is the most powerful of the Elements. With it you can control the water which falls from the Air, erodes the Earth, and extinguishes Fire. It is a pity you do not focus on the Prime Element, but if you wish to follow that fool Magi'kot to your doom, I will not stop you. Bring me the Staff of Elemental Mastery:Water held by the last of the Kedge, the Tears of Erolisi held by a dirty and rotten officer across the Blessed Deep, and finally, the Rain of Karana, found on a mighty Giant in, where else, the Karanas.

Turn in the following three items to Jinalis Andir in Dagnor's Cauldron, and she will give you the Element of Water:
Staff of Elemental Mastery: Water
Rain of Karana
Tears of Erollisi
Once you turn in the items, Jinalis says:
Jinalis Andir says 'You have the control needed in order to manipulate the water which surrounds us. Take this Element and guard it well, you will need it in the times to come.

You gain experience!!

Jinalis then gives you the Element of Water.

Thanks to Senrye Talbanath of Drinal for the conclusion text.

+ Staff of Elemental Mastery: Water
(Kedge Keep: "Phinigel Autropos", very (?) rare drop)

Phinigel is in the very bottom of this dungeon; you'll need a group just to get to him, and two 55+ groups to take him out safely (you're better off with 3 groups). Kedge raids by high-level guilds usually end up clearing the zone anyway, so go on enough of these and Phinigel is your bitch. However the staff is a rare drop, so be prepared to go back numerous times.

As far as fighting the boss fish himself, I have no idea how difficult it is, as I haven't fought him yet.

Name: Phinigel Autropos

Zone: Kedge Keep
Location: Bottom of the dungeon, in the big room at around (+0, +100) (he's in the bottom half of that room)
Spawn time: 12-14 hours (random) (thanks to Lianad Staffborn of Bertoxxulous)
Drops: Staff of Elemental Mastery: Water (rare), other stuff Class: Wizard
Level: 52-53
Hit Points: 16000-16250
Casts: Lots of nasty wizard spells
Hits for (max): 198 (thanks to Ulyessz Infernoblaze of Mithaniel Marr)
Notes: ?
Appearance: A humanoid fish in an orange robe.

* Rain of Karana
(East Karana: "Tarbul Earthstrider", always drop)

Tarbul Earthstrider is a named Hill Giant found in the Eastern Planes of Karana. He roams the large rocky hill in the southern half of EK. He's a very common spawn; when we arrived to hunt him down, he was already wandering about. We killed him easily (we were there for another purpose, so we had 2 groups of people together; several warriors, druids, rangers, a cleric, and me, a mage), and he dropped the Rain of Karana. 15 minutes later, he was running around again!

He was level 48 both times we saw him, and took a lot of punishment, but he went down no problem. Both times he dropped the Rain of Karana, so it probably will drop every time you kill him.

Nintalten Legbiter adds, "Trabul [sic] Earthstrider is a piece of cake with a lvl 49 Earth pet and a lvl 44 cleric. That's how I did it :)" Apparently if your level 49 earth pet beats on Tarbul, and you have a cleric cast Complete Heal on your pet every so often, Tarbul will go down fairly quickly. You'd probably want to fire shield and burnout your pet, to speed things up.

According to Slaariel of Ayonae Ro, Tarbul apparently does have a placeholder: "a rogue lion". Apparently Tarbul is the spawn at least 95% of the time, so I guess Tarbul is really the placeholder for the rogue lion :).

HOWEVER, Theisovian Qithetal of Luclin tells me that the spawn rates have reversed -- Tarbul is apparently now about a 5% spawn, and the rogue lion is the 95% spawn. This makes Tarbul more difficult, although it's not like any of the mobs on the hill are dangerous to a magician of epic-seeking level. Remember that, like other hill giants in EK, Tarbul can get stuck underneath the hill. If this happens, petition a guide and have them kill the offending giant (they may need to use their /find command several times to pick out which giant it is). Can anyone confirm the reversal of spawn rates?

When I went to take this screenshot, I was level 49. I was also invisible and TARBUL WAS NOT ABLE TO SEE THROUGH INVIS. I don't know if this will hold true at lower levels, but it did today! I didn't stand there gawking at him, incidentally; I took the screenshot and then left, so even though he CONNED indifferent while I was invisible, I didn't test it by waiting for him to aggro.

Name: Tarbul Earthstrider
Zone: Eastern Plains of Karana
Location: Wanders around on Crag Hill
Spawn time: Random, but fairly short (15 minutes maybe?)
Drops: Rain of Karana
Class: Warrior

Level: 48
Hit Points: several thousand
Casts: Nothing
Hits for (max): 105
Notes: None
Appearance: Standard hill giant.

+ Tears of Erollisi
(Overthere: "Captain Rottgrime", always drop)

I joined up with a group of people from various guilds who had banded together to get the good Captain dead, dead, dead, dead. In fact, they got him four times, and the fourth time, the Tears of Erollisi went to me. Killing the Captain isn't hard, you just need lots of tanks and clerics. Casters who have pets can help, but I don't think any other spells will be useful against him.

Pulling him from the outpost in the Overthere is difficult; the two times I was present, a dragoon was pulled along with him. He is usually standing near the southeast corner of the Outpost, along with six undead marines, who are level 50. You'll probably want a monk to feign pull the Captain, and it will be much easier to do at night when the dragoons are out on patrol (fewer things to aggro). I don't know the exact method that was used however.

You will take a Venril Sathir faction hit for killing Rottgrime; apparently it's a pretty sizable one, so be careful if you're used to being able to travel there (evil races and classes, for example).

The following is the body of a post that came from a Monk message board, but the person who sent it to me (Kelston Bernstar of Requiem on The Tribunal) says he doesn't remember who posted it.
"Ok, most will never need to know this, but if one person finds it useful, it's not a waste of time.

Part of the insanely hard magician epic quest involves killing Captain Rottgrime in the outpost in Overthere. He is a level 55 skeleton, and doesn't seem to be too tough to kill.

The trick is pulling him. Capt. Rottgrime is surrounded by 6 or 8 skeletons, all blue to me at 52 (someone said lvl 50, but I'm not sure). Besides that, there is a damn hard 55 or so Golems guarding both side entrances, and 4 gargoyles, level 50-53 or so guarding the main entrance. And still, you have about 4 roaming DE goons, as well as General D'Veers who's tough as nails and a necro. Add to this the fact that most are KOS in the outpost, and it's not a pretty sight.

The pull is actually not that hard. First off, you're probably going to want someone who is not KOS to pull him...Agnostic monks work nicely. My faction in the outpost was kindly, so I can roam freely. You need at least one other non kos person to help, and they dont' necessarily have to have FD. We had a troll warrior.

Have your groups set up camp on the northwest wall, very near the outpost. Very few roamers, and no goons seem to come up that way. We had 2 groups: 2 clerics, 2 magicians, 1 monk, 1 warrior, 2 necros, 1 druid, 1 shaman (turned out to be overkill), and an enchanter showed up a bit later.

Get in to the outpost, and target rottgrime..stand as far back while still in shuriken range as possible. A great thing to have here is one of those nice snaring nets from Crystal Caverns. Have your lookout watch the golem on the far east side of the outpost, and when he is at his point closest to water, either cast snare net or chuck a shuriken at the captain, turn, and run like hell. If you happen to get stunned, use stone stance. Then run outside the outpost, well outside the gates, then FD. Those things hit hard, but never took more than a bubble or so, even with about 10 on my tail. Have your lookout/tagger run up to Rottgrim and start hailing him. 99% of the time, this will stop him, while everyone else walks back. Either /q to clear aggro, or have your mage CoTH you back, then run back up to capt, or have lookout pull him the rest of the way.

Bang snap pow, easy kill, happy mage. We did it twice, 0 deaths. Faction is rough though...I went from kindly to indifferent in 4 kills (2 capt, 2 goons). And on that note, for some reason a goon always managed to find us and show up with the captain...not a big deal, except for the additional faction hit. The only other advice I can give is to know where the goons are; they leave the outpost at midnight and usually come back or despawn at 10am if memory serves. Try to time it when they are furthest away.

I wrote this for one reason: I asked 3 people about pulling this, and they either said it was impossible to split all those guys, or said to have a cleric with a click stick handy. There are other tactics; some have bards kiting the stuff around and a tagger to pull rottgrime, etc..but this was so clean and fast, seems like a waste of time any other way."

Name: Captain Rottgrime
Zone: The Overthere
Location: In the outpost (+2471, +2138)
Spawn time: about 5 minutes
Drops: Tears of Erollisi
Class: Warrior
Level: 55
Hit Points: 14275
Casts: Some kind of ice-based DD, apparently; apparently he can ALSO GATE AND SUMMON. BE WARY.
Hits for (max): 157 (ouch)
Notes: Apparently he's ALMOST 100% magic resistant -- Karsalim Jones of Innoruuk says he was able to get Char through once or twice for partial resists.
Appearance: Iksar skeleton.

Element of Wind
(Plane of Sky: Kihun Solstin, quest)

Turn in the following three items to Kihun Solstin in the Plane of Sky:

- Crown of Elemental Mastery
- Elemental Binder
- Pegasus Feather Cloak

...and he will reward you with the Element of Wind.

Kihun is located in the Sky quest room, beneath the first island. There is a teleporter on the island which will take you down into the quest room. Remember that you will need a wizard to teleport you to the Plane of Sky, and the spell component they will need to cast the spell costs around 250 platinum, so it's not something any wizard can necessarily just do on a whim.

When you talk to Kihun, the following conversation ensues (thanks to Balasarius NoxDominus of The Seventh Hammer for the text):
You say, 'Hail, Kihun Solstin'

Kihun Solstin says 'So, you have made it this far. I am Kihun Solstin, the Master of Wind. I control the unfettered Element like none other. As you should have learned, Air is the most potent of Elements. It fuels Fire, Water is comprised of it, and Earth cannot restrain it. Knowing this, do you seek the Element of Wind?

You say, 'I seek the element of wind'

Kihun Solstin says 'I will test you then. In this wondrous plane of Air, find the Crown of Elemental Mastery, and search the world below for an Elemental Binder, and a cloak fashioned from the feathers of a Pegusus. Return them to me and I shall give you the Element of Wind.
When you hand in the three items he wants, he says the following:

You gain party experience!!

Kihun Solstin says 'If you have obtained the other, lesser Elements, go speak with The Master of Elements, who is now waiting for you. I wish you luck. If you have not completed all the tasks set for you, let me know, and I shall let you see the Master.
At this point he gives you the Element of Wind:

+ Crown of Elemental Mastery
(Plane of Sky: any island 7 mob, semi-rare or rare drop)

This is a picture of the building on the 7th isle in the Plane of Sky. You can probably make out a few of the drakes flying around above the island. There are N kinds of mobs here: greater sphinxes, heartsbane drakes, fatestealer, windrider drakes, and undine spirits. All of them have a chance of dropping a Crown of Elemental mastery, although the sphinxes and windrider drakes have the greatest chance. Clearing the 7th isle will typically net 0-3 crowns, but it's random.

The mobs on the 7th isle range from 55-60 or so. The greater sphinxes will DEATHTOUCH every 45 seconds, so you're going to need a major raid party to even GET to the 7th isle, let alone clear it and get crowns. The crowns, however, are NOT NODROP, which means that you can pray and hope that someone will have one for sale. I wouldn't bet on it, though; people don't go to Sky much except to GET epic components for those who attend the raids, so it's unlikely that there'd be one just sitting around.

* Elemental Binder
(The Hole: "an elemental warrior", common drop)

Elemental warriors are found right at the zone entrance to the Hole. If you go in with a group, you can hunt these guys fairly safely for a couple of hours and you're likely to get an Elemental Binder. Binders are also NODROP and sell for 500-2000pp, depending on the server. I got mine for 400pp from some druid who didn't know what it was.

Name: an elemental warrior
Zone: The Hole
Location: Near the zone entrance
Spawn time: ?
Drops: Elemental Binder (semi-common)
Class: Warrior
Level: 38-42
Hit Points: 2831-4166
Casts: nothing
Hits for (max): ?
Notes: None.
Appearance: Earth elemental.

* Pegasus Feather Cloak
(South Karana: Quillmane, very rare drop)

Quillmane is a rare spawn, but he can spawn anywhere in the zone. Most commonly he is found in the interior of the zone, away from the zone walls, but he can be out there, too. He wanders almost constantly, and is killed almost instantly by any who see him (because the cloak you need for the quest is All/All and has unlimited charges of Levitate...). This sucks, but it means it takes some real effort to get the cloak.

Because Quillmane spawns randomly and wanders, the best way to get the cloak is to go to South Karanas with as many high level rangers and druids as you can gather. More than 5 would be overkill, since you want to be grouped with them all. Basically, what you should do is summon your pet of choice, get a SoW, and then run around the zone killing anything that wanders. Static spawns like the Aviaks at their tower or the Tesch Mas Gnolls outside splitpaw, need not be killed (Quillmane doesn't spawn there, and there will always be people camping the Aviaks and Gnolls anyway). Anything else that wanders -- centaurs, wolves, lions, elephants, aviaks, gnolls, treants (although there is a faction issue there) -- is fair game. You want five trackers with you because they can always home in on a mob and kill it, and they can do this constantly -- the instant something shows up on tracking, they will go after it and kill it. And the reason you want to be grouped is, if someone in your group does see Quillmane and kills him, then you will be able to get to the corpse and loot it before it opens up and some ninjalooter steals your cloak!

Even one high-level tracker with you can make this an easy enough camp. (To put it another way, one tracker tracking and killing mobs, and Quillmane when he pops, is better than wandering about hoping to encounter Quillmane by yourself!) If you have even one or two ranger or druid friends who can help, then your life will become immeasurably easier.

Nevertheless, even with your entire guild scouring the zone for Quillmane, expect to spend at least several hours on getting the cloak. If you're doing it solo, then may Mithaniel Marr protect your soul...

James Whitehead sent the following email -- I haven't tested this theory myself but it sounds plausible:
I have been working on the spawn cycles of Quillimane In South Karana lately and would like to share with my fellow EQ'ers what I have noted. Quillimane seems to actually have placeholders as do most "named" mobs in everquest. And in all actualality she seems to be the less rare of some of the "named" mobs. Now it does appear there are atleast 2 different spawn cycles of the "named" mobs here. Playing a tracker for 58 levels gives you a little insight into how this can work. The following are are in Quillimanes spawn cycle, any named gnoll, ie, shaman ren'rex, high shaman grisok,phido and lenrel do not kill brother drash, he is NOT in the cycle. I am going to set up 3 spawn points the first spawn point 1 would be just south of the hermit, spawn point 2 will be north of the shadow men and finally spawn point 3 is west of paw, its very difficult to pin point any of these spawn points because as soon as anything spawns it starts moving immeidately. I have been able to get Quillimane to spawn by running between these points and killing the "Named" spawns as they pop. However Quillimane seems to only spawn at spawn point 1 from my experience, where she then starts moving towards paw where she is normally spotted and killed. I have killer her now maybe 15-20 times and have gotten the cloak once, sorry I am not a mage, however I am a druid who always runs out of batwings and loves the free wingless levitate effect. There also seems to be many many named mobs in the zone which I am not totally sure if they are in on the cycle or not, seeing as I have my cloak I havent had time to research it anymore. These named spawns would be cracktusk, grizzlenot, gnawfang, a rabid gnool, mroon, some named druids and a barb that can drop a nice weight reduction bag. I am not totally sure if any of these named ones are in the spawn cycle due to most of them being very rare, I just stick to killing named gnolls and Quillimane will pop. Good luck to everyone that needs this item, it is very rare and very nice for everyone to use.

Name: Quillmane
Zone: Southern Plains of Karana (South Karana, SK)
Location: Anywhere in the zone
Spawn time: Random
Drops: Pegasus Feather Cloak (rare), Feathered Leggings (common)
Class: Warrior
Level: 30
Hit Points: ? (probably no more than 1500, more likely 1200 or so)
Casts: Nothing.
Hits for (max): 60 or so.
Notes: Spawns randomly in the zone; everything that moves is a placeholder for him. He seems to be most commonly found near Splitpaw, but that may be because that's where most of the people are...
Appearance: A pegasus (flying, winged, white horse).

MONK EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Celestial Fists

You are required very early on in the Quest to hand in your RotWF, but it is possible to fight all the Celestial Fists to get the Demon Fangs, THEN complete the RotWF. The start of the Epic Quest originates with Tomekeeper Danl, on the second floor within the Erudite Library.

'Hail Tomekeeper Danl'

Tomekeeper Danl says 'Good day, citizen. Please remember to keep your voice down in our library. Feel free to browse the extensive collection of books we have on display. Learning is all about you and our library is the greatest collection of educational literature in the world, as you can no doubt see. However, there are a few books we do not own and we are prepared to pay well to acquire [rare finds].

'What rare finds?'

Tomekeeper Danl says 'Yes, any rare books, tomes, essays, or other literature you find may be of interested to me.

Although the finds I am interested in are quite high profile and would most likely only be found in the possession of very powerful or influential beings. Give me what you have found and I will pay you what it is worth to us.

The book he requires is called the book of Immortals, a book found in Skyfire. It drops from any of the following - 'Soul Devourer' , 'lava walker' , 'Black Scar', 'a wandering wurm', 'a Shadow Drake', 'Guardian of Felia', or any other of the named mobs there.

The following is the text from the book of Immortals:

The immortals who can be spoken of are not the Eternal Immortals. Their Spoken names are not the eternal names. In the namelessness they are the beginning of heaven and earth.

Named they are one of the ten thousand things. Though different in title they spring from one source and appear as darkness Darkness within darkness. The gate to their mystery. The immortals do not go forth. All comes to them. They are like the ocean, the king of ten thousand streams. By staying beneath they are a receptacle for all things. They do nothing. Yet are masters of the universe. Trorsmang! Be our course of action. Anbeal! Become the Vessel to hold our virtue. Drina! Be our stability, where we can take root. Cordan! Fill our vessels and calm our ambitions. Norrath! Take our husks and breathe life into them. We beseech you! Guide us in your humility.

Giving Tomekeeper Danl the Book of Immortals, prompts the following:

Tomekeeper Danl gasps at the sight of the rare book and says, 'This is a great find indeed! I can only imagine who you had to.. persuade to give you the book. Our library would be very interested in acquiring this and I am prepared to give you this platinum and a referral that marks you as a friend of the library. If only [Lheao] could see this.'

'Who is Lheao?'

Tomekeeper Danl says 'Lheao was my predecessor here at the Library of Erudin. He has since retired, just a few years ago. I'm sure he would be most impressed with your find and offer insightful conversation on the subject. Although I'm not sure one of your profession would be interested in such a scholarly endeavor, no offense. If you are interested, find him and tell him you found the book 'Immortals.' I'm not sure where he has retired to, but I hear it is near an ocean somewhere.

He gives you a piece of paper, Danl's reference, which identifies as 'Paper with the Erudin Library Seal'

Lheao is found in the Timerous Deep (EQAtlas) in the hidden oasis. To reach it, take the boat from Fironia Vie, and jump off as it turns towards the South East, and continue swimming South. The loc is approximately neg 11500, neg 2000, where you will run into a huge rock wall that is a huge ring of solid rock. There is an underwater tunnel, which goes under this wall, at approx neg 11357 neg 3657.

Once through that tunnel, you surface and see another huge rock. This second huge rock has another tunnel, (at loc -11354, -1365) which is at the opposite side to where you entered. This finally leads you to the hidden oasis, where you see a ramp leading to an inn, where Lhaeo stands outside.

'Hail Lhaeo'

Lheao jumps at your voice and begins laughing at his skittishness. He says, 'Ahh, hello there. Not many people know of this place, so visitors are quite rare. Hehehe. It's a very beautiful place indeed, so, ummm, please don't go telling everyone you know about it. Heheh. Thanks, friend.'

'I have found the book Immortals'

Lheao looks up at you, eyes wide in astonishment, and says, 'My god, you found 'Immortals'?! Where did you find it? Never mind, that is unimportant. I have in my possession a book that explains more about these individuals.

Its value is unimaginable as well as the impact it is capable of. As you can see, I grow old. I need an individual to watch over this book and make sure it is protected. Would you be willing to [take this responsibility]?'

'I will take this responsibility'

If you are under 53rd level, at this point he will give you a not so poliete 'go away' message, I got something along the lines of 'I beleive I saw a gnoll pup a few miles back that you can deal with', bit when I handed him the robe and reference, he gave me the book.

Lheao says 'I'm sorry, Kage , but I could only give this book to a true master, such as a member of the Whistling Fists Order. And unless you can give me proof that you are one, in addition to Danl's reference, which is very unlikely, there is no way I'll let you take charge of [the Celestial Fists].

'What Celestial Fists?'

Lheao says 'The Celestial Fists is the title of a book written by an unknown author. His writing is sub par but the legend is interesting from a biographical standpoint alone. Its rarity commands top dollar in the scholarly community but the secrets revealed in the book are what truly makes it dangerous. I've thought many times to destroy it but just couldn't. I hope I'm able to find someone to watch over it soon.

Once the Robe of the Whistling Fists and Danl's reference are handed in, the following is said.

Lheao says 'Astonishing! To think that you are a master of an order thought to be lost to our world. Forgive my earlier doubts. I believe you are indeed worthy to be given the responsibility of watching over this book. Take great care that it does not fall into the wrong hands as it would be truly disastrous

The book called Celestial Fists Book is illegible.

~~The Kaiaren's~~

The next step is someone called Kaiaren, who is located at Loc -1609, -2679, just as you come into the upper Sebilis Ruins in Trakanons Teeth (EQAtlas). He may be slightly off this location, as he chases Monks, and does not return to his original spawn point.

'Hail Kaiaren'

Kaiaren says, " AHHH get it away from me go away .. leave me alone".

'What Celestial Fists'

Kaiaren says 'Eh? What's that? Bah! That was destroyed long ago. Don't waste my time with fairy taAAAAAGGHHH GET IT AWAY!!!! HELP!!!

They're all over MEHEHEHEHEEEEEEee!!

Handing Kaiaren the book Celestial Fists prompts: Kaiaren's eyes open wide and he attacks you!

Upon death he says 'Not bad.. Now lets see if you can find my trueform if you do we discuss this further.'

Note: You do not need to kill Kaiaren, as giving him the book and feigning him off (or /quit out) works fine. He is 52nd level, and hits for 145 damage (which hurts when you get a 'Bodi has fallen to the ground' message....)

Either way, you will recieve the Celestial Fists book back into your inventory.

~~The True Form~~

The next step is to find Kaiaren's true form, which spawns when the book is given to the mad Kaiaren. He is also called Kaiaren, identical to the 'mad' version, and is also located in Trakanons Teeth near the lake. He spawns at approx 300, 2400 in a building next to the lake. He is level 60+ and indifferent. When you hand him the book, he says the following:

Kaiaren says 'Now, then. Where did you find this, monk? This is not just some light reading to be borrowed from the town library. Who gave this to you?

'I got it from lheao'

Kaiaren says 'Hmmm, never heard of him. Well, it doesn't matter, the book is here now. Curse that idiot for writing it in the first place. Not even sure why I let him stick around. If you ever see that clown monk Aradiel kick him in the shins for me! At any rate, I suppose you'd like to find the Fists and [have a nice chat with them], eh? Their master owes me much. I would reward you well if you were to bring me proof of the master's defeat'

'I would like to have a nice chat with them'

Kaiaren says 'Yes, I suppose you would. All you children looking for fame and glory will eventually learn the poison of ambition. But how will you find them? They are able to meld with their elements seamlessly and they certainly have no interest in fooling with the likes of you. No, you will need to get their attention. Fortunately, I know [how you can do this].

'how can I do this?'

Kaiaren says, 'My guess is that the weakest of the Fists will be the easiest to draw out. he is egotistical and arrogant. How he came to master the Discipline of Fire, I do not know. He will most likely be in another form, one of his element. When you find the one you believe to be the Fist, you must challenge him. If you use his true name, Eejag, in your formal challenge, he will respond. A flame can burn intensely but it cannot last for long. Know this when you battle him.

He hands you back the book, and it has now changed from the 'Celestial Fists' to the 'Book of Celestial Fists' as shown.

Important Note: Now the Book has been returned to you, and as shown, it is NOT the same. The properties of this book have now been changed. Please DO NOT hand this book over again until the final stage, as he will expect the demon fangs as well.

~~The Celestial Fists~~

~~Eejag~~

In Lavastorm, there is an wandering Imp, larger than the others, called 'a fire Sprite'. The sprite is pretty common and travels from the druid ring to the southeast and back again. He is a very low lvl imp (approximatly 14th level). If Eejag is already spawned he won't shout to the zone when you say the challenge to the sprite. To initiate the sequence, hail the Fire Sprite with:

'I Challenge Eejag'

The fire sprite disappears and the zone gets a message...

Eejag shouts What imbecile dares challenges a Celestial Fist?! Do you even know who you are challenging? HA! You are nothing but an insect! I will enjoy crushing you, I have not charred the flesh of an idiot in decades! If you truly wish to fight me, the battle shall be held in my own element. Come, challenger, come down to the pits of flowing fire.

The 'pits of flowing fire' is the large pool of lava by the Solesek's. At Loc 1061, 248, -132, roughly under the middle smoke plume, an Iksar will be swimming. He is lvl 55, and hits for a maximum of 157. Eejag will NOT be pulled, and he refuses to move from his spawn spot. He cons indifferent, so it is possible to gather round him beforehand. When you get summoned, you appear on the bottom of the lake directly beneath him, where he can hit you, but you cant hit him. He can summon you regardless of if you are in the lava or not. Visibility is VERY bad.

Once killed, he drops nothing but the Charred Scale, which Identifies as the Remains of the Fists of Fire.

Note: Eejag can be summoned again almost immediatly (sometimes the Fire Sprite can take a few minutes to spawn) after death by challenging the Fire Sprite again, there is no 'respawn time'.

For more info, and details of my fight with Eejag, click the link below:

~~Eejag Info~~

You then hand the Charred Scale to the True Form in Trakanon's Teeth. The scale is returned to you, and you get the following:

Kaiaren says 'Ahhh, impressive indeed! Now that you have broken the chain of the Fists, the others may come toppling down if you persevere. The Fist of Air is now the weakest, then Earth, and finally Water before the master of them all, Vorash. You must defeat them in order, proving the demise of the last to draw out the one you are after. The task before you now is to take this scale and show it to the Fist of Air wherever he may be. Good luck, Zadkiel .

Note: The Charred Scale does not have to be cycled through Kaiaren's true form before going to see Gwan. If you are completing the quest before you hand over the robe, you will not be able to hand in the scale to the True form anyway.

~~Gwan~~

A presence, is found in the Plane of Sky, on Noble Dojorns Island, and is the Place Holder for the Fist of Air. The presence has a respawn time of approximatly 2 hours. He has the model of a shadowed man, but carries no items, so is invisible apart from his name.

When you travel to sky, (rather than paying 500pp for the sword keys from the keymaster), kill the spirits, and have everyone loot a miniature sword. You then kill the thunder spirit princess, and she will spawn Sirran the lunatic. When everyone hands in a miniature sword to Sirran, you will get a key of swords back.

Go to the West teleport pad, touch the key to it, and it will take you to Dojorn isle, where the presence and Gwan are.

Please use these excellent guides on Sky for more detailed information

Catranizi's Plane of Sky Guide

Xegony Plane of Sky Guide

Handing the Presence the scale gets the following response:

a presence says 'Hahaha! That dolt Eejag fell to the likes of you? I'm not surprised. So, I guess this means you're here to challenge me. Normally, I wouldn't waste my time, but since you've defeated my younger brother, I suppose I'm obligated. I'm ready when you are, tell me when you're [prepared].

At this point the presence despawns and immediately respawns in the same location as a Human monk dressed in shiverback named Gwan. Telling him 'I am prepared' (or attacking him) causes him to attack.

He doesn't respond to hails, and is lvl 57. He procs Fist of Air, which a lvl 57 resisted every time with a MR of 120. He has approx 24khp, hits for 165, and the Fist of Air proc can knock you backwards, (possibly off the island) and like other mobs of this level, enrages.

Enrage: A Mob when down to 25 to 30 percent of hits, enrages, causing the Mob to riposte EVERY attack made from the front 45 degrees. If you are standing in front when he enrages, with a low delay weapon with max haste, you will kill yourself very quickly. At the point of enrage (a message is shown), turn off auto attack and taunt (if able) or attack from the rear while others taunt him.

Upon death, Gwan's corpse lets out one last, frustrated breath and gasps, 'Trunt! Prepare yourself!'

The 'a presence' is on Dojorn's island, which also contains the bladestorms, but they have been confirmed that they will not attack and help, or KS Gwan.

You cannot trade with the presence (i.e. give him the scale from Eejag,) while it is in the windmill. It is best to give the scale to a presence, causing Gwan to spawn, then pull Gwan into the windmill and kill him. Pulling him is recommended to be done while in Melee range, i.e. WALKING backwards with him. Running off nearly always causes him to path incorrectly, and disappear to another island. It is highly recommended to pull him into the Windmill.

For more info, and details of my fight with Gwan, click the link below:

~~Gwan Info~~

He drops nothing but the Breath of Gwan, which id's as Item Lore: Remains of the Fist of Air.

Important Note: Do not hand the The Breath of Gwan to the true form of Kaiaren, as it will be eaten. The Breath is required for the next step, Trunt.

~~Trunt~~

Within the mines of Nurga, which is located in the Frontier Mountains, there is 'a sleeping Ogre', near a number of spiders not too far into the dungeon. A good marker is a unique graphic to this dungeon, which is a smoking hole in the wall, where you can see lava. When he is spawned he is looking right at that crevice in the wall. The Sleeping Ogres respawn time is approx 3 hours.

He is KOS, and he says nothing except some kind of sleeping message when you hail him while charmed.

Handing in the Breath of Gwan can be done in a few different ways. Either have invisibility cast upon you, then sneak behind him and hand in the Breath, or feign at his feet, wait for him to sit back down, and then sneak and stand to give in the Breath.

Either way gets this response:

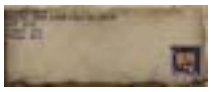

a sleeping ogre says 'Your path of wanton destruction ends here, Southern . Gwan and Eejag were impatient and hot-headed. You will not defeat me, for I have the patience and perseverance of stone, unlike the children you have beaten before me. Are you sure you want to challenge me, Southern?

You do not get to reply to the sleeping Ogre, as Trunt, who is KOS, spawns, and attacks immediatly. He is around 59th level Ogre, hits for around 176, has approx 29k hp, is immune to magic, and his proc, 'Fist of Earth' is a 200dd.

For more info, and details of my fight with Trunt, click the link below:

~~Trunt Info~~

Trunt has no faction, and says no message when he dies. He drops nothing but the Head.

Trunts Head identifies as Remains of the fist of earth.

~~Deep~~

The next of the Celestial Fists is Deep. She is approx a level 58 Dark Elf, and lives under Lake Rathe (EQAtlas), and is surrounded by Bloodgill Goblins. Her location is Loc 2783, 134, under the 3 Bird platform (the one with the flame on it.)

When Trunts head is handed to her, she says the following.

Deep slowly opens her eyes and looks up at you. She stares at you a long while and then closes her eyes and lowers her head again, saying, 'Very well, Arakos, if you wish death so greatly, we will be happy to oblige. My master projects part of himself in the wilder lands known as the Overthere. He has granted you an audience. Find him and show him the head of our earth brother. At that point, we will discuss how we will end your life.

No Experience is received and Deep despawns immediately. You get the Head of Trunt handed back.

Note: Trunts Head does not have to be cycled through Deep, and this part can be skipped.

~~Astral Projections~~

The first Astral Projection is in the Overthere, at location 772, 860, in the bottom of the scorpion chasm. The Scorpians are casters, and can cast 340dd's and can fear you as well. The closest entrance to the chasm is at -1400, -1200, but going this way will mean plenty of sneaking (or an invis run) through the scorpians. Heading to a slope at loc 1810, 668 is the closest to the Projection. He does not need to be fought, is approx 52nd level, but if fought hits for 175 damage, and says nothing on death. He cons KOS, but will not attack, nor does he respond to hails.

Handing the Projection Trunts head, results in the following:

Astral Projection looks up and down and says, 'Hmmm, I was hoping for something more impressive. This is just a small token of the last person who tried to interfere with my plans. He failed as you shall. But tell me truly, are you the one who has so rudely removed my students?'

'yes'

Astral Projection says 'I assume you have read about us and spoken with the old man, Kaiaren. Since that time, I have grown in power and influence to a point unseen by any mortal. Unfortunately, I will have to demonstrate a small amount of my skill when I destroy you. This is bad. I must decide whether you are worthy to see the techniques I wield, even though you will die shortly thereafter. Tell me, Ashana , who are you?

'I am the one'

Astral Projection chuckles and says, 'That's quite a boast, Ashana. All beings strive for nothingness at the most basic level of sentience. However, almost none ever achieve this. Not even I have discarded my ego yet and you stand here and tell me you have? Perhaps you will be a worthy opponent. I shall be waiting in the great lake near here. Take that token as proof of things to come for you. If you still wish to throw your life away so needlessly, return it to my image there. I await your decision.'

He will give you an Eye of Kaiaren, and then the Astral Projection despawns.

He is a 3 hour spawn.

The Eye of Kaiaren is recieved when Trunts head is turned in (along with some experience), but it is only the final text (telling him that 'I am the one') that despawns the Projection. So it is possible to give in Trunts head, receive the eye and leave the AP without despawning him. How this affects the next person, I am unsure, so it may be wise to say the text, meaning the next person has a 'fresh' projection to turn the head into.

~~The Final Fight~~

The second of the Astral Projections is in the Lake of Ill Omen, and is on a platform on the lake itself. The Platform is too high to climb onto, but SoW and Levitation can get you up there. He is identical in appearance to the other Projection. He is KOS to all, but does not attack and will accept the eye.

Note: Again, due to the fact that there where some problems with this part of the quest, one way to minimize the chances of Vorash and Deep not spawning together is to have your groups on the edges of the platform, and hand the 'eye' in at the maximum distance allowed for trading, or obviously fight on the beach. You can never be too careful.

When you give the Eye of Kaiaren to the Astral Projection, he despawns immediatly, and Deep and Vorash both spawn, who are KOS, and will both attack the Monk.

Deep procs Fist of Water, and hits for 170ish. Vorash procs Fist of Mastery, which is a DD and a stun, and hits for around the same as Deep.

Both Deep and Vorash have no items.

Once killed, Vorash says 'Foolish mortal! You think you have defeated me? Now, witness the true power of Rallos Zek!

Xenevorash will then spawn on the platform, regardless of where Vorash dies.

Xenovorash Procs Fist of Sentience which is a 500DD and a stun, and hits for 250 ish.

Once he is killed, his death message is:

Xenevorash's corpse shouts 'Grraaaagghhhh!! NOT.. POSSIBLE!

He drops the Demon Fangs.

Tactics: The final battle was originally done with 4 groups, which where all 52 to 58th level, one group was on Deep, all with high CR, and 3 groups where all on Vorash, with high MR. Due to the large amount of people involved, the fight had no casualties.

The fight is normally done by pulling Deep and Vorash to the 'beach', or the fight can be done on the platform. However, fighting on the beach does allow a brief time to rebuff for the Xenevorash fight (I believe after 5 mins or so, he heads to the beach and slaughters all he sees.)

Xenevorash always runs on low health, so if fighting on the platform, he will run into the water, which is another reason to fight on the beach.

The Astral Projection respawns 3 hours after Xenevorash has been killed.

~~Final Fight Info~~

~~The Celestial Fists~~

Please read the following VERY carefully. It is confusing as the books are not differently named enough to make it that much easier.

Remember, that once you have given the True Form of Kairen the Celestial Fists book he will tell you of the Fists (ie Gwan, Trunt etc..), and return you the CHANGED book --the Book of Celestail Fists.

YOU MUST HAVE CYCLED THE BOOK THROUGH THE TRUE FORM!

Once the Book of Celestial Fists has been returned to you, it is now ready to be handed to either Kaiaren along with the Demon Fangs.

If you have followed the quest in order, you will end up with the Book of Celestial Fists and the Demon fangs, and may find that the 'True' Kairen is no longer about. If you have done it the 'proper' way, you can hand the 'Book of the Celestial Fists' and the 'Demon fangs' to the 'mad' version and still get the Fists.

Most people however, now that the quest has been completed, will fight the four fists to get the fang, THEN hand over the Robe to Lheao. This way, the first time you see the True Kaiaren, you can hand in the 'Celestial Fists' book, then when it is returned (and changed), hand him the 'Book of Celestial Fists' to him along with the 'Demon fangs' to obtain the Fists.

Are you handing these to Kairen? No? Then read the above again!

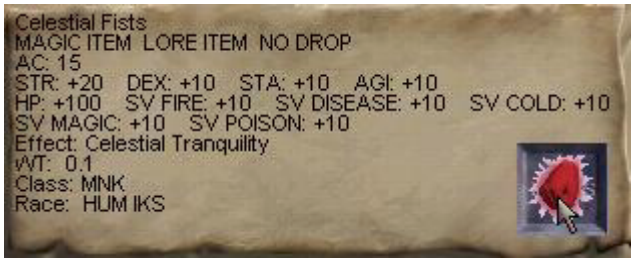

Handing either form of Kaiaren (Mad or True) the Book of the Celestial Fists and the Demon Fangs, results in the Monk Epic, the Gloves called the Celestial Fists being handed over, with the following text.

Kaiaren bows his head and breathes a long sigh as if relived of a great weight. He then looks up at you and says, 'I honestly did not believe you could have defeated Vorash. Even though he sought nothing but war and bloodshed, it is a life nonetheless and we must mourn him. I will sew these fangs into magical fist wraps and they shall be yours. Remember Xenevorash. A purpose can be found for every situation and individual. To achieve perfection is to perceive this truth.'

The experience recieved for finishing this quest was approximatly two and a half blue bubs at level 52.

The Effect Celestial Tranquility is a right clickable 40% Song haste, +12 AC and +53 Att. Its duration is 9 seconds.

They also change the Damage/Delay of both of your fists to 9/16, not including any Haste you may already have.

Haste Item	Haste Total	Damage Delay of Fists
None	0%	9 dmg 16 dly
Right Click Effect of Celestial Fists	40%	9 dmg 13 dly
With right click + FBSS	61%	9 dmg 11 dly
With right click + CoF	76%	9 dmg 10 dly

NECROMANCER EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Start

The quest starts in Nektulos Forest where you must find Venenzi Oberzendi. She is at location -1000 -700.

You say, 'Hail Venenzi Oberzendi'

Venenzi Oberzendi says 'What is it you want! Can't you see I am gathering reagents for my [master]? If I don't get them for him quickly he might punish me.

You say, 'Who is your master?'

Venenzi Oberzendi says 'You do not know of my teacher? The great Kazen Fe'cae! I am one of his illustrious apprentices! If you fancy yourself a necromancer, travel to Lake Rathetear and tell Kazen you wish to study the dark arts.

You say, 'What reagents'

Venenzi Oberzendi says 'My master is working on some great project. He's always busy studying an old text he found and murmuring something about following in the footsteps of Miragul.

Her Master, Kazen Facae, is at location 340 -1600. He will ask you that you bring him Sir Motte's Head.

You say, 'Hail Kazen Fecae'

Kazen Fecae 's eyes seem to glow as he turns to you and says, 'Leave me be if you have no reason to be here, mortal!'

You say, 'I wish to study the dark arts'

Kazen Fecae looks you up and down, his eyes glowing with a soft red light. After a moment he begins to speak though his lips do not move. 'You wish to study under me? Perhaps, if you prove yourself to follow the twisted path. If you prove to be as coldhearted as I then I will let you become my servant.'

You say, 'how can I prove myself'

Kazen Fecae says 'The wandering 'knight' Sir Edwin Motte recently slew one of my lesser servants. This foolish knave travels from town to town pretending to be 'good.' Separate his head from his body and return it to me so I may work my magics upon it. This fool will become another plaything for me, even in death.

Symbol of the Apprentice

Sir Edwin Motte is a level 33 paladin. He is found in 4 places throughout Norrath. The first place is at the Docks in East Freeport. He spawns fairly frequently in the inn. He is easiest to catch here. He is part of a rotation with Tumpy, Groflah, and a barbarian in leather. Just kill these guys if they are there and wait for Edwin to spawn. Once he has spawned, kill him too. He is only level 33 and should be easy to dispose of.

Bring the head back to Kazen for the Symbol of the Apprentice.

Kazen Fecae says 'Excellent!' You watch Kazen hold the head by the hair and begin to cast a spell. A flash of darkness centers around the head and the eyes of the dead knight open, a terrible scream emanating from its lips. 'This poor fool here - I think I will keep him in my bag from now on. You have done well, my new apprentice. Take this symbol and know that you can do other tasks to advance within my apprentice ranks.'

You say, 'How can I advance?'

Kazen Fecae says 'I share great secrets with my more powerful servants who show me they are willing to serve without question. Tell my servant the name of any symbol he gives you and he will instruct you. If I give you a symbol, speak its name to me so I may instruct you.

You say, 'What about a symbol of the apprentice?'

Kazen Fecae says 'You have a long way to go before I teach you the true secrets of life and death. Visit Venenzi Oberendi in the Nektulos forest and show her the symbol. She is collecting reagents for one of my experiments and is taking far too long. I do not wish her dead, yet. I simply need the reagents soon. Retrieve the reagents and give them to my assistant Emkel Kabae. I do not wish to handle them myself.

The Task

Take this symbol to Venenzi and she will give you the Twisted Symbol of the Apprentice.

Venenzi Oberzendi says 'I see you serve my master as well now. I assume you are here to take the reagents from me which I have gathered for him? I don't know if I like the idea of you gaining the credit for my hard work here. I might consider giving you these reagents, if only you do a small [task] for me.

You say, 'What task?'

Venenzi Oberzendi looks down at her robes and back at you. 'There is a certain dark elf magician who has decided to wear the same fashion as I have on several occasions. I do not wish to attend another social gathering in Neriak and look exactly the same as another woman. Slay her and bring me her robe and I will give you my hard earned reagents.

Now go to the mart on your server which is usually either Greater Faydark or East Commonlands. Buy a Flowing Black Robe for about 200-300 platinum. They are almost always being sold. Take the Flowing Black Robe back to Venenzi for some moss.

Venenzi Oberzendi says 'Thank you, Seorn . I did not think you would track down Najena and slay her. I think that I am going to return to my old life in Neriak. I am sick of the way Kazen has been treating me. He never seems to teach me anything worthwhile. Don't forget to give his lapdog that symbol with the reagents. I'm sure he will give you a new one.

Emkel

Go back to Lake Rathe and find Emkel, Fazen's Apprentice. He is by the stone skeleton tower. Give him the Twisted Symbol of the Apprentice and the moss for the Symbol of the Serpent.

You say, 'Hail Emkel Kabae'

Emkel Kabae says 'I am Emkel Kabae, first apprentice to Kazen. If you have a symbol, tell me its name.

You say, 'what about the twisted symbol of the apprentice'

Emkel Kabae says 'Very good, Seorn , you have done as the master asked yet again, take this as a reward.' Emkel reaches into his robes and pulls out a small symbol. He holds it out and the tiny symbol floats to your hand.

You say, 'What is the symbol of the serpent'

Emkel Kabae says 'There are more reagents to be gathered. The time draws near for our master's ascension. Travel to the lands of Kunark and seek out Ssessthrass. He is a very wise Iksar herbalist helping me in my endeavor to please Master Kazen. Be careful not to insult his speech, or you may end up dead before you serve your purpose to the master. Be sure to show him the symbol as proof or he may consider you dinner.

Ssessthrass

You will need to take this Symbol to Ssessthrass, a named iksar in Swamp of No Hope. He is at location 3800, 1600 which is in a house in the pass to go to Field of Bone. He will give you Scaled Symbol of the Serpent.

You say, 'Hail Ssessthrass'

Ssessthrass says 'I do not wisssh to be bothered.

Give him the Symbol of the Serpent.

Ssessthrass says 'Sssso, Emkel ssssent you to retrieve the manisi herb? I do not have the herb. The ssssarnak guard the herb. Apparently it is ssssacred to them. Only memberssss of their royal family are allowed to partake of it. They live deep in Chardok. They are hoarding what little of the precious herb there is. If you have an army, perhapssss you can bring me the herb and I can prepare it for Emkel. Bring back this ssssymbol as well.

Manisi Herb

Next, head to Chardok with 3-4 groups of level 54+. You will need to get to the Overking Area. The herbalist spawns right in front of the secret wall which leads to the Overking Area. He is easier to kill than most other mobs with 18 people. The spawn time is approximately 1 hour and he has a placeholder. He doesn't always drop the Manisi Herb, which is what you need from him so you might have to try this more than once. Return to Ssessthrass and give him the Manisi Herb and the Scaled Symbol of the Serpent for a Refined Manisi Herb. Now go back to Emkel and give him the Refined Manisi Herb. You will get the Symbol of Testing.

Take the Symbol of Testing and give it to Kazen. Immediately after, three mobs will spawn close by to the East of Emkel on a little inlet. You can kill them with two groups of 50+. You will need a few good clerics and tanks and they shouldn't cause any trouble. The three mobs are Bone Golem, Failed Apprentice, and Tormented Spirit. The Bone Golem and the Tormented Spirit were both level 55 and the Failed Apprentice was blue to a 53. The three mobs spawn one after another right after the previous one dies (in the order listed above). The Tormented Spirit drops the Symbol of Insanity.

Loot the Symbol of Insanity and take it to Drendico Metalbones in Timorous Deep. He is at the docks that take you to the Overthere. If you turn right from the docks and climb onto a stoney hill, you will see this little gnome wandering around 6485, 3829. In return for the Symbol he will give you his journal and asks you to return to him, Eye of Innoruuk, Blood of Cazic-Thule, and Cloak of Spiroc Feathers.

Reagents

To get the Cloak of Spiroc Feathers you will need to speak with Jzil Gsix. You asks for you to bring him a Silver Disc, Spiroc Feathers, and a Black Silk Cape. The Silver Disc is found off of mobs on the second isle. It is most commonly dropped off of Azeracks, level 53 monsters of the second isle. The Spiroc Feathers are dropped from the Watchful Guardian on the 3rd Isle. They are level 53-55. The final item, Black Silk Cape, is dropped by the boss of the fourth island, Keeper of Souls. He is a level 60 mob that death touches every 30 seconds. He can quad hit for 400 which is a real nuisance. Bring along many of your friends to kill him. The cape drops about 1 every 15 times (Drop rate changed as of 5/8. New drop rate needed). Finally, take the three items to Jzil and he will give you the Cloak of Spiroc Feathers.

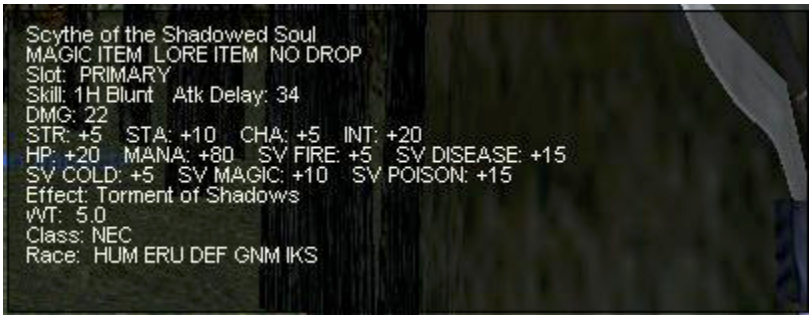

The Eye of Innoruuk still drops from Innoruuk in Plane of Hate but since the last Epic Changes patch, it has also been added to the loot tables of mini-bosses. Some confirmed mobs that drop this Eye include Maestro of Rancor, a Ashenbone Drake, Magi P' Tasa (Level 55), Master of Spite, Thought Destroyer, and the Corrupter of Life. Maestro of Rancor is a level 53 Follower of Innoruuk, Maestro of Rancor. He can be found sitting at his piano. Be careful with this guy because he has a 200 hp AOE lifetap spell. If you know of the another mob tell me. Ashenbone Drakes aren't too difficult to kill. They must be meleed to death though because any casters casting on them must be right next to it and this may cause the drake to attack the caster. They range from level 51 to 53.

The Blood of Cazic-Thule is dropped off of Terror, one of the iron guardians guarding Cazic's temple in Plane of Fear. He is level 60 and said to be the second hardest creature in Plane of Fear.

Take all three items plus the journal back to Drendico. He will give you a Prepared Reagents Box.

The End

Go back to Kazen and give him the Prepared Reagents Box for Tome of Instruction. When you give the Thunder Spirit Princess 3pp, Gkzzallk spawns on the Gorgalosk Isle, and you are given forty minutes to get there before he despawns. The best way to do this is to clear isle one, making sure everyone has an item to turn in for their key to Azerack Isle, then before killing the princess and spawning Sirran, turn in the 3pp, thus starting the timer. After killing the princess and turning in the key pieces, you merely need to clear Azerack isle and get to Gorgalosk Isle, in under 40 minutes. If you are pressed for time, or your group is not large enough to kill the entire isle in enough time, merely kill the static spawn Azerack, which will trigger Protector of Sky, once he dies and Sirran spawns, you can get to Gorgalosk Isle. This is not usually recommended, as Sirran will assist any roaming Azerack in attacking you. Gorgalosk Isle does not need to be cleared to do the turn in to Gkzzallk, as the isle is non-aggro, so only the Necromancer needs to port there. Once he does the turn in, Gkzzallk despawns, he gets the item, and everyone can leave. Give the Tome of Instruction to Gkzzallk. He will give you Gkzzallk in a Bottle. Take the Bottle back to Kazen. You will finally recieve the Scythe of Shadowed Souls.

PALADIN EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Start

The Paladin Epic Quest starts out in Erudin where you talk to Reklon Gnallen for the basic quest information. The quest giver is Fetid Fiend Irak Altil, found in Plane of Fear.

You say, "what are you mumbling about?"

Irak will explain that he was betrayed by a Corruptor of Thought and that he was stripped of his armor. You must return his breastplate, sword, and shield to him after cleansing them.

The Breastplate

The breastplate can be found off of the Thought Destroyer in Plane of Hate. This is a level 55 hag who spawn is triggered by randomly killing other creatures in Plane of Hate. The item is called the Tainted Dark Steel Breastplate. To cleanse this item you must complete a small sub-quest in Kaladim. Locate Jark in the mines. Hail him and say "some."

"Huh? Oh, I struck me some silver. Aint gonna make me rich but it'll sure pay for me minin costs. Speakin of, that wife o` mine was supposed ta bring me food already. Hey, you, wanna go get me my dinner? I aint got nothing ta pay ya with but I msure would appreciate it."

You say, "I will get you your dinner."

Jark says 'Har, I know you were a good sort. Nella has it. Shes out there somewhere in the lower areas. She likes to visit the temple so maybe shes there. Just tell er Jark sent ya and she'll prolly have everythin ready fer me.

Go to Nella Stonebraids in front of the temple next to the Pond of Crystal Water. Hail her and say "dinner."

Nella Stonebraids says 'Ach! I forgot me husbands dinner. Im so sorry. I was sendin my wishes ta Brell for health and long life. I was just floatin coins into the wishin pool. Usually its for children but things havent been so good lately. Here, please take this to him and tell him where I was.

Take the dinner that Nella gave you back to Jark. He will thank you and hand you the gem that he just dug up.

The Sword

The Sword is found off of Keeper of the Tombs, a level 51 creature in The Hole. The spawn time can be 7-10 days long so you will have to do a lot of waiting for this part unless you are lucky. The actual name of the sword is unknown but it should be something like Tainted Sword. The cleansing item for the sword is found from another tiny sub-quest. Find "Peasant Woman" in West Freeport. Hail her and say "I will carry your buckets." She gives you a bucket to take to her brother, Joshua, who is in the bakery. Give the bucket to Joshua and he will give you a bucket of pure water.

The Shield

The Shield is loot fro Kirak Vil, a level 55 guard in Nektulos. His spawn time is 7-10 days and takes many people to kill because he is absolutely resistant to all spells. You just need a lot of tanks and a lot of clerics. To cleanse this item, hand it to Elia the Pure in Felwithe and she will give you the Gleaming Crested Shield.

The End

Now take the Sword and the Pure Water and give them to Reklon Gnallen, a paladin on the patio of the paladin guild in Erudin. He will give you the Gleaming Crested Sword. Give him the breastplate and the gem and he will give you the Gleaming Breastplate. Now give Reklon the Gleaming Crested Shield, the Gleaming Crested Sword, and the Gleaming Breastplate and he will give you "Mark of Atonement." He will then say:

Reklon Gnallen says 'I never thought our order would see these artifacts again. With the return of these relics we can now put at ease a scar upon the history of our order. This cleansing will atone for his failure. Your soul must be pure to have given so freely of yourself. Go now, take this crested token of our order. If you wish to free his soul you must undertake another sacrifice.

You say, 'What sacrifice'

Reklon Gnallen says 'Only this crest and the sacrifice of something that symbolizes your strength and purity will release his spirit into the cleansing flames of our lady Quellious. Go now.'

The crest he speaks of is the Mark of Atonement he just gave you. The symbol of strength and purity is your Fiery Avenger. This is a whole separate quest that is recommended to be completed before you start this one.

Take the Mark of Atonement and Fiery Avenger to Irak in Plane of Fear. You will then receive the Fiery Defender.

RANGER EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Start

First go to Telin Darkforest (Level 55) in Burning Woods. He roams near to the Skyfire zone and has been sited at positive 3234 positive 2871. Ask him "what action" and he will give you a note. If he doesn't, then your faction is too low. Faction can be built up fast by doing the muffin-quest in Freeport.

Next, find Faelin Bloodbriar in Greater Faydark. Faelin spawns at +1500, +500. The placeholder is a roaming orc pawn that spawns at 6 minute intervals. The best tactic is to roam around. Once you do find her, give her the note and you receive a ring. After giving her the note she depops. Giz X'Tin (Level 40) is found in Kithicor near the path from West Commons to Highpass Hold. Give him the ring and he gives you a dark metal coin. Giz roams along the path. After you hand him the ring a level 50 Darkelf Reaver spawns and attacks you. Be prepared and have Spirit of the Wolf cast on you so that you can run away. Go back to Telin Darkforest and give him the Coin. He will give it back to you as worn metal coin. He tells you to find Athele. Find Athele in East Karanas. She can be found just north of the barbarian fishing village. Give her the worn metal coin and receive a worn amulet. Give this amulet to Sionae (spawns -2300, -930), then to Nuien (spawns -3650, -300) and finally to Teloa (spawns -3800, -2860). When you give the amulet to Teloa the Dark Elf Corruptor and two Darkelf Reavers (All around level 50) spawn. You should have one of your druid friends stand on the hill east of the river (loc -1500, -1000). He will depop after 10 seconds if not attacked so have the druid kite the Corruptor over to you. You needn't worry about the Reavers, they will head towards the four druids. Just kill the Corruptor and get the tome. The Reavers will probably just kill the druids which is fine because Athele will spawn in about one hour. Give Athele the tome and he gives you an earthstained Note. Bring this to Ella Foodcrafter. Ella Foodcrafter in Misty Thicket is this wanted women that wanders the zone. Give her the earthstained note and she will tell you that she needs a mixture. She will give you her mixing bowl. It is a Container so you need a free slot in the Inventory. She also mentions some kind of ancient bowl that she needs.

The Hardened Mixture

You must forage 4 items that you have to combine in Ella's mixing bowl. Chilled Tundra Root from Everfrost Peaks. Sweetened Mudroots from Misty Thicket. Speckled Moldy Mushrooms from Innothule Swamp. Heartfruit from Greater Faydark. Go to these places and put the "Forage" button into your hotkey, find a nice safe space and hit forage continuously. This can take several hours so be prepared. When you get the items, combine them in the bowl and you get a Hardened Mixture.

The Runed Bowl

Go to the Chess Island in Timorous Deep. The level 57 spell Succor will take you there, but it has been reported to drain your mana to about two bubbles to use cautiously. Once you get there, ask Alrik Farsight (location unknown) "How do you make an ancient bowl?". He gives you a crushed pot and sends you to Felwithe. Talk to Farios Elianos (location unknown) in Felwithe South. If he doesn't respond to you then your faction with Keepers of the Art is too low. You can build up faction fast with the batwing-quest in Felwithe South. If Farios talks to you, give him the pot and you receive a grocery list. He will give you the receipt for the bowl if you do a job for him. Bring this grocery list to Merchant Nora (Location Unknown) in Felwithe north and she gives you in return a bag of Provisions. Bring it to Farios and he gives you the receipt for the ancient bowl. Head back to Alrik Farsight in Timorous Deep . He will give you an ancient pattern when you give him the receipt. The pattern says that you have to combine it with a piece of enchanted clay and platinum speckled powder in a pottery wheel. NO skill in pottery required. Platinum speckled powder can be obtained through another sub quest. Forage a Rose of Firiona in Firiona Vie and give it to Merdan Fleetwood (Location also Unknown) in Surefall Glades. The old wooden painting that you receive has to be brought to the human skeleton (Level 40) that roams the western part of Frontier Mountains. It was said to have been sighted running from Burning Woods to the Dreadlands. He conned indifferently to this certain person. Head back with the silver chained locket you got from the skeleton to Surefall Glades and give it to Niera Farbreeze (Level 50). She hands you the platinum speckled powder. Enchanted clay can be obtained through Kinlo Strongarm in Kaladim's EverHot Forge. If you ask him "what mud" and "do it for me" he will tell you that he would like to have a colored axe for his service. He wants a Jade Reaver that can be found in the City of Mist off of a Black Reaver who is about level 52. Hand Kinlo the axe and you get the enchanted clay. I think that if you are KoS to the dwarves then you can do this part invisible. Just go to the Everhot Forge and hand Kinlo a Jade Reaver to get the clay. Now combine the pattern, clay and powder in any pottery wheel to make the Rune Crested Bowl.

The Stones

Go Back to Misty Thicket and hand Ella Foodcrafter the hardened mixture and the rune crested bowl. She will make for you a softly glowing stone from it. Ella tells you to find one such as yourself. For the Druids this means to seek out Foloal Stormforest (Location Unknown) in Firiona Vie. Ask her "are you one such as myself?", "what answers?" and "what about Venril Sathir?". She tells you to bring her the stone you already have from Ella and the gem that can be found on Venril Sathir. Kill Venril Sathir (-90, -777) in Karnor's Castle and loot the gem he drops. Venril is a very tough level 55. He is only killed my strong guilds because he is level 55, hits for 300 FAST, has a 1000+ life suck spell and has two personal clerics how heal him whenever they get hurt. This guy is extremely hard so you might want to be in a good group to do this part. Give the gem and the softly glowing stone to Foloal Stromforest and get a warm pulsating stone. Now this is the time where the quest splits up into the Druid and the Ranger parts. Foloal tells you to take the stone and walk your path. Apparently, this leads you back to Telin Darkforest in the Burning Woods. Give him the warm pulsating stone. In return he will give you An Ancient Sword.

The Hammers

Now head to The Hole which is a zone adjacent to Paineel. Find Jaeil the Wretched (level 50) and have enchanters mesmerize him. Also have a raid party in the room ready for battle. Go behind Jaeil and give him the Shiny Tin Bowl. He will scream at himself and then Jaeil the Insane will spawn. Now the raid party goes into action and kills Jaeil the Insane. Loots from Jaeil the Insane a Soulbound Hammer. Go to Erudin and find Mairee. She is in the jewelry shop, by the bank. Give her the Soulbound Hammer and in return she will give you the Dwarven Smiths Hammer. Now go to the Plane of Air and kill the Essence Tamer. He spawns on the fourth island and drops the Swirling Sphere of Color. Take the Dwarven Smiths Hammer and the Swirling Sphere of Color and give them to Mairee. In return, she will give you the Hammer of the Ancients. Go back to Kinlo Strongarm and give him the Hammer of the Ancients.

The Swords

This will cause (in a puff of smoke) Usbak the Old to spawn and he will give you Small Bit of Mithril Ore. Give Usbak the Old your Ancient Longsword and he will return to you the new and improved Refined Ancient Longsword. Hand the Mithril Ore to Kinlo to get the Refined Mithril Blade. Go back to the Burning Woods, to Telin and give him the Refined Ancient Sword. This causes Faelin Bloodbriar to spawn and Telin will give you back the Refined Ancient Sword. So, give the Refined Ancient Sword to Faelin and she will enchant it for you and return to you Swiftwind, the first epic weapon. At this point she despawns after saying some stuff about how you have to kill Innoruuk to rebalance the world. That is exactly what you are going to do. Go to the Plane of Hate and kill Innoruuk. His location is (-65, -196) and he spawns about once a week. He is a level 55 Wizard with approx. 32246 hitpoints. He is a green looking man wearing clothes. Loot the Shattered Emerald of Corruption.

The End

Take the Refined Mithril Blade and the Shattered Emerald of Corruption to Xanthuus the treant in North Karanas. In return he will give you the last epic weapon, the Earth Caller.

These faction issues were found on the Ranger FA Quest maintained by Crydee Ossiriand.

Plane of Growth
Although the Plane of Growth is not used for the quest, it does need special mentioning.

Telin Darkforest [Faydark's Champion]
Telin Darkforest is on Faydark's Champion faction. Any of the Kelethin Ranger quests will give you faction with him. You can also kill orcs in Crushbone.

Giz X`Tin [unknown]
He is mostly be on one of the Dark Elf Factions and will probably be less than indifferent to you. If this is the case, cast Spirit of Wolf on yourself [to be able to keep up with him] than sneak up behind him so that he will be indifferent to you and then give him the ring. If you give him the ring, while he /CONs dubious [or lower] to you, you will not get the coin to continue the quest.

Dark Elf Corruptor and Dark Reavers in East Karana [Dark Elf Warrior]
Killing them will not impact faction with the Neriak Guards. This faction will only be noteworthy to any Dark Elves [and to a lesser extent Trolls and Ogres] that may wish to assist you with killing these.

Alrik Farsight [Keepers of the Art]
To gain faction with Alrik Farsight, visit the Magician Guild in Felwithe [B] and give Niola Impholder Bat Wings until she is amiable to you. If your faction with Niola Impholder is so low that she doesn't give you faction when you turn them in, stand behind her and use sneak to make her indifferent to you.

Kinlo Strongarm & Usbak the Old [unknown]
If your faction with these dwarves is less than indifferent, you will need to stand behind them and use sneak in order to be able to deal with them.

ROGUE EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

NOTES

Getting Ragebringer Before Level 50

Generally speaking, the epic quests were designed to be done by characters who were level 50+; in almost all cases, you have to be level 46 or higher to do the quest at all, since for some quests, there are NODROP pieces that come from the Planes (and you have to be 46+ to even zone into the Planes). Some of the epics' NPCs will deal with you if you are below 50, but many will not -- according to one William Jackson, Stanos will scoff at you if you give him the torn parchment pieces before level 50. (I've had multiple people send this in.) Whether this is true of all the rogue epic mobs, I don't know, but it seems to be true of Stanos, and since you hand in the final three items to Stanos, he probably won't reward you with Ragebringer if you aren't level 50. But then, maybe he will... who's willing to try? :)

The Planes

The Plane of Hate is not connected to any other zone through normal means; you cannot zone into Hate the same way you zone from West Freeport to East Commonlands. There is only one way to get to the Plane of Hate: the level 46 wizard spell "Alter Plane: Hate". This spell teleports the wizard and his group to the port-in house in the Plane of Hate. Note that it uses up a reagant (a "Fulligrans Soulstone of Innoruuk") which cost 125pp each.

Also, note that you MUST BE LEVEL 46 OR HIGHER TO BE TELEPORTED INTO THE PLANE OF HATE! For this reason it is not recommended that you visit Hate until you are at least level 47, since if you lose your level and drop to 45 while you are in Hate, you may not be able to get back there to recover your corpse. You can get rezzed into Hate no matter what level you are, but a raid wipeout may take more than 3 hours to recover from, and if that happens, you're basically screwed.

Other Notes

Most NPCs in the quest will not speak to you if you are level 49 or below. You may still acquire some of the components for the quest, but wait on handing them in until you are level 50 or higher.

Some Abbreviations
N3G - Neriak Third Gate
PoH - Plane of Hate
PP - Pickpocket
QAS - Qeynos Aqueduct System (aka Qeynos Catacombs)
RB - Ragebringer
RotI - Robe of the Ishva
RotK - Robe of the Kedge
RotO - Robe of the Oracle
SH - Sneakhide (using Sneak and Hide together to move about undetected)
SMR - Shining Metallic Robe
Spawn Times

All spawn times are in REAL TIME, NOT GAME TIME. E.g., a spawn time of "1 day" means 1 regular real life Earth day, not one day in Norrath (which is 72 minutes in real life).

- INTRODUCTION -

The Rogue epic quest reward is a piercing weapon called Ragebringer:

Ragebringer has the following stats:

Item: Ragebringer
Type: Piercing
Damage/Delay: 15/25
Stats: +100 HP +20 STR +10 STA +10 AGI +10 DEX +20 MR +10 DR +20 PR
Special Attributes: MAGIC ITEM, LORE ITEM, NODROP
Slot(s): PRIMARY, SECONDARY
Weight: 2.5
Effect: Seething Fury - permanent 40% haste, +40 ATK, 9 AC
Size: SMALL
Class: ROG
Race: HUM BAR ELF DEF HEF DWF HFL GNM VAH

And it looks like this when held (it's the larger dagger in the Dark Elf's right hand):

To get Ragebringer, you must turn in the "Cazic Quill", the "Jagged Diamond Dagger", and the "General's Pouch" to Stanos Herkanor in Highpass Hold. Acquiring each of these three items requires a great deal of work (though not nearly so much as the other epic quests!).

- DETAILED STEPS -

1. Pickpocket the Stained Parchment Top
(North Kaladim - Founy Jestands)

Travel to the Dwarven city of Kaladim, and head into its northern section. There, locate Founy Jestands outside the bank and pickpocket the "Stained Parchment Bottom" from him.

Getting There

Kaladim is located on the north wall of the Butcherblock Mountains, which are located on the western end of the continent of Faydwer. A great statue of a dwarven king stands astride the city gates, which lead to South Kaladim. Once inside the city, head north through the entry gate, then turn left and head past some shop buildings. Stay to the right wall, and you will find a zone connection to North Kaladim. Once you zone in, head along the passage a short ways until you see the following room:

Founy should always be standing there unless he has recently been killed. (Even if he is trained to another part of the zone, he will walk back to his normal spot immediately.)

Pickpocketing the Parchment

Founy despawns and respawns every game day at 10 am game time. He does NOT always spawn with the "Stained Parchment Top", so you may have to wait, or come back for another visit later. The simplest way to get the parchment piece from him is to pickpocket it, so you should definitely max your pickpocket skill to 200 before attempting to steal the piece.

Killing Founy is another option, but he hits for around 140 and probably backstabs for a lot more -- additionally, many other dwarves in the area will aggro if you attack him, so it can be quite a task to kill him. You're probably better off just pickpocketing him. (If you are level 53 or higher, and he aggroes on you, you can activate one of your defensive disciplines, like Counterattack or Nimble, to defend yourself while you flee the short distance to the zone line.)

As Kaladim is full of dwarves, any players who are KOS in Kaladim will need to use SH to get to Founy. Once you are near him, stand behind him and pickpocket him until you are convinced he does not have the piece (how many attempts you make before you are "convinced" is up to you -- in my opinion, if he doesn't have it after 20 attempts, I'd give up and come back later), or until you pickpocket the piece from him.

It took me 2 trips to Kaladim to get the Stained Parchment Top from Founy. My pickpocket skill was 200 before I attempted to PP him, and he never aggroed on me.

Founy has other dialogue, but this is the only relevant bit:
You say, 'What note?'

Founy Jestands says 'I don't know what you're talking about, if you know what I mean.' Founy fingers his belt pouch. 'You should leave now, if you know what's good for you. Don't make me sic the crew on you.

2. Pickpocket the Stained Parchment Bottom
(Neriak Third Gate - Tani N`mar)

Travel to the Dark Elf city of Neriak, and head into its deepest region, the Third Gate. There, locate Tani N`mar at the rogue guild and pickpocket the "Stained Parchment Bottom" from him.

Getting There

Neriak is located in the very northeast corner of Nektulos Forest, itself north of East Commonlands on the east side of the continent of Antonica. Neriak is divided into three sub-zones: you must travel through the Neriak Foreign Quarter and then the Neriak Commons to reach the Neriak Third Gate. To get to the rogue guild, enter N3G and head past the cleric guild and pool of water, down to the main part of the city. Angle right as you go through the main gate, and you will see the rogue guild. Enter the rogue guild from the front door, turn right at the bottom of the entry stairs, and then turn right again and follow the path until you see Tani:

Dark Elves are somewhat less friendly than Dwarves, so unless you are yourself a Dark Elf, getting to Tani may be difficult. The easiest way is to get the "Mask of Deception" from the Ghoul Assassin in Lower Guk, which has a right-click effect of "Illusion: Dark Elf" and lets you pass as a Dark Elf in their home city. However, if you cannot acquire a Mask of Deception, or have ruined your faction with one of the Dark Elf factions to the point where you cannot pass through the city safely, you will need to use SH to make your way to Tani.

Tani respawns each game night at 8pm, and despawns/respawns repeatedly for the next few minutes. This is a bug; every time he respawns, there is another chance he has the parchment.

Pickpocketing the Parchment

Once you are there, simply pickpocket Tani (read the guidelines above in the Founy section for details) until you get the Stained Parchment Bottom. Again, it may take several trips, so stop by whenever you are in the area. It personally took me 4 trips to get the parchment.

Aside from pickpocketing him on his spawn point (which is how I did it), there are various other methods. Jereck of Quellious recommends having a friend create a level 1 Dark Elf necromancer, and using the necromancer's pet to pull Tani to the zoneline. Park the pet next to Tani, then have the necro go outside the building and tell his pet to attack Tani. Tani will destroy the pet instantly, and chase after the necro. The necro can then run to the zoneline where the rogue (in Dark Elf form) will be waiting. The necro lets Tani catch him and kill him, and then the rogue can keep hailing Tani to keep him in place while he tries to pickpocket him. I don't know whether this will cause any problems with Tani respawning/despawning, however, so use at your own risk.

Tani says a few things, but the relevant text is:
You say, 'What note?'

Tani N`Mar says 'Oh, you want that piece of paper Stanos was so hot after?' He taps his belt pouch. 'Well, it's mine now, though it looks like ogre scratch to me. You're not getting it, Stanos is not getting it, and Hanns is not getting it. It is MINE! Now, Soandso , scamper off like the dog you are, before I decide I need more practice with these short swords!'

3. Get the Book of Souls
(Plane of Hate)

Travel to the otherworldly Plane of Hate, and find the Book of Souls on the Maestro of Rancor's nightstand. Steal it, and return to Norrath.

Getting There

The Book of Souls is simply sitting on a table in the Plane of Hate. It has a spawn time of 10 hours, so if someone has recently, erm, "acquired" it, you may need to wait a while. Waiting while in the Plane of Hate is not really very safe, as there are a large number of wandering monsters that are very powerful and can even see through your SH ability. The safest way to get to the Book is to travel to Hate with a normal raid party, wait until the raid clears the Maestro's building and kills the Maestro (assuming he's up), and then run upstairs and go get the book. Just click on it to pick it up.

An excellent map of the ground floor of Hate can be found here. The Maestro's building is the large one in the upper left corner. On the right side of that building you can see a ramp leading up to a letter "A"; once you are on the second floor of the Maestro's building, the book is found in the southwest corner (the upper floor has essentially the same layout as the lower floor).

The book can be seen in the following picture, on the table on the right side:

This is the southwest corner of the second floor of the Maestro's building. The top picture is facing roughly southwest; the bottom one is facing due west.

4. Combine the Parchments
(Highpass Hold - Stanos Herkanor)

Travel to Highpass Hold, halfway between the cities of Freeport and Qeynos on the continent of Antonica, and locate Stanos Herkanor. Give him the "Stained Parchment Top" and "Stained Parchment Bottom", and he will give you the "Combined Parchment".

Getting There

Highpass Hold is accessible from Kithicor Forest in the east, and the Eastern Plains of Karana in the west. Roughly in the center of the zone is a hidden smuggler's camp; find your way to the Tiger's Roar inn and bar, and outside you will see this:

Circled in red is the location of the secret underwater passage (it's very short, there's no breathing problems) to the smuggler's camp. Swim through it, and follow the path, and you will come to the following area:

On the left is the path leading back to the underwater area, and to the right is the small cavern where Stanos is located.

Spawning Stanos

However, it's not that simple. Normally, Stanos never spawns -- you must deal with Anson McBale to get him to spawn. Anson is located in the same room that Stanos spawns in:

But again, it's not that simple. Anson himself is not always up: he has a placeholder, confusingly enough called "a smuggler", just like all the other "a smuggler" NPCs in the camp (there are around a dozen). Anson's placeholder will be standing exactly where Anson is in that picture, and the placeholder smuggler will con blue to anyone around level 50. The other smuggler, standing behind him, will con green (you can see this irrelevant smuggler in the picture above).

A level 60 warrior with epic weapons and gear from the Temple of Veeshan was not able to solo Anson's placeholder, though a 60 warrior and a 51 rogue can kill him fairly easily, or even a solo 60 magician, epic or not. The simplest method is to have the warrior pull the placeholder (the placeholder will virtually always come solo to a 60 puller) into the yard outside Anson's room, and run across the yard to the ramp that leads up to a ledge overlooking High Keep. The placeholder CAN get stuck in pathing in the yard, so make sure he follows you all the way across. Once he does, jump down off the ledge, run to the High Keep entrance, and wait. The smuggler will eventually path to there, and you can fight him and kill him. The High Keep guards will not assist the smuggler, nor will they assist you, so it's a straight fight. (If your faction with High Keep guards is bad, however, they may attack you on general principle, so you'll need to pull the smuggler to somewhere else. Keep in mind that there are other blue smugglers in the area, and fighting them all can be difficult, not to mention the fact that you lose faction with Anson for killing them! This is the reason you want a level 60 to pull the smuggler; if you aggro all the blue smugglers, you have to fight all of them. You could bring an enchanter, too...) The Anson spawn has an 18 minute spawn time, and you may need to kill the smuggler multiple times to get Anson to spawn.

Once you have Anson spawned, there are two ways to get Stanos to spawn.

Method One

The first method is to walk up to Anson and have the following short conversation:
You say, 'I need to see Stanos'

Anson McBale says 'This better be important.

This will cause Stanos to spawn immedately. I don't know what the minimum faction is for this to work, but I do know that if you are indifferent or better to Anson, Stanos will spawn. Anson, Stanos, and all the other smugglers are on the CarsonMcCabe faction, and the easiest way to raise that faction is to kill the orcs and gnolls that live in Highpass, and turn in their scalps to Captain Ashlan and Captain Orben, respectively. You can also kill the pickclaw goblins that live in High Keep's basement, and turn in their left ears (4 at a time, I believe) to Captan Bosec in High Keep.

Chaid of Drinal says that, as an agnostic Dwarven rogue, he was able to use the above phrase to spawn Stanos when Anson conned DUBIOUS to Chaid. Assuming that anyone who is not KOS to Anson can spawn Stanos this way, there is no reason to do Method Two, outlined below.

Method Two

The second method to get Stanos to spawn can be done if you are interested in seeing an unnecessary (but interesting, plot-wise) part of the quest. Travel to the Qeynos Aqueduct System beneath the city of Qeynos, and find Malka Rale. She will give you "Stanos's Pouch", which you can then give to Anson, causing Stanos to spawn. BE CAREFUL DOING THIS! If you are standing on Stanos's spawn point when you give the pouch to Anson, Stanos will not spawn, so you should stand behind Anson, preferably on the table in the corner, when you hand him the pouch.

To get to Malka Rale's room, enter the QAS from the secret entrance outside the gates of Qeynos. Once you zone into the QAS, follow the path shown on the map below:

The gray sections of the map lead off to other, irrelevant areas.

Malka's room looks like this:

In the left picture above, we see the room where Malka spawns. Highlighted is her placeholder,

"a courier". DO NOT KILL THE COURIER! He will despawn around 9pm game time, and Malka will spawn at 10pm game time, every game day (Malka despawns around 7am). Once Malka spawns, have the following conversation:
You say, 'Hail, Malka Rale'

Malka Rale says 'Whew! I thought you were one of Hanns' goons. These sewers are a mess, you never know what is going to turn up next. I really wish I could get out of here.

You say, 'I will help'

Malka Rale says 'Ok! I am trusting you. Take this pouch to Vilnius in West Karana. Last word I had from him, he was hanging out near one of the bandit camps. Be careful, since he does not know you. Just give him the pouch, and tell him I was.. delayed. <grin> While you are doing that, I will be thinking of a way to get out of this slimehole. With any luck, the Circle will learn the pouch is out of Qeynos, and will assume I got away. That means they won't be looking for me here.

Malka then gives you an item called "Stanos' Pouch", which can be placed inside of other containers (i.e. it is not itself a container). It appears to have a right-click effect of "Summon: Throwing Daggers", but it has 0 charges and cannot be recharged.

Give this pouch to Anson McBale to make Stanos spawn. BE CAREFUL DOING THIS! If you are standing on Stanos' spawn point when you hand in the pouch, Stanos will immediately despawn! You should stand on the table behind Anson when you give him Stanos' Pouch.

Talking to Stanos

In either event, once Stanos spawns, you can have the following conversation:

You say, 'Hail, Stanos Herkanor'

Stanos Herkanor says 'Ah, the pouch. This is the first step Anson. The Circle has to be upset having this taken right out from under them. That speaks well of the person who did the taking. Hanns must be even more furious now <chuckle>.

Anson McBale says 'Vilnius has always had a good eye for talent. I think we can trust this one.

Stanos Herkanor says 'I tend to agree Anson. We could make a deal. I have a blade I won't use anymore, and you have those fine looking daggers Vilnius gave you. Of course, you would have to do something for me first. Let me tell you my story, then you decide.

You say, 'Tell me your story'

Stanos Herkanor says 'Johann Krieghor was the leader of the Circle and I was his second-in-command. He made a dark bargain with a Teir'dal General. The Circle was to assassinate Joren, the high elf ambassador to Qeynos. Had the plot worked, it would have weakened the alliance between high elves and humans, and possibly caused a war between the two powers. In either case, the Teir'Dal would have profited greatly by this event, and all others would have suffered. I could not stand by and let this happen, but Johann would not be deterred, for the Teir'Dal had promised him much. I had no choice but to kill Johann and the Teir'Dal agent. I made it look like they offed each other, and then I hid the tools.

You say, 'What tools?'

Stanos Herkanor says 'To allow the assassin to slay a prince, and fight his way back out, a fell blade was crafted. It was small enough to conceal under a garment and yet large enough to strike a mortal blow through armor. Aided by vile Teir'Dal enchantments, it is much more fearsome than it appears. I would glady rid myself of it, but I fear I can not until I clear my name with Hanns.

You say, 'I will clear your name'

Stanos Herkanor says 'I need proof that what I say about Johann is truth, so that Hanns may forgive me. YOU can gather that proof for me. First, travel to Kaladim and Neriak, and there, upon the persons of the rogue guildmasters, you should find that which I seek, two parts of a document I recovered from the dead agent. I entrusted one to Founy, but that trust is gone, and Founy would betray me to Hanns were I to attempt to reclaim it. Tani N'mar has the other, which he should not possess, and keeps it only to spite me, not knowing its real import. Steal them both, and bring them back to me. And don't let anyone follow you! If I am not around, tell Anson you want to see me.
Combining the Parchment

Lest we forget why you have to do all this in the first place, the point of coming to HHP is to give Stanos the two parchment pieces you pickpocketed off the rogue trainers in steps 1 and 2. Simply give Stanos the "Stained Parchment Top" and the "Stained Parchment Bottom" at the same time:
Stanos Herkanor says 'Excellent! With this document I can..' <He pauses for a moment>.
'Damnation! Curse my tired old mind, I forgot that I could not read the document. It is written in some obscure code or language. I can't decipher it, but I know someone who can. Seek out one called Eldreth, an Erudite who used to do work for me. I know not where he may be found these days, only that he will not be found in Erudin, as they want his head for some misdeed in the past. Give him the complete parchment, and tell him I sent you. He owes me.

Your faction standing with HighpassGuards got better.
Your faction standing with CarsonMcCabe got better.
Your faction standing with MerchantsofHighpass got better.
Your faction standing with CorruptQeynosGuards got better.
Your faction standing with TheFreeportMilitia got better.

You gain party experience!!

In return, you receive faction hits, experience, and the "Combined Parchment".

5. Begin the Translation
(Lake Rathetear - Eldreth)

Travel to Lake Rathetear, and find Eldreth in the tower on the northeast island of the lake. Give him the "Combined Parchment", plus 100pp and two unstacked bottles of milk for payment so that he will translate it.

Getting There

Lake Rathetear is located south of the Southern Plains of Karana, and west of Rathe Mountains. Once you are in the zone, head to the northeast island which is located approximately at (+2600, -500). On the island is a large tower, inside of which you will find Eldreth:

Beginning the Translation

Talk to Eldreth, and you will have the following conversation:
You say, 'Hail, Eldreth'

Eldreth says 'Go away! I'm busy! I don't have time for scoundrels like you! Leave me alone or I shall, um..turn you into, er, a fish or something! That is what us powerful wizards do to those who annoy us! Yes, that is it. A fish! <leans towards you, looking abashed> Did that sound scary enough?

You say, 'That was scary'

Eldreth says 'Ha! I knew it. I could see you trembling! Everyone fears an angry wizard and nobody wants to be a fish. I know I detest fish, it is always fish fish fish around here. Fish cakes, fish stew, fish wine, I am sick of fish. But alas, while I am a powerful wizard, I am also a poor one. Oh well, good things come to those who wait. So, why are you here, Soandso ?

You say, 'Stanos sent me'

Eldreth says 'Stanos? Stanos Herkanor? I thought he was long dead. He nearly got me killed, in any case. What does the old fool want of me now?

You say, 'He wants you to translate this parchment.'

Eldreth says 'Ah, codes are my specialty! It's what I did for the Circle before Hanns took over. But the Fox is wrong. I owe him nothing! As a fact, he owes me! He wants this translated - he will have to pay!

You say, 'I will pay you.'

Eldreth says 'Aye, pay, and pay you must. I need 100 platinum pieces to begin my work. This tower is old and drafty and it will take that much to make it bearable. And while you're at it, I need something else. I am very busy here and have no time to shop, so bring me back a couple bottles of milk along with your very large bag of platinum, and I will translate anything you wish at that time.

Give him the "Combined Parchment", 100 platinum pieces, and 2 bottles of milk. (Do NOT stack the bottles of milk together; make sure they are SEPARATE when you hand them in. It is not known whether this matters, but no one has volunteered to test it so far.) Eldreth says the following:
Eldreth looks at you, obviously expecting more. Did you forget the milk?
Eldreth looks at you, obviously expecting more. Did you forget the milk?
Eldreth looks at you, obviously expecting more. Did you forget the milk?

Eldreth says 'Hmm, interesting. This document is not only encoded, but written in a very obscure language. From what I can gather, it's a variant of elder Teir'dal, but not one I've encountered. I can not fully translate this, but I know one who can. Find Yendar and give him this

Your faction standing with OrderofThree got better.
Your faction standing with BloodSabers got worse.
Your faction standing with GuardsofQeynos got better.
Your faction standing with OpalDarkBriar got worse.

You gain experience!!

In return, you receive faction hits, experience, and the "Scribbled Parchment".

6. Continue Translating
(Steamfont Mountains - Yendar Starpyre)

Travel to the Steamfont Mountains on Faydwer, and find Yendar Starpyre roaming the zone. Give him the "Scribbled Parchment" to translate.

Getting There

The Steamfont Mountains are accessible from Lesser Faydark in the west, and lead to the gnomish city of Ak'anon at the south end of the zone. Druids of an appropriate level may also teleport to Steamfont.

Yendar roams the zone, though his usual path seems to be from the entrance to the minotaur caves in the northeast, southwest past the windmills, and all the way down toward the druid portal ring.

If Yendar is not up, you can go to Tobon Starpyre (pictured above right) in the Library Mechanimagica (AKA the mage/wizard/enchanter guild) in Ak'anon and say to him, "Who is Yendar?" This will cause Yendar to spawn out in Steamfont, however reports vary on whether or not you can do this immediately after Yendar despawns or if you have to wait a while, or whether it actually works at all (no one has yet verified it). Tobon replies:
You say, 'Who is Yendar?'

Tobon Starpyre says 'Oh, he is my older brother. Used to be the leader of the Eldritch Collective. Then he founded the Observers, a pretty good piece of work. Went off his rocker a long while back, though. Became obsessed with Innoruuk and the Teir'dal. Stays away for days at a time, nobody knows where he has been. Mother still worries about him, asked me to keep an eye on him. But he is a grown gnome, and with his mastery of the art, has little to fear in this world or others. But if you are seeking him, I would look outside Ak'Anon, in the Steamfonts. That is where he makes his home these days.

Dealing with Yendar

Yendar will not stop walking when you hail him; you have to mention the document for him to stop walking. He'll start walking again after a little while, so if you want to keep him in one place, keep asking him about the document:
You say, 'Hail, Yendar Starpyre'

Yendar Starpyre says 'Hail, traveler! I sense you did not simply chance upon my isolation here, but are instead seeking me for something.

You say, 'Can you translate this document?'

Yendar Starpyre says 'Oh, if it is written in Elder Teir'Dal, most likely I can translate it. I will be happy to try, in any case. Let me see it, please.

Now give him the "Scribbled Parchment":
Yendar Starpyre says 'I say, this is indeed a challenge. This is written in what I'm sure is the language of the High Priesthood of Innoruuk. I've often wished I could read this, but I have never had the key to unlock the language. Take this for now.

You gain party experience!!

Yendar gives you "Tattered Parchment":

Continue conversing with Yendar:
You say, 'What key?'

Yendar Starpyre says 'In the Plane of Hate, where dwell Innoruuk and his minions, there is a tome. This tome is called the Book of Souls.

You say, 'What is the Book of Souls?'

Yendar Starpyre says 'The Book of Souls chronicles all the lives Innoruuk has tainted over the years. It is in the care of the Maestro of Rancor. I can use this tome as a basis for my translation, if you return it and the note to me. An experienced practitioner in the art of non-detection should be able to snatch it from its resting place, don't you think, Soandso ? <grin>

Refer to step 3 above for information on acquiring the Book of Souls.

7. Kill Renux Herkanor
(Steamfont Mountains - Yendar Starpyre and Renux Herkanor)

Give the "Tattered Parchment" and "Book of Souls" to Yendar Starpyre in Steamfont Mountains.

He will translate the parchment, but it will immediately be stolen from him by Renux Herkanor. Kill her and take the parchment.

Getting There

See section 6 above for information on finding Yendar.

The Final Translation

Give the "Tattered Parchment" and "Book of Souls" to Yendar. He will say:
Yendar Starpyre says 'My, this is quite a large list! Yes, I can use the names and dates recorded here to help me understand the script. It should be a simple matter now. A moment, please. Aha, yes, there we go. Traslated as best I can! I do hope you're not involved in what is described here, as it is quite fiendish. Oi! You, woman! Give that back! Soandso , that woman there took your letter! I think I should leave you to discuss it with her. Best of luck!

At this point, a human female named Renux Herkanor will be standing very nearby. You need to kill Renux.

This is not a simple matter; Renux is a level 50 rogue who wields a weapon called Trochilic's Skean. It is a 1HS sword that procs Clockwork Poison, a stun/DoT that is very deadly. There are two ways to kill Renux:
Bring 25 people and mob her. She'll die relatively easily, but you may take a few casualties.
Bring a group consisting of yourself (the rogue), a druid, an enchanter, a warrior, a cleric, and another person (preferably another rogue). The druid will snare Renux, and kite her in large circles around the zone. The druid should KEEP snaring her, to make sure that Renux's aggro stays on the druid (whom she cannot reach) instead of on the others. The enchanter should Tash Renux, the rogues and warriors should beat her down, the cleric should keep everyone alive (in case Renux does get off a few hits), and the druid should... well... keep snaring and DoTing Renux. Renux appears to have somewhere upwards of 20,000 hit points, so she can take several minutes to kill with this method, but as long as you all start at full mana, you should be fine.

There are certainly other methods of killing her, but these are relatively simple. I know of one rogue who did this step with only himself (52 rogue), a 58 enchanter, and a 60 ranger. The enchanter chain-tashed Renux while the ranger snared her; then the ranger and rogue beat Renux to death while she chased the enchanter (the Tashan line of spells have a pretty large amount of aggro, and cast very quickly). I've even heard of Renux being killed by one druid and one rogue!

Renux gives the following faction hits: -CircleOfUnseenHands, -CorruptQeynosGuards, -KaneBayle, +MerchantsofQeynos, +GuardsofQeynos. Once Renux is killed, she says:
Renux Herkanor says '<gasp> Tell Hanns I tried, and will love him always. Tell Father I will save a seat in Hell for him!

This means, in case you care, that Renux is Stanos's daughter. (Interestingly, Renux can also be found at the rogue guild in Qeynos, along with the aforementioned Hanns. It's been suggested that the Renux in Qeynos despawns when she spawns in Steamfont, but no one has confirmed this yet.)

Loot the "Translated Parchment" from Renux's corpse:

The Translated Parchment is a book that can be opened and read:

The text of the book is as follows:
T'kar:

We are ready for you to move into the next phase of the plan.

I have read your thoughts on the x'kanta Johann, and his chosen tool, Stanos. Johann is a willing pawn, and will serve us well, for greed is yet another facet of Innoruuk's power.

Stanos should also work out well, he is quite formidable, though I understand he does not yet know he has been chosen to actually carry out the task. Watch him well when the time comes, but I agree with your judgment.

Joren will be in Qeynos the entire month, so you have ample time to s'ktkar your task. Enclosed are the tools you will give to the Human x'kanta.

The blade is a gift from Innoruuk himself, forged in his temple and imbued with rage. Be sure to recover it after the mission is complete, it is much too powerful to leave in the hands of those we intend to il'kaash in the future. Combined with Stanos' skill, Joren and his guards should fall easily.

The Guise has been handcrafted my our Master Coercer and should allow the wearer to pass undetected as Koada'dal, thus allowing the assassin to gain entry into the Ambassador's quarters. Luckily, it shall be a human transforming himself into that zm'rina form.

Be sure to eliminate all the human x'kanda you have recruited, and have no fear of the repercussions, for the Circle of Unseen Hands is no threat to us here in Neriak.

I have spoken with your master Tani N'mar and he assures me that his group of x'kantar will aid us if need be.

GENERAL RALD VGHERA

Notes:
The text above is a character-for-character copy of the words in the screenshots.
The italicized words are presumably Tier'dal (Dark Elf) language words that Yendar was not able to translate. Note that your language skill is irrelevant when it comes to reading this document.
The word "my" in paragraph 6 is a typo and probably was supposed to be "by".
Renux will also drop a piercing weapon called the "Jagged Diamond Dagger," which you should also loot -- it's one of the items you will need to turn in to Stanos in order to get Ragebringer!
Renux also drops two pieces of Ravenscale armor (if you're lucky, she'll drop the RS Mask, which has a permanent effect of See Invisible -- very useful) and, as mentioned before, Trochilic's Skean. The Skean is a good weapon, but it is NODROP -- personally, I let one of my party members (the warrior) have it, to thank her for helping.

The Jagged Diamond Dagger has the following stats:

Item: Jagged Diamond Dagger

8. Return to Stanos
(Highpass Hold - Stanos Herkanor)

Return to Highpass Hold, and give the "Translated Parchment" to Stanos Herkanor.

Getting There and Spawning Stanos

See section 4 above for information on reaching, and spawning, Stanos Herkanor.

Give Stanos the Parchment

Give the "Translated Parchment" to Stanos. He says:
Stanos Herkanor says 'Let me see what you have here. Aha, so that's who.. yes, yes! There is one more thing I need you to do. This document tells me who the originator of the plot really was. His name is General V'ghera, which is interesting, as Anson's men have spotted him in Kithicor recently. He will not be easy to get to, but if you give this box to one of his many aides, the General will HAVE to come to investigate. You see, this box used to contain the tools crafted for the assassination. When he arrives, kill him! I need any documents you find on him - with luck it will be enough evidence to convince Hanns that what I say is true. Bring any documents or dispatch cases you find, along with those blades Vilnius made you work so hard for, and we will make a trade.

Stanos then gives you the "Sealed Box":

9. Kill General V`ghera
(Kithicor Forest - General V`ghera and his aides)

Travel to Kithicor Forest. Find the house full of evil Dark Elves, and give one of them the "Sealed Box". General V`ghera will spawn. Kill him and take his pouch.

Getting There

Kithicor Forest is directly adjacent to Highpass Hold. It is also west of West Commonlands, and south of the halfling city of Rivervale. The house full of Dark Elves is located on the east side of a small hill, at coordinates (+800, +2400).

The house, looking through the front door. Outside you can see some low-level ghouls and skeletons guarding the place. This shot was taking during the day. At night, there are also higher-level undead (35+) guarding the house.

Note that the mobs named "Tasi V`ghera" and "Ioltos V`ghera" are NOT GENERAL V`GHERA! They merely have the same surname -- probably his siblings or cousins or something.

Spawning the General

The Dark Elves in the house are KOS to everyone. They are also all level 55+, and are highly dangerous. If you give the "Sealed Box" to any of them, General V`ghera will immediately spawn inside the house (and he will probably kill you). General V`ghera is a level 63 shadow knight, casts several dangerous spells, hits for over 200 damage, and has a 500 damage lifetap proc, as well as a huge harmtouch. He also has around 32,000 hit points.

As a result, the best way to kill him is to, before spawning him, first clear out most of the house so that there is only one DE left. A pair of level 60 rangers are best for this, since they can manage to pull, one at a time, the inhabitants of the house. BE SURE they leave ONE of the Dark Elves behind, otherwise you will not be able to turn in your Sealed Box to spawn the General! There is debate over whether Coercer Q`ioul or Brigadier G`tav is the best choice, but Mizchif of Fennin Ro pointed out the following (copied from a post on The Safehouse):
The one major disagreement I have with that guide, having watched it both ways in the last two weeks, is that I agree with the poster above that you're far better off to leave the Brigadier as the last named DE in the cabin, NOT the Coercer.

(1) From where the Brigadier stands, you'll be out of the General's line of sight when he spawns and hence will have time to re-hide.

(2) If you leave the Coercer up, you have to pull her out of the cabin to do the turn-in, or the General WILL see you when he spawns and you're dead for a fight you'd much rather be present at. The debuff pull/wait for her to rebuff on the way back routine is just way too cute and complicated, IMHO

(3) Plus there's the risk of aggro from the Coercer turning to buff her pet at the wrong moment, or the pet aggroing on you

(4) Plus, as pointed out above, you will want to kill the Coercer for her robe drops, and it's bad manners to not leave at least one named DE up in case someone else is doing a raid within the next 8 hours

(5) Plus the Coercer is an easier kill than the Brigadier (chanter vs warrior)

(6) Plus the Coercer will buff the General if she gets the chance, while the Brigadier doesn't buff. I agree with everything there EXCEPT point 4: When we did my General raid, the Brigadier himself dropped a Kedge robe when he was killed, and the Coercer did not. Most raids will probably kill off the final DE once the last rogue has gotten his General's Pouch, so for the purpose of getting the robe, it doesn't matter which one you save for last. However, the safety and reliability issues for using Brigadier G`tav vs. using the Coercer are all valid, and as such, the Brigadier is probably a better choice.

You will need a force of around 30 people to kill the General safely. It should be a good mix of tanks, nukers, healers, etc. This force should begin assembling at the Highpass Hold zone border area (in Kithicor) at around midnight game time. The reason for this is so that by the time it is 8 am in game, all of the wandering undead in Kithicor will have despawned, and your rangers will be able to start individually pulling the Dark Elves from the house, to your waiting raid party, who will dispatch them. The rangers, if they are high enough level, can actually start doing this before the undead despawn, since they can simply bring the undead with them (none of the wandering undead in Kithicor are particularly powerful, and are no threat to a large party of level 50+ people).

Once the DE house is cleared (EXCEPT for Brigadier G`tav, or whichever DE you choose to leave behind), everyone in the party should move to the road north of the DE house, at approximately +1100, +2600. Be sure that they do not run near the DE house on their way there. The party should then buff up and get ready to fight.

(From this point, I will refer to the Brigadier as the last DE, even though you may use someone else.)

At this point, only Brigadier G`tav should be inside the house. The rogue who has the Sealed Box should sneakhide, move into the house, stand BEHIND the Brigadier, and give him the box. Due to the Brigadier's positioning, and where General V`ghera spawns (he always spawns IN the house, regardless of the location of the Dark Elf you hand the box to), the rogue SHOULD have time to re-hide before the General notices him. At this point, the waiting ranger can solo-pull the General over to the raid party, while the rogue sneaks away from the house, and goes to join the party.

WARNING: If any roaming mobs aggro you while you are attempting to hand in the Sealed Box to the Coercer or Brigadier or whoever, you may very well lose it -- if you hand an item to an aggroed mob, it will poof. So make sure there are no mobs nearby (use F9 if necessary) when handing in the box.

Once the General is dead, loot the "General's Pouch" off his corpse. This pouch, like Stanos' Pouch, is NOT a container, so you may put it safely inside a backpack. The General will RARELY also drop the "Cazic Quill". If he does, congratulations! You are DONE WITH THE QUEST -- you should now have the General's Pouch, the Cazic Quill, and the Jagged Diamond Dagger to give to Stanos (see step 10, below). However the reported drop rate for the Quill is roughly 1 in 10, so don't expect him to drop it very often. (If he does not drop the Quill, refer to the "Cazic Quill Subquest" section below for details on the alternate method of obtaining the Quill.)

A common practice is for several rogues to have a "General party", which basically means that they all turn in their Sealed Boxes one at a time, causing multiple General V`gheras to spawn. Once the first general is dead, the next rogue moves to the house again, hands in HIS box to Brigadier G`tav, the ranger pulls V`ghera again, and you kill him again. Repeat this process until all rogues present have their Pouches. (Note that if you take a long while, the nightly undead may start spawning, so your group will have to keep an eye on them -- a common practice is to have the enchanters keep the undead mezzed during the General fight, so that the undead can be picked off afterward.)

If the Brigadier aggroes on someone, you will not be able to give him the Sealed Box until he loses aggro. The usual method is to have an enchanter charm him so that he is aggroed on nobody except the enchanter, and then to mez and mem blur him over and over until it takes, and he forgets what he's doing. If you kill him, then no other rogues get to turn in their boxes until the Dark Elves start respawning (8 or 24 hours, depending on who you believe)! However once all the rogues are done with their boxes, you may freely kill him, for there is a chance that the Brigadier will drop the Robe of the Kedge (see the "Cazic Quill" subquest, summarized at top and detailed below)!

10. Ragebringer
(Highpass Hold - Stanos Herkanor)

Give "General's Pouch", "Jagged Diamond Dagger", and "Cazic Quill" to Stanos Herkanor in Highpass Hold. In return, Stanos will give you the Rogue Epic Weapon - Ragebringer.

Getting There and Spawning Stanos

See section 4 above for information on reaching, and spawning, Stanos Herkanor.

Give Stanos the Items

Give the "General's Pouch", "Jagged Diamond Dagger", and "Cazic Quill" to Stanos. He says:
Stanos Herkanor says 'Did you forget something?

Stanos Herkanor says 'Did you forget something?

Stanos Herkanor says 'Very well done. I leave now to confront Hanns with this evidence. Even so, it will not be easy to regain his trust. That is why I need those daggers, in case all else fails.<chuckle> Bristlebane grant me luck - I can no longer live like a hunted dog. In any case, I am grateful for your aid. Take this wretched blade, I can bear it no longer. I must warn you, I feel it carries Innoruuk's curse; all who are near it learn the meaning of hate. <chuckle> Ironic, isn't it? You went to all that work to redeem yourself for a rapier, yet the true reward came when you redeemed another. <chuckle>. Good luck, Soandso , for much as I, you will need it.

And he gives you Ragebringer. Ironically, in his last speech, he refers to the Burning Rapier quest, which you would have to do in order to complete your epic... IF they hadn't horribly gimped the epic quest! (See "Why The Quest Is Gimpy" below for details.)

Well, that's it. That's Ragebringer.

- CAZIC QUILL SUB-QUEST -

If, as described in step 9 above, General V`ghera does not drop the Cazic Quill, then you will need to do a separate sub-quest to acquire the Cazic Quill.

In the Western Plains of Karana there is (sometimes) a Barbarian named Vilnius the Small. If you give him the "Robe of the Kedge", the "Robe of the Ishva", the "Robe of the Oracle", and the "Shining Metallic Robes", he will give you the "Cazic Quill".

1. Get the Robe of the Oracle
(Oracle of K'Arnon - Ocean of Tears)

Kill the Oracle of K'Arnon in the Ocean of Tears, and loot the Robe of the Oracle off his body; or, purchase the RotO from another player.

Getting There

The Ocean of Tears is only accessible by either taking the boat from East Freeport, or the Butcherblock Mountains. The Freeport boat passes right by where the Oracle stands, so it's much easier to start from that side of the ocean. The Oracle is standing on the north side of the goblin island in the Ocean of Tears, and he is located at approximate coordinates (-500, -8800). If you go to the dock on the Sisters Island, the Oracle's island is visible across the channel (the location of the Oracle is circled in red):

The K'Arnons, standing together:

Individual shots:

Kill the Oracle

The Oracle is a level 40 wizard, who is guarded by the Guardian of K'Arnon, a level 40 (paladin? warrior?). Any 50+ group will not have any problem killing the Oracle; I myself did it with one 51 rogue (me), one 58 enchanter, and the 60 druid that the enchanter was botting. The enchanter mezzed the Guardian, then chain-stunned the Oracle while the druid nuked and dotted, and I backstabbed. As soon as I'd looted the Robe of the Oracle from the Oracle's corpse, the druid ported us out.

The other method to get a Robe of the Oracle is to buy one from another player. The Robe usually sells for under 1,000 platinum. Killing the Oracle is so trivial that it's usually not worth spending the time and money trying to find someone who is selling a RotO.

2. Get the Shining Metallic Robes
(Ghoul Arch Magus - Lower Guk)

Kill the Ghoul Arch Magus in Lower Guk, and loot the Shining Metallic Robes off his body; or, purchase the SMR from another player.

Getting There

The Ghoul Arch Magus lives in Lower Guk, which is only accessible from Upper Guk, which itself is only accessible from Innothule Swamp, south of the Deserts of Ro and east of the Feerrott. The GAM himself is in the north wing of the "dead side" of Lower Guk. As his location is well-known and usually camped, I won't bother with a map. There are plenty of other sources for that (say, EQ Atlas).

This is the room the GAM spawns in. The GAM is the rear spawn, near the back of the room.

Getting the Robe

The GAM is an uncommon spawn, and he drops the SMR as his rare drop, so it may take several hours of camping to get an SMR. Take a full group down there, and kill your way to his room. Camp in or near his room until he drops your SMR. The GAM himself is a wizard, and casts some dangerous spells, but he is not particularly difficult to kill.

The other method to get Shining Metallic Robes is to buy one from another player. The SMR's price varies widely from server to server; EQ Prices says that the SMR's average price is around 3,800pp, although I've heard price ranges from 1,000pp to 10,000pp. This is, in general, a much simpler method than trying to get the robe yourself.

3. Get the Robe of the Ishva
(Ishva Mal - Splitpaw Lair, or Coercer Q`ioul - Kithicor Forest)

Kill the Ishva Mal in Splitpaw Lair, and loot the Robe of the Ishva off his body; or, kill Coercer Q`ioul in Kithicor forest, and loot the Robe of the Ishva off her body; or, buy the RotI from another player.

The Ishva Mal Method

Getting There

Splitpaw Lair is located roughly in the center of the Southern Plains of Karana. The Ishva Mal's room is inside Splitpaw, through an underwater passage partway through the dungeon:

The pool of water on the map above is seen in the picture below:

The underwater passage entrance is highlighted by the red circle. You have to go straight down into the water a little ways to enter the passage.

Go through the passage, then swim upward and you'll be in a small cave. A passage to the north leads to a few small storage rooms; the room way in the back corner is the Ishva Mal's room:

In the left picture, you can see two gnolls. The one circled in red is the placeholder for the Ishva Mal, shown at right.

Killing the Ishva Mal

The Ishva Mal is a level 45 caster (not sure what kind), but he's pretty easy to kill. I did it with the same group of 51 rogue, 58 enchanter, and botted 60 druid, with no problems whatsoever. He is an uncommon to rare spawn, and drops the Robe of the Ishva fairly often (as far as I know -- I got my robe on his first kill). Not a big deal.

Since gnolls don't have robe textures, it's not possible to tell whether the Ishva Mal has the robe or not without killing him.

The Coercer Method

Getting There

See "Getting There" in the main quest step 9, above.

Killing the Coercer

If your goal is to kill only the coercer, then your best bet is to find a 60 ranger who knows how to solo-pull her. Set up a well-balanced party of 6-12 people at the Rivervale zone line in Kithicor during the game day (8am - 7pm game time), and have the 60 ranger pull the Coercer solo to your group. MAKE SURE you dispel her repeatedly, otherwise she will be hasted and buffed and will be harder to kill. Then, kill her, and she will always drop the Robe of the Ishva. Sometimes, too, she will drop the Robe of the Kedge (see below).

Apparently, if she appears to be wearing a green robe, then she has only the Robe of the Kedge in her possession. If she appears to be wearing a blue robe, then she definitely has the Robe of the Ishva, and MAY also have the Robe of the Kedge. As a result, kill her as often as possible. She has a spawn time of 1 real-time day, along with all the other Dark Elves in the house.

Instead of going to Splitpaw or Kithicor, of course, you can simply buy a Robe of the Ishva from another player. I don't know how much they sell for but it isn't a huge amount.

4. Get the Robe of the Kedge
(Phinigel Autropos - Kedge Keep, or Dark Elves - Kithicor Forest)

Kill Phinigel Autropos in Kedge Keep, and loot the Robe of the Kedge off his body; or, kill all of the Dark Elves in the house (see main quest step 9, above) in Kithicor Forest, until one of them drops the Robe of the Kedge. The RotK is NODROP so you cannot buy one from another player, although you CAN multiquest with the RotK, but ALL players involved in the multiquesting MUST be at least level 50, otherwise the robes will poof when they are handed in. Thanks (and heartfelt sorrow) to James Delaney for pointing that out. (I did the multiquest method myself; a 60 gnome magician handed in his Kedge robe, and then I handed in the rest of the robes, and it worked.)

The Fish Method

Getting There

Kedge Keep is located at the bottom of the lake in Dagnor's Cauldron. The entry coordinates are approximately (-1000, -1000), at literally the bottom of the lake. Right around there are a lot of broken pillars, etc., which mark the entrance to the zone. The below picture was taken facing north, into the Kedge Keep zone border:

Killing Phinigel

Kedge Keep is entirely underwater, so you will need to have some method of extended underwater breathing for you and your entire party. The best method is to acquire items with a permanent effect of Enduring Breath for everyone, though this can be difficult. There are many such items but three of the most common are the Fishbone Earring (rare drop off a 5-hour spawn named Hadden in Qeynos Hills), some kind of quest necklace that you get from hunting in The Grey, and the Lodizal Shell Shield (acquired by killing Lodizal, in Iceclad Ocean, for his shell and turning it in, along with 1,000pp, to an Othmir in Cobalt Scar).

Another method is to bring along a magician who can summon dozens of waterstones for everyone. A waterstone is a nonstackable, single-use item that has one charge of Enduring Breath, which lasts roughly 36 minutes. You can also have Enduring Breath cast on you by some classes, including enchanters, but if it starts to run out and they're LD or otherwise occupied...

Unless you have Enduring Breath items for everyone in your party, bring along a magician to summon waterstones.

You'll need a party of 12 people level 55+ to safely kill Phinigel, or a larger party of 50+. It's been done with as few as 6 people but it's highly dangerous if you don't know exactly what you're doing. Phinigel is deep within Kedge Keep, at the bottom of a large vertical room. The usual method is to have a monk feign-pull his guardians (swirlspine seahorses) up to the party, kill them all, and then kill Phinigel once his guards are all dead. Phinigel drops several items needed for several epic quests, including the Robe of the Kedge, but he drops any of them rarely, so do not expect him to drop your robe the first time. There are other, better guides to dealing with Phinigel, so I will not go into any more detail here; your best bet is to go along on Kedge raids until you get your robe.

The Dark Elf Method

Getting There

See "Getting There" in the main quest step 9, above.

Killing the Dark Elves

You'll need a pair of high-level rangers to safely solo pull the Dark Elves out of the house. Refer to step 9 in the main quest above for details on how to set up for killing the Dark Elves. Clearing the Dark Elf house will result in a Kedge robe about one time in three, according to what I've read, and the robe can drop off ANY of the Dark Elves.

Since the RotK is NODROP, you cannot buy one from another player, but you CAN have them multiquest it with you (but all players involved in the multiquesting need to be level 50 or above, or the robes will POOF when you hand them in!).

5. Turn in the Robes
(Vilnius the Small - Western Plains of Karana)

Hand in the four robes (Oracle, SMR, Ishva, Kedge) to Vilnius the Small, in exchange for the Cazic Quill.

Getting There

Vilnius the Small, a barbarian male, is found at approximate coordinates (+150, -6700), at the top of a hill just east of a bandit camp on the west end of the mountain range in WK. The bandit camp, which is just west (and downhill) from Vilnius' spawn point, is shown in the picture below (the view is from Vilnius' spawn point):

From the camp, looking east (uphill), Vilnius' spawn point can be seen here, circled in red:

Vilnius' placeholder, "a brigand", and Vilnius himself, are shown below:

The brigand, as well as all the bandits, are on the KaranaBandits faction, but Vilnius is indifferent to all.

However, Vilnius is not there all the time; he has a placeholder (the aforementioned "a brigand") who despawns around 9 or 10pm game time each day. Once the brigand despawns, Vilnius will spawn at 11pm game time (and will despawn at around 8am game time). If the brigand is up, you don't need to kill him; just wait until he despawns.

The bandits in the camp are around level 9-12, so they aren't exactly a threat, although they could make things inconvenient should they decide to attack while you are trying to hand items in to Vilnius. If the brigand is not spawned during the day, then you may need to start killing bandits to get him to spawn, but this is unconfirmed (every time I've stopped by his spot, either Vilnius or the brigand were up).

Hand the four robes in to Vilnius, and he says the following:

Vilnius the Small looks at you impatiently, expecting more.
Vilnius the Small looks at you impatiently, expecting more.
Vilnius the Small looks at you impatiently, expecting more.

Vilnius the Small says 'You do good work, Soandso . Here is another trinket for your trouble, you should be able to make use of it. Malta still hasn't made it back yet, and I have one more order to fill, if you're willing. This one should be easy. My sword collector has decided he wants rapiers now, of all things. He has asked for an Eyerazzia, a Martune Rapier, a Burning Rapier, and a well balanced rapier.

You gain experience!!

You receive 31 gold from Vilnius the Small.
You receive 1 platinum from Vilnius the Small.
Vilnius then gives you the Cazic Quill.

When I handed in my robes, I had a friend who had a Kedge robe hand his in first, and once he had done that, I immediately handed in the other three robes (SMR, Ishva, Oracle). Vilnius gave me the Cazic Quill, so this shows that the CQ CAN be multiquested as of October 2001. Again, be careful; only players level 50+ should be involved with multiquesting, as anyone below 50 will have the robes POOF when they are handed in!

The Cazic Quill has the following stats:

Item: Cazic Quill
Type: Piercing

Damage/Delay: 8/23
Stats: +5 AGI
Special Attributes: MAGIC ITEM, LORE ITEM, NODROP
Slot(s): RANGE, PRIMARY, SECONDARY
Weight: 1.1
Effect: Shadow Vortex
Size: SMALL
Class: ROG
Race: ALL

WHY THE QUEST IS GIMPY

Anyone familiar with any of the other epic weapon quests will probably be surprised that the Ragebringer quest is so simple. You have to kill all of 1 difficult mob (the General), and a handful of single-group mobs (Renux, the Coercer, the Ishva Mal, the Oracle of K'Arnon, the Ghoul Arch Magus), pickpocket two items, and run around a lot.

Originally, the Ragebringer quest was far more involved. You had to do the following (assuming you didn't know any spoilers about the quest):
Find Vilnius in WK and talk to him. He gave you a task to find Malka Rale in the Qeynos Aqueduct System.
Go to the QAS and talk to Malka. She gives you Stanos' Pouch.
You give Stanos' Pouch to Vilnius. He tells you that he needs you to do something for him: collect four swords - Painbringer (rare drop from Kobold Champion in Sol B), Fleshripper (rare drop from Kobold King in Sol B), a Mithril Two-Handed Sword (rare drop from the froglok king in Lower Guk), and a Gigantic Zweihander (Karg Icebear in Everfrost). Turn in the swords to Vilnius, and he gives you the Jagged Diamond Dagger as payment.
Vilnius then asks another task of you: collect four robes (the four mentioned above). For these, he gives you the Cazic Quill, another dagger.

He then asks one last task: collect four rapiers - a Martune Rapier (rare drop from Scorn Banshees in the Plane of Hate), an Eyerazzia (uncommon drop from Scarelings in the Plane of Fear), a Well-Balanced Rapier (purchasable from the Shady Swashbuckler in East Commonlands), and the Burning Rapier, which itself involves a long quest that will take at least 6-7 hours to do. For the rapiers, he gives you back Stanos' Pouch, and tells you to take it to Anson McBale in Highpass.
Give the pouch to Anson, and Stanos shows up. Talk to Stanos and he gives you the quest to recover the stained parchment pieces from Founy and Tani.
Get the parchment pieces, give them to Stanos, and go through the translation rigmarole above, kill Renux, get the Sealed Box, kill the General for his Pouch, at which point you have the Jagged Diamond Dagger, the Cazic Quill, and the General's Pouch, and Stanos gives you Ragebringer.

The quest was gimped in the following ways:
Renux, a mob you are REQUIRED to kill to complete the quest, ALWAYS drops the Jagged Diamond Dagger. As a result, you do not need to collect the four swords.
Stanos can be spawned by saying to Anson, "I need to see Stanos", which means that not only do you not have to collect the four rapiers, you don't even need to see Malka Rale. Hell, you don't need Stanos' Pouch AT ALL.
General V`ghera, up until spring of 2001, used to ALWAYS drop a Cazic Quill, which meant that you didn't have to collect the robes, either! Now, he only drops it rarely (about 1 in 10 is the commonly-tossed around figure), so if you're lucky you won't need to collect the robes, but most people do.
Even if you do need to get the robes, the ones you need are all tradeable (which means you can just BUY them, instead of having to bother camping for them) except for the Kedge robe, but that hardly matters, because you can multiquest the Kedge Robe.

Not that I'm complaining, mind you, but Ragebringer is by far the most common epic weapon because the quest was gimped so heavily. Verant can never change it back to full-strength, however, because so many rogues who haven't completed the quest would bitch insanely about the facts that 1) it's been this way for over a year, and 2) it's unfair that a whole bunch of people got to do the easy version just because they were able to do it first.

SHADOWKNIGHT EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Ungrateful Thief

Kurron Ni appears in the Overthere outpost.

Kurron Ni looks your way apprehensively -- he appears to be quite formidable.

You say, 'hail Kurron Ni'
Kurron Ni says 'Out of my way, stranger, I am on a delicate mission. Interfere with my search and I shall relieve you of your head! Bother me no more.

You say, 'What do you seek?'
Kurron Ni says 'I have traveled here in hopes of finding a soul worthy of assisting me in completing my mission.

You say, 'I am worthy'
Kurron Ni says 'I doubt it, but I have been wrong before. Before I share with you the details of my mission, however, you must first prove your worthiness. Agreed?

You say, 'Agreed'
Kurron Ni says 'Very well then, my new friend. I have an acquaintance that stands in need of three pieces of Darkforge Armor. He requires the breast, greaves and helm to complete his set. I also must pay back a loan that has come due in the amount of 900 platinum. Return this to me and I shall share with you my dark mission, and the immeasurable reward that will be earned at its completion. Show your face here without fulfilling my request and I will offer you on the altar to Innoruuk himself. Be off!

Duriek, I have searched this godless pit for what seems to be an eternity with nothing to show for my efforts. I pray to Innoruuk that you have made some breakthrough in your research. Please update me as to your progress. In the meanwhile I have run into some unexpected expenses and will need some funds to carry on. An additional ten thousand should suffice.

The New Apprentice

Duriek Bloodpool can be found in Paineel. Hand him the Letter to Duriek you have... found.

Duriek Bloodpool says 'Yes, most unfortunate. I was informed last week of the death of my most recent apprentice. A few months ago, I paid a substantial sum to a group of rogues sent from Neriak to collect on a gambling debt. He swore to me that was the end of it, but I suspected otherwise. My warnings of gambling with the rogues fell on deaf ears. Please accept this for your troubles.

Though I am not surprised at his passing, he will be sorely missed. Well, I thank you for your efforts. Feel free to meet me in the tavern for a drink sometime. I must now get to the task of replacing my associate.

You say, 'I will replace him'
Duriek Bloodpool says 'Hmm, you seem a bit green and I hesitate to trust you with such an important work, but time is of the essence as my days in this world are running out. Bring me back a bottle of cough elixir and, if you are still interested, I will instruct you further.

Head to Neriak Foreign Quarter. Find Smaka.

I have spent the better part of my life piecing together clues for the creation of a legendary dark blade, a corrupted Ghoulbane. I am very close to understanding the method used in manipulating the enchantments of the Ghoulbane, but in my current condition, I cannot finish collecting the research. My previous apprentice was searching for this last clue when he met his untimely demise.

I feared it would never come to pass.' Duriek takes the key from his neck, softly muttering some words, and places it in a previously unseen keyhole. The book's hinges creak as Duriek pulls it open. After reading for a few moments, he says, 'It is even better than I had hoped! It will take me weeks to uncover a portion of what this book has to offer. But this is what I have been searching for, so many years! At last I know the items required to corrupt that accursed blade!'

Return to me with these items and I shall be known throughout history as the greatest grave lord to have walked Norrath and you shall be among the most powerful in our art.

The Corruption

The Ghoulbane is in possession of the froglok shin lord in the Ruins of Upper Guk.

The Soul Leech, Dark Sword of Blood is in possession of the God of Fear, Cazic-Thule, in the Plane of Fear.

The Blade of Abrogation is at times carried by monsters in the Plane of Sky.

The Decrepit Sheath is fashioned by Teydar. He is located in the Qeynos Aqueduct System.

Teydar looks your way apprehensively -- looks like quite a gamble.

You say, 'Can you fashion a decrepit sheath?'
Teydar says 'The object you desire is very difficult to fashion, nearly impossible, really. All I can offer to do is try. The real difficulty is the contents that give the sheath its power. They have to be of an almost equal evil. I think some kind of decrepit hide, a drake spine along with a bar of enchanted platinum should prove enough to make this item.

After several minutes, there is a final, blinding flash. Duriek collapses to the ground. After a few moments, Duriek motions you closer and whispers, 'You have done well. I wish fate had been kinder to me and allowed me your aid years ago, I might have lived long enough to enjoy the fame our combined efforts. You say, 'What is the cure?'
Lhranc says 'I require only four things of you, dark one, and one of them you hold now. Bring me the heart of an innocent, the head of the valiant, and the will of Innoruuk. With these, my curse shall be lifted at last and I will craft a weapon that will cast a shadow over all of Norrath.

"one of them you hold" refers to the Corrupted Ghoulbane.

The Ritual

In Toxxulia Forest, near the dock, you may find Knarthenne Skurl.

You say, 'hail Knarthenne Skurl'
Knarthenne Skurl says 'Ah, you do not possess the heart of an innocent. Be gone with you!

You say, 'What heart of an innocent?'
Knarthenne Skurl says 'What's that? Heart of the Innocent, you say?! Ages, it has been, since I was last asked that. The Heart of the Innocent is an item of great power. Few are they who have ever commanded the dark magic of such an object. It is the bound soul of a pure mortal, rare indeed. Take this hollow gem, and combine with it the heart of one who is pure. If your hand is steady and your mind is clear, you shall have what you seek.

You say, 'What prophecy?'

Marl Kastane says 'My apologies, {Your name} , I have said too much already. Instead, I have an errand to occupy your thoughts. Take this as proof that you are sent from me and find my brother in Paineel. I haven't spoken with him in some time now and his well being is essential to our family's destiny.

All I require of you is the physical head of a valiant warrior. I have the rest of the materials right here to fashion this item for you.

Marl Kastane reads the note, eyes widening in panic. He raises his eyes to you and says, 'This is grave news, friend. Marl Kastane looks your way apprehensively -- he appears to be quite formidable.

You say, 'What prophecy?'
Marl Kastane says 'I suppose it is time for the secret to be shared. Ages ago, two brothers were born. Glohnor was highly favored by the pompous Lightbringer, whose name we do not utter. Lhranc was chosen by the Prince of Hate to bring destruction and turmoil to the sons of men. The one thing they shared in common was their love of the fair priestess, Kyrenna. Kyrenna fell deeply in love with Glohnor. When Lhranc discovered this, he was overcome with rage and unwisely attacked his brother, who happened to be far more adept in combat. The fight cost Lhranc dearly. He lost his dignity as well as an eye in the struggle. He was ordered to leave Freeport and live his life in exile from the only home he had ever known.

You say, 'What became of Lhranc?'
Marl Kastane says 'Lhranc wandered the deserts of Ro for weeks, sinking deeper into depression and giving in to rage. Reports from the local merchants and caravans had him roaming the dunes muttering to himself incoherently. Eventually, he was forgotten, blending in with the hermits and madmen common to that region, forgotten by all save one.

You say, 'Who is the one?'
Marl Kastane says 'Innoruuk had not forsaken Lhranc. Once his rage and hate had matured and sufficiently altered his soul, the dark prince summoned him and gave him dominion over the demons that had enslaved his mind. He was given a weapon that made him powerful enough to slay any enemy that stood in his way. He was to become the first human to harness the power of the almighty shadowknight. After years of traveling and teaching mankind his newfound abilities, Lhranc sneaked back into Freeport through a series of sewers in search of revenge against his brother and in hopes of kidnapping Kyrenna, the source of his obsession. Waiting until Glohnor was alone, Lhranc sprang from the shadows and slew his brother. This was the act that brought about his curse.

You say, 'What curse?'
Marl Kastane says 'As I said, Glohnor was highly favored by the Lightbringer. When the contemptible god of honor discovered what had been done, he transformed Lhranc into a deformed spectral knight and placed him in the ruined city. Lhranc then used what remained of his power to summon Kyrenna to his side and bind her there in a timeless, seamless sphere. He struggled for centuries to break her will and convince her to serve Innoruuk, certain that together they could remove his curse. But then, there was the prediction.

You say, 'What prediction?'
Marl Kastane says 'The prophecy states that one day Kyrenna will escape the clutches of Lhranc and that she will resurrect Glohnor. Together, it reads, they will destroy Lhranc and undo all he has done. I trust that I do not need to tell you, {Your name} , that this would decimate our foothold in Norrath. When the prophecy was written, its words spread across the land. A dark council was held to construct a plan that would frustrate the words of the prophets. My ancestors were responsible for robbing Glohnor's tomb and securing his remains. For generations we have been charged with the duty of guarding those remains and the secret plan, should the corpse be discovered.

You say, 'What secret plan?'
Marl Kastane says 'The plan is a last resort only to be tried if Kyrenna indeed escapes and the remains are discovered. Judging by my brother's words that time is now. It will take the most powerful hero all the courage and dedication he can muster to complete the ritual.

You say, 'I will complete the ritual'
Marl Kastane says 'It would seem we have no choice, and this is our only hope. I must first make a dark shroud. To do this I must stain it with the blood of an innocent. Go find me this rare blood so I can start the creating of the shroud.

In the Hole, in a jail cell, you may find Caradon.

SHAMAN EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

Test of Patience

Go to the Gornit Island in Ocean of Tears. The location is about 800, -5400. There you may find Capt Surestout. If he is there, kill him. He is very easy being only level 20 halfling. When he is dead, a lesser spirit will spawn on his corpse. Hail it.

You say, 'hail a lesser spirit' a lesser spirit says 'Did you take this person's life, shaman?

You say, 'yes'

a lesser spirit says 'Why have you taken this person's life, (your name) ? Did he threaten your life? Did you dislike him? Or was his death a profit to you in some way?

You say, 'he threatened my life' a lesser spirit says 'I see. It brings me sadness to see another die, but his heart was black and a great nothingness. His body will become the grass now. Thank you for what you have done, shaman.

You say, 'who are you?'

a lesser spirit says 'What, or who, I am isn't as important as what, or who, WE are. Do you wish to know more, shaman?

You say, 'i wish to know more' a lesser spirit says 'That is good, (your name) . Take this gem. It is a part of us like the clouds to the sky and is a wonderful gift from the grandfather. Take this gem to where the humans gather to spoil the land and water. Some call it a port. There you will find one of us, a shaman like yourself. Give him the gem and perhaps he will tell you more of the spirits.

The port he speaks of is of course Freeport. North Freeport to be exact. And the shaman is Bondl Felligan. You can find him in the sewers in the northwest part of town. He is inside the collapsed wall. Hand the gem over to him.

You say, 'hail Bondl Felligan'

Bondl Felligan burps loudly in your face and says, 'Bah! Leave me be, fool! You have nothin' I want and I certainly have nothin' you want.'

Now give the gem to him.

Bondl Felligan says 'WOW, thanks! This must be worth a fortune! I could drink for a month after sellin' this to one of them fool merchants. I'm going to see how much I can get for it right now!

Now wait for him to move out of the sewers and into the city. He will stop and talk.

Bondl Felligan says 'What!? You don't approve of me buyin' some drinks with this gem? Who the heck are you to offer me a gift and order me what to do with it? Is this some kinda conditional kindness? Well? Are you gonna let me buy some booze with this or not?

You say, 'you can buy booze'

Bondl Felligan suddenly becomes completely sober and says, 'Very well, shaman, please come with me.'

Now, wait for him to go to the Jade Uncerground Inn. Go up to the third floor and walk into the middle room. Inside will be a greater spirit.

You say, 'hail a greater spirit'

a greater spirit says 'Greetings, shaman. Tell me, do you follow [Justice], [War], [Fear], or [Hate]?

You say, 'i follow justice' a greater spirit says 'Ah, a follower of the Tribunal from the North you are, then. You would be best served by speaking to my brother in the next room. Farewell, (your name) .

Go to the next room at the end of the hallway. You will find another greater spirit.

You say, 'hail a greater spirit'

a greater spirit says 'It is good to see you, (your name) . We're glad you trusted in our brother and did what was asked regardless of Bondl's intentions. This fills us with joy, as the [true spirits] work in ways most people would not understand and [trust] is the first lesson of the [Heyokah].

You say, 'what true spirits?'

a greater spirit says 'As a shaman, spirits are known to you. They aid you if you pay them homage and respect the world around you. They also will bend to your will if you are powerful enough. We are a part of the entire universe and we exist because people believe and feel us. However [very few] know us in this form. To mortals we are but ideas, [wisps of consciousness] in an expanse of emptiness and as difficult to grasp as breath in Everfrost.

You say, 'what very few?'

a greater spirit says 'There are only a handful of mortals we've judged worthy to be friends and, reluctantly, masters. We call them the [Heyokah]. Bondl is one of them and he helps to test those we believe might be able to grasp our existence. There are many troubles that threaten us and our home. We seek those with the wisdom, patience, and might to help us ensure the health of the cosmos. Whether you seek balance or personal power, this is important to you.

You say, 'what wisps of consciousness?'

a greater spirit says 'It is difficult for mortals to grasp what we are for we are not material that can be held or consumed. We are the spirit that drives beings to do what beings do. The wolf lives to run and hunt. When you ask for his aid, his spirit enters your body and you 'become' wolf. The ox is the personification of endurance and when he enters your body, you do not become an ox, you become all that is ox. I myself am the spirit of understanding.

You say, 'what trust do you speak of?'

a greater spirit says 'Trust is the glue of the universe. When one trusts others to do their part, it allows them to focus on what they must do themselves. The trust that others have in us also gives us the confidence to do our parts effectively, thus maintaining harmony. When one becomes dissatisfied with his part and pursues his own desires, this is called greed. And greed destroys the glue of the universe. This is why we wished the bandits under the grass.

You say, 'what heyokah?'

a greater spirit says 'The Heyokah are our mortal counterparts. Some are our friends who seek to help us in whatever goals we deem important. Some seek nothing more than to enslave and command us to do their bidding. We accept this and often make deals with those we realize are powerful enough to accomplish what needs to be done. To judge such individuals, we have prepared a test. We ask that before we enter into these contracts, the shaman walk the [path of the Heyokah]. We see you may be worthy. Will you walk the path? You will be rewarded for your efforts, albeit grudgingly.

The greater spirit, after explaining all this will give you the opaque gem.

After receiving the gem, you will need to say this.

You say, 'i will walk the path of the Heyokah' a greater spirit says 'That is good, (your name) . You will need to walk three paths before you can reach that of the Heyokah. The paths of patience, wisdom, and might. First, you must learn patience. Take this gem and go on a pilgrimage to an island in the great water the wasichu call Erud's Crossing. The Kerrans there are our allies and can show you to our next contact, Ooglyn. Give Ooglyn the gem and do what she asks. As you walk the path, remember what you've learned about trust.

The greater spirit despawns immediately.

Travel to Erud's Crossing. Locate Ooglyn. She is an ogre shaman on the island that the boat stops at at -900, 1600. He spawn time is 2 hours. Give her the gem as the greater spirit asked.

Head to Erud's Crossing. Find Ooglyn, a female ogre shaman, on the island. Approx. loc -900, 1600. She should be up, if not her spawn time is 2 hours.

This was found on Allakhazam's: As of now this quest is bugged. Before handing in the gem go to loc 0,0 in Erud's Crossing, if you see a naked human female floating above the water with no name then you NEED a gm to come and despawn her. Otherwise the quest npcs will not spawn and you'll have wasted that effort.

You say, 'hail Ooglyn'

Ooglyn says 'Ooooh, it you, (your name) . Me's been waitin for you cuz our frenz say you comin an need da test. So's I gib you da test. Hmm, now where me put it? Ooglyn been waiting for sign for so long dat me forget where me put test. Keep your eyes out for sign while me look for test.

Oh, hey, (your name) , they gib you gem? I need dat gem, please, heheh.

Hand the opaque gem to Ooglyn

Ooglyn says 'Ahhh, tank you, now me can...OH LOOK!! DA SIGN!!!! Oh, sorry you missed it. The sign show you where to wait for da test. Follow me...I like you so I take you there. We goin for a swim, (your name) !

Ooglyn will start running away. Follow her until she goes into the water. Then (you will need anedure breath, fishbone earring, etc. for this) go to -1600, 4200. Ooglyn will be there waiting for you.

Ooglyn says 'Ok shaman, let us be off.

Ooglyn says 'Ok, here Is place for you to for waiting. Hab fun shaman!

She wanders off in some direction. Do not follow her. NPCs will suddenly start spawning around you one by one. The first one to spawn is Srafen the Soaked.

You say, 'hail Srafen the Soaked'

Srafen the Soaked says 'Why hello there! Ahh, it's good to see a new face down [here]. So you've come to [wait] with [us] eh? That is splendid! It's been getting very boring lately.

You say, 'Where is here?'

Srafen the Soaked says 'Oh! Well this is where [we wait]. It's not much for looks but if you're lucky, a pretty fish will swim by. Oh, and once Dillon said he saw one of those fish women, a mermaid, he called it! Although, I'm not so sure of his state of mind, hehehe. He's been waiting here much longer than I.

You say, 'Who is us?'

Srafen the Soaked says 'Well, there's me, Srafen. I've been down here for, can't quite remember, a number of years, I guess. If my wife saw the condition my clothes are in, she'd whack me, I'm sure, heheh. Although I'd bet she's long since dead, probably. Then there's Dillon. He says he's been here since those people up top in Erud blew that big hole in the ground. Not sure what happened but I guess it was a long time ago. Hmmmm, who [else]?

You say, 'What do you wait for?'

Srafen the Soaked says 'We've been waiting quite some time, really. I have been here the least amount of time, but that doesn't help keep the boredom away, heheh. What are we waiting for, you ask? HehehHAahahah! What are we waiting for?? Heheheh, what a silly question! It's quite obvious if you take the time to think about it. Heh. Ummm.. I'm really not sure.

You say, 'Who else?'

Srafen the Soaked says 'Ahh, yes, there's also a really old guy I've only seen a couple times, name's Froham. Whew, he is really old, and not much of a talker. Mostly mumbles from time to time. Dillon says he's been here since Erud first took his people across the sea. Not sure who this Erud feller is but Froham isn't in the best of shape, so it must have been a LONG time ago. Froham did mention there's one other guy but we've never seen him. He apparently had something to do with the Combine Empire, no idea what that is though.

Dillon the Drowned then spawns. Apparently at around this point, killer sharks will begin to spawn. They are light blue to level 49, but you can get numerous sharks at the same time. Keep a pet up. Invis vs animals should work against them. They do dispell, so don't have EB as your first buff. (More info on this would be appreciated.)

Dillon the Drowned says 'Well met again, Srafen. How goes it?

You say, 'hail Dillon the Drowned'

Dillon the Drowned says 'Hey Srafen, who is this weirdo talking to me? Or is it another one of those funny illusions Froham keeps talking about?

Srafen the Soaked looks around frantically a moment then laughs and says, 'Ohhh, them! Hehehe! This is a friend of mine come to wait with us. Isn't that exciting, Dillon? And it's not just an illusion, I don't think! Say, are you [an illusion], shaman?

You say, 'I am not an illusion.'

Srafen the Soaked says 'Awww, well that's too bad. Although illusions and real people don't seem to be much different at times, so, please stay and keep Dillon and me company. We could use it, right Dillon?

Srafen the Soaked says 'Hey Dillon, why don't you tell us again about what happened up top? You know, where they blew that big hole into the ground.

Dillon the Drowned says 'Again? Oh I don't know Srafen, I don't want to [bore] our company, even if it is an illusion.

You say, 'You won't bore me'

Dillon the Drowned says 'Well ok, I was sent here a long time ago to wait. When I got here, I couldn't believe all the violence going on. Why would the spirits send me here to wait when all this fighting and commotion was going on, I wondered. There were great battles on the ocean in splendid ships made of pine and shining with [magical enhancements]. While I was waiting below, blasted, bloody body parts were floating down to the bottom of the ocean all around me.

You say, 'What magical enhancements?'

Dillon the Drowned says 'Yes, their ships were very strange, constructed in very unusual designs and all seemed to shine with a multicolored glow. I heard there was even a ship that could stay completely underwater for long periods of time. It had huge steel spikes protruding from the top of its hull used to 'swim' under enemy ships and puncture their hulls. I always thought that someday all this magic would cause something [disastrous] and eventually, it did.

You say, 'What was disastrous?'

Dillon the Drowned says 'Well, one time, I was here waiting as usual. The fighting was particularly heavy up top, lots of banging and rumbling around. And suddenly there was a tremendous screech! I had to cover my ears, it was so loud, even down here. It felt like the water itself was being torn asunder; I could imagine what was happening above. After a few seconds of the screeching came a terrible tremor and rumbling. Great cracks opened up around me and water rushed to fill them, almost dragging me down into the gods know what. It calmed down a little while after that and there hasn't been any real fighting ever since. I suspect they're all dead now. For weeks afterwards, the water had a kind of dead taste to it. I became ill during that time.

After Dillon says this, he and Safren will swim away. Do not follow them. After a little while, Froham the Forgotten chimes in. Hail him and continue saying the keyword until we get the logs.

You say, 'who is abe'

Froham the Forgotten says 'Yeah, Abe's an old guy. Well, he's kinda beyond bein' old if ye know what I mean. Not all together either. His mind floats all over like the sea around us. But he's got enough sense to wait here like he's done fer, well, fer dang near ever. If ye see him, and he ain't much fer talkin straight, ask him about [a broken arrow]. Not sure what it means to him but it seems to bring him around.

Froham will wander off in a direction. Do not follow him. Wait for a few minutes and yet another NPC will spawn eventually.

You say, 'hail Abe the Abandoned'

Abe the Abandoned turns his head slowly toward you but his eyes never come into focus. You can't tell if he's looking at you, behind you, or right in front of his own face. Then, suddenly, he shouts at the top of his lungs, 'HOOOOKAAAHEEEEYYYY! I AM [ABE]!'

You say, 'who are you abe?'

Abe the Abandoned says 'Nothing is hidden. All is discernible if you only know where to look and you have the right [eyes]. Don't be angry with me if you can't get your eyes right to see what you're looking for. I'd lend you mine but I don't wear the same size.

You say, 'what eyes?'

Abe the Abandoned begins to draw a picture in the mud with his finger although it doesn't seem to make any sense at all. He points to his picture and nods approvingly at you, saying, 'You see? The curtains fell and it was naught but a dream upon a landscape that we thought we knew. The dream of the [Combine] fulfilled when we finally trimmed our fingernails and looked into the mud. And now we are abandoned, in a world that none can see, no one has the eyes.'

You say, 'what is the combine?'

Abe the Abandoned shakes his head in amusement and says, 'Heheheh, yeah, you'd think so, wouldn't you? But I guess not'

You say, 'what broken arrow'

Abe the Abandoned 's eyes suddenly come into focus, looking deep into your own and says, 'There was a time when we cared for the world and trod with the spirits along the paths of the cosmos. We built many great things and worked to preserve what was. I came here to wait for an answer when we began to die off. We could not figure why this was and I was chosen to come here and commune with our friends. We carved an arrow, and everyone who was left shaved a sliver of wood from it. We let it drop to hallowed ground and our highest shaman stepped on it, breaking it. I've been waiting here for so long. So, so long, to give it to the spirits, and thank them.'

Sit down again and wait until Abe talks again.

Abe the Abandoned says 'Shaman? My time will soon be at hand and I fear I will never see our friends again. But the arrow must be given, our holy broken arrow. Shaman, will you bear our obligation and [give them the arrow]? You will know who to give it to when it is time.

You say, 'i will give them the arrow'

Abe the Abandoned removes a quiver slung across his shoulder and solemnly hands it to you without a word.

You will receive a broken arrow from Abe.

Sit down again and wait until Abe talks again.

Abe the Abandoned suddenly gasps and says, 'I have found it! I know the answer! Come with me and I will tell you. Eyes are everywhere and this knowledge is not for everyone. Finally my centuries of waiting are over hahahaha! Follow me Shaman!

Do not move. This is a test and you have to be patient. Do not follow Abe. Soon, a greater spirit will spawn.

You say, 'hail a greater spirit'

a greater spirit says 'You have walked the path of patience and you now know what to expect.

We are watchers. Our eyes are everywhere and we must be patient and quiet else we may miss what could be harmful. Can you sit still quietly and wait for just the right moment, then open your eyes with a fury and act with all the energy you have cultivated? Timing is everything, and without patience you cannot be sensitive to timing. You have shown your patience here and we believe you are ready to walk the [next path].

You say, 'what is the next path?'

a greater spirit says 'You know trust and patience. But before we can allow you to act in our name, we must know that when you do decide to act, you will make the right choices. We must ask that you now walk the path of wisdom. You must walk to the great plains and search out one of us. He is a wanderer, and it is his nature to drift with the winds and weather doing what he can to ensure understanding and longevity to all that respect their home. He will not be easy to find, though, and you must remember what you have learned down here to succeed in finding him. When you do, give him this gem and follow his instructions.

You will be given a sparkling gem somewhere in this talk.

TEST OF WISDOM

Go to West Karanas. Find a wandering spirit. He is small and looks like a wisp. Make sure the zone knows you are looking for it and it helps greatly to have a tracker with you. When you find it, hail it.

You say, 'hail a wandering spirit'

a wandering spirit stops and flashes brightly for a moment. It seems to be regarding you with interest.

Now give the sparkling gem from Erud's Crossing to the spirit.

a wandering spirit says 'Oh, it is you, shaman! Good! You must hurry before it's too late. Go now to the Mountains they call Rathe and find them! They need your help quickly! They will know you when they see you and instruct you on how you can help, but you must hurry!

Next go to the Rathe Mountains. Find Tabien the Goodly at 6300, 1550. This is near the stone with the eye on it.

You say, 'hail Tabien the Goodly'

Tabien the Goodly says 'Oh thank Marr you are here, (your name) . I was beginning to think I would be abandoned in my time of need. I have a [task] for you to complete in the name of my patron Mithaniel Marr.

You say, 'what task?'

Tabien the Goodly display his shield that must once have been shining and regal but is now scoured in cuts, dents, and chipped paint. He says, 'This shield is known as Marr's Promise. It is a sacred relic that was actually used by one of Mithaniel's angels on the Plane of Valor. Its value to our church is immeasurable and I have been charged with the protection of it. However, a patriarch of the false god, Bertoxxulous, is after my shield and me. He must be stopped! Please, destroy him and bring me proof of his death.

Kill Tabien (around level 32) and get his shield, Marr's Promise.

The other person is Glaron the Wicked. He is located at 2900, -1900. He is a little bit harder than Tabien.

You say, 'hail Glaron the Wicked'

Glaron the Wicked says 'Are you the one they sent to help our cause? I should have known they would send a green witch doctor to serve Bertoxxulous and myself. Very well, you will have to suffice. I have a [task] you must fulfill if you wish to know the blessing of my god and impress your masters.

You say, 'what task?'

Glaron the Wicked brandishes a long, wicked-looking bone dagger and there is a horrid, diseased stench as soon as he unsheathes it. He draws another blade, shorter and wider than the first, of blackened bone with a larger than normal hilt, obviously for defense. He says, 'This festering blade is called Woe, and this scorched one is called Envy. They were created on the Plane of Decay by Bertoxxulous' own hands. He has judged me worthy of the protection of such holy relics. However, there is one in these very mountains who seeks to destroy these relics. End this idiot follower of Marr's life and bring me proof.'

Kill Glaron and take his sword and dagger, Woe and Envy.

Take Marr's Promise, Woe, and Envy back to the wandering spirit in West Karanas.

You say, 'hail a wandering spirit'

Give Woe, Envy, and Marr's Promise to the wandering spirit, all at the same time.

a wandering spirit says 'You are close to passing the test, keep up the good work.

a wandering spirit says 'You are close to passing the test, keep up the good work.

a wandering spirit says '(your name) nods somberly and takes the items. After a moment, he says, 'It is unfortunate that it came to this, but nothing else was to be done. Both paragons had lost sight of their virtures to protect the items given to them. The mere protection of these material belongings was not as important to Mithaniel Marr or Bertoxulous as it was that they act with righteousness in their minds and purpose in their hearts. You saw this and acted accordingly. For that, we will reward you with the three treasures made into one to ward off the falsehood of possession, the [Shield of Falsehood]. You have walked the path and now, as your final test, we must set you along one [last path].

You say, 'what shield of falsehood?'

a wandering spirit says 'Yes, I have taken Marr's Promise along with Woe and Envy and fashioned them together to create the Shield of Falsehood. Wield this in defense of possession and the weakness that comes with hoarding treasure instead of using it to accomplish your goals. May it serve you well, Barbarian.

The spirit will give you the Shield of Falsehood. Have a general slot free because this only fits in Tinkerer's Bags and Large Sewing Kits.

You say, 'what last path?'

a wandering spirit says 'You have trusted us along the paths we have set before you. You have been known to be patient and await the right moment. And now, you have learned the wisdom to act in our best interest. However, one last path awaits, to determine if you have the ability to act out what must be done. There are many troubles about the world we try to rub out but none is more serious than the curse on what the wasichu call the Emerald Jungle. Go there and find one of our spirits. Show them the gem you have been given and follow the path they set you on.

The Wandering spirit will give you a gem.

TEST OF MIGHT

Go to 1250, 300 in the Emerald Jungle. You should find a Sentinel Spirit there.

You say, 'hail a Spirit Sentinel'

Now, give the gem from the wandering spirit to him.

Spirit Sentinel says 'Ahh, you live, shaman! I am glad the beasts of this jungle haven't torn your body asunder. Tell me, do you still walk the path? Are you willing to [continue what you have started]?

You say, 'i will continue what i have started'

Spirit Sentinel says 'This brings happiness to our hearts and we are grateful. However, we must ask you to walk one more path before you can become a true Heyokah. With trust, one can focus on what is important. With patience, one can perceive what is harmful. With wisdom, one can know what must be done. These, you have learned, yet without the might to carry out what must be done, all is for naught. Are you [prepared to walk the path of might]?

You say, 'i am prepared to walk the path of might'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Good, good, Do you know this place, (your name) , this forest? The wasichu call it the Emerald Jungle, but we know it only as the terrible place. Where there is no spirituality, we are weak. The lost city in the middle of this jungle is a great void of belief not only absent of spirituality, but actually draining it from others. We are here to neutralize that void. The void is like the sky, and nothing escapes its gaze. If it senses us, it will drain us away and sometimes it turns our minds, making us [like the wasichu], crazy for things with no meaning.

You say, 'what like the wasichu?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Yes, there are some of us who have turned their backs on our world and struggle for possesions and power over others. These lost ones are our brothers and we cry for them. Our hearts are in pain like bleeding wounds when we think of them. The path of might will lead you to one of our lost brothers. We are afraid there is nothing we can do for him now, so you must eliminate him when you [find him].

You say, 'how do i find him?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'He left us long ago and walked the land for ages. He soon met a man, one of the pointy-ears that live underground. This man was like a void just like the one over that terrible place now. Our Brother-Friend was attracted to this man's desire and ambition. He no doubt thought that he could get what he wanted in service of this [dark point ear] who denied his own creator.

You say, 'what dark point ear?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'After our brother began traveling with this point-ear, they became shrouded in a darkness we could not peer through. The point-ear was a powerful being and we soon lost their trail. We have no idea where he could be now. Although, after all these centuries, he has no doubt been gathering and cultivating his wealth and power. He must be an incredibly influential being at this point. Find this point-ear and draw our brother out, then destroy him and bring us proof. We await your return in somber mourning.

The person or thing you must find in a black dire in Mistmoore Castle. To get him to spawn, kill the Advisor in the Castle. This will spawn the Black Dire. He despawns after 35 minutes so don't dawdle. To get to him, go to the ramp leading to the castle. Don't go up the ramp, instead go to the back at the base of the ramp. There will be four normal wolves and a black dire in the middle. If the four wolves are green then you can pull the black dire alone. The wolf is level 45 but is much harder to kill then a regular 45 beast due to the fact that he is a shadowknight. He is very magic resistant so nukers will not be very useful. Have a damage absorbing shield on the tanks for the Harm Touch. To kill him, you will need one full group consisting of three tanks, a cleric, and an enchanter. Once he is dead, loot his pelt.

Spirit Sentinel begins to weep softly as he sees the pelt, battered and bloody. After a few moments, he says, 'We can only hope his passing was quick and painless. The Dire was powerful and yet you overcame him. Always remember that when you became [Heyokah], it was the passing of a noble, yet misguided being that allowed you to do so. You should hold a special place in your heart for him and what he was in life. To help you remember him, we will fashion this pelt into a pair of boots and give them to you. With every step you take, you must think on the Dire, else his death be in vain forever.'

He will then give you Black Fur Boots. They have the same effect as the Journey Man Boots and some very nice stats.

You say, 'what heyokah'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Yes, you have walked the Path of the Heyokah to its end. You have become what few have and we will now call to you as Heyokah Eliha . From now on, you are a direct link between the spirits and man. Whether your goals are to help us or master us, you are welcomed. Though there is little time for celebration. Do you feel the darkness of this place, the forest? To eyes not trained to see beyond physical appearances, it seems like any other forest. But you know, as do we, of the mantle over the city threatening all of us. We must [rub it out].

You say, 'how do we rub it out'

Spirit Sentinel says 'There are many such mantles scarring the universe and each is very different from the last. Removing them requires that we learn how they were created and go about reversing the damage done. We cannot enter under the mantle for long which is why we search out Heyokah such as yourself. We need you to enter the city and find out what you can about the [city's demise]. We hope you will do this for the cause of balance but if you desire none but your own power, we shall grant that as well

You say, 'what about the city's demise?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'It was known as Torsis. During its history it amassed great wealth and power yet it eventually crumbled. No one understands what happened. The men of the world ask themselves how a nation as successful as Torsis could ever fall. Some blame plague, internal unrest, the constant encroachment of the forest, and marauding bands of monsters but we alone know what happened. Just as Tabien and Glaron lost sight of their spiritual paths, so did Torsis. Without the awe and inspiration of that which was greater than themselves, they eventually withered away. The mantle was born long before the last days, though, and what we need to learn is [how it all began].

You say, 'i will learn how it all began'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Excellent! Go into the city and gather what evidence you can. The ghosts who still walk the streets may hoard precious memories that will aid us. Take this booklet and combine what you find in it. Then bring me the completed report. From there, we will know where to look next.

PART IV - THE FINAL TEST

Now go to the City of Mist. You will need 6 items. The items are Merchant's Letter, Priest's Diary, Personal Diary Page, Written Announcement, Crier's Scoll, and Student Log.

Five of these items are random drops off of skeletons, golems, and goos close to the zone. The Student Log is dropped off of a Spectral Courier. This is a level 34 mob. Here is how you pull him, posted on the Allakhazam boards by Jolariss:

The best spot to find the courier is in the stables area. More specifically, when the courier was up it was in one of two buildings. When you turn south from pool area (ie past the bridge and gate) you enter a little area with two buildings to your left and an opening to your right. The two buildings to your left (they have broken down beds in them) contain monsters that WILL AGGRO ON YOU THROUGH THE WALL so if its your first time there only walk forward a little ways until you hear a door click - you will have pulled anywhere from 1-4 mobs so be ready. The courier can spawn in the first building on the left. However, once you clear these two buildings you can check the other spot where I saw the courier most often (80% of the time I'd estimate). Enter the opening to the right and then open the first door on the right - you will pull 2-3 mobs, hopefully one is the courier. On an average 6 hour camp pulling the stables I usually saw the courier about 2-3 times. -Thanks Jolariss!

Here is some information of the 6 Report Information pieces.

Personal Diary Page - Indentifies as: Report Information 1 of 6

I heard last night that there was some kind of commotion at the castle. Guards were shouting, spells went off throughout the halls and many died. Some say there was an assassination, some say a band of froglocks attacked under the command of a dragon, some even say there was divine intervention. I have no idea why any god would strike against Lord Rak'Ashiir. He is the paragon for the cause of Cazic-thule. I hope whatever it was sticks to attacking the castle and not my shop though.

Crier's Scroll - Indentifies as: Report Information 2 of 6

Hear all Torsis! Our beloved Lord Rak'Ashiir will be appointing another High Priest into the Cazic-Thule clergy in two days. A festival will be held in honor of the event and the High Scale will be present to judge various contests of skill in arms. Booths will be set up selling various wares and food to all. Cazic guide us all.

Merchant's Letter - Identifies as : Report Information 3 of 6

The list should all be in order except for the swatches of silk. I won't need such a large order in this quarter. Her Divinity Drian made it known to me that they would not need as many new robes this coming season as "none were quite ready to don them." My colleagues have all been confirming that the church is buying less and less these days. It seems Rak`Ashiir has decided the royal donation to be cut. However I'm sure we'll find new customers soon and our orders will be back to normal shortly.

Written Announcement - Indentifies as: Report Information 4 of 6

Hear all Torsis! It is with great regret that we inform you of our Queen, Neh'Ashiir's disappearance. Our best scouts have begun searching the surrounding countries for her trail. The lord Rak'Ashiir also authorized the hire of mercenaries to venture into Froglock Territories to search for traces of the Queen. All interested parties should report to the royal Quartermaster's office. Fear not citizens, our Queen will be found. Wisdom guide us.

Priest's Diary Page - Indentifies as: Report Information 5 of 6

Well it appears our Lord Rak'Ashiir in his "wisdom" has cut our church's donation yet again. He claims it is to bolster the ranks of our garrison as many were wiped out during the Froglock incursions. However, I see more and more soldiers everyday, more that I ever have. And they are all equipped in the best armors the city's smiths can craft. This along with the recent replacement of our Bishop Screks with that coin grubber biliaz leads me to suspect our King is planning on all but destroying the church entirely. I don't understand it, perhaps his missing Queen has driven him mad.

Student's Log - Identifies as Report Information 6 of 6

Missed mass again today. This is the third time this week now. It is a worthy sacrifice however as I was able to attend the Master's National Coin exchange class. Perhaps the clergy will change the time of their masses, then I'll be able to attend regulary. Although with the appointment of the new Arch Priest it appears mass may be discontinued altogether. I honestly hope so. I could attend many more classes as well as spend more time rubbing elbows with merchants at the bazaars. I think I'll have to miss tomorrow's mass as well. I heard the Laughing Leech Guild is taking members again.

While you are in City of Mist, loot the High Scale Icon off of the floor. You will need this later in the quest and it will save lots of time. Here are some instructions on how to get the High Scale Icon from Belgar's Ultimate Guide to Alchemy:

Go into City of Mist. Go across the bridge. Open the gate. Turn right. Go straight forward through 2 arches. In the last room you will find a temple with a waterfall running down its side. Stay in that courtyard of temple, and pull skeletons, etc., from the first door you see at the base of the temple. Open the door. Inside is another door directly in front of you, do not open this door, it leads to top of temple. Look instead to the right, where three skeletons spawn. Pull these skeletons to courtyard and kill them. Go back into door, head right and ye will see a room set below ground level with three phantoms in it, standing on a raised dais. Pull and kill these phantoms. There are two doors beside the dais, one opening to the left and one opening to the right. Choose the left door. Inside is a small room with no monsters inside, and a small bag on the floor in the left corner. Click on the bag, you now have the High Scale Icon. Gate out. Using Invisibility to Undead potion (Unlife Awareness) will get you past the last three skeletons and phantoms. They will still scowl at you, ready to attack, but it is a bluff. They will NOT be able to see you.Be warned, however, as the golems of the area can see through Invisibility to Undead, and you may run across a couple on the way to the temple area. -Thanks Belgar!

Put the 6 Reports in the Booklet that the Spirit Sentinel gave you. Hit combine. Now return the booklet to the Spirit Sentinel in Emerald Jungle.

You say, 'hail Spirit Sentinel'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Ahhh good, let us hope what you have found will point us in the right direction. Hmmm...this is interesting. It appears the disappearance of the first queen may have caused Rak'Ashiir's faith to decline. From there, the first King Rak laid down the groundwork for the city's eventual demise. We need to learn what happened to the queen. Perhaps bringing this knowledge to the King's now cursed form will lift the mantle. We've learned that the last lord of Torsis, Ghiosk, was a bit of a historian. Find him and see what you can learn about the queen. Take what you find to my brother here In the jungle beneath the murky waters of a pond.

Go back to the City of Mist. Kill Lord Ghiosk. You will need three groups of 55+ people. Lord Ghiosk is level 53, summons, and has high magic resist. He will drop three books:

Book 1 -- Historic Article, it identifies as "A Book From Ghiosk's Collection"

Neh Ashiir's disappearance will always be cloaked in mystery. We of Torsis have a saying that goes "Neh`s chances". We all know this is used to define an innumerable variable but not many know of its relation to the event in the early years of our fair city. For as many people as there were in Torsis there were that many theories regarding Ne Ashiir's disappearance. Others say there were political tensions between the queen and her lord, so much so that she had to leave to escape death. And for good measure a few pointed to the stars and said that people from beyond the sky took her. One thing all agreed upon however is that the relationship between the royal couple was decaying. Political scrutinizers noted small personal habits between the two implied a separation of intimacy during their public appearances. Many even tie the highly publicized Crusade of Kim into the disappearance of Neh as Kim left the city only a few weeks before. It is recorded in many texts that the visage of Rak`Ashiir reflected his dispair over his wife's vanishing although it is a well know fact that it was mostly an act played by the King to keep up his illusion of nobility. Perhaps one day we will find the truth but at this point it would mean little to the public.

Book 2 -- Head Housekeeper's Log, identifies as "A book From Ghiosk's Collection"

1. New wash basis must be aquired. Servant Hujin will see the Quartermaster and place the order tomorrow.
2. The chandelier in the main hall was finaly repaired tonight. Payment must be sent to the to the contract holder tomorrow.
3. Advisor Snith ordered that I personal find and acquire 3 dozen finely made vials. What they are for he would not explain and was very firm that I do this as quickly as possible. Best to make haste to fulfill the order, rumors abound of the Advisor's mastery of the arcane.
4. We've been low on candles for the last week. There is no explanation for the shortage of wax says our civilian contract holder. Perhaps I should send a Palace Reaver escort with the next pick up crew. The craftsman may have the intelligence to figure the symbolism.

5. It is imperative that we return the High Scale's Icon to the church as discretely as possible. If Rak Ashiir returns from his journey early and discovers it was found in the royal bedroom it may prove disastrous. I cannot decide whether to place it ourselves with help of our Black Guard, or to approach one of our contacts in the church. The less people that know of this better. It might be prudent to ..remove.. the servant who found it within the sheets.

Book 3 -- Crusades of the High Scales, identifies as "A Book from Ghiosk's Collection"

Throughout the history of the High Scale it was common for the knights to practice complete celibacy. It wasn't until the controversial Kim was given the hallowed title that contact between sexes became tolerated. While Kim wasn't the mightiest of the High Scales he was able to achieve many great victories in the name of our Lord of Fear. One being the battle know as the Bone Rending when Kim lost his fabled whip. Thriaxis' Tail, and was still able to defeat scores of his enemies using his hands only. Before this battle many believed Kim could not fulfill his duties as a leader and patriot for the people. However Kim's might and his lecture on the use of females in religious crusade and duty convinced the puclic that celibacy had its place in divinity but non-celibacy also had a place and value within the church. A shrine depicting Kim among many women was constructed in remembrance of his controversial reign although his corpse was never brought back for burial as it was lost far across the ocean among distant brothers in faith

The Spirit Sentinel will have changed spots and is now still in Emerald Jungle but at +3695, -640, in the pond.

You say, 'hail a Spirit Sentinel'

Give him the 3 books from Lord Ghiosk.

Spirit Sentinel says 'Hmmm, it appears the queen's disappearance wasn't as random as we thought. It also looks as if this High Scale were having some sort of affair with Neh. We have little but speculation at this point, so making it known to Nak'Ashiir would do nothing. Perhaps finding the resting place of the High Scale will show us more of what really happened. We suspect the icon mentioned in this log could now be located in the city's old temple. Find the icon and bring it to Kirn, wherever he is. Tell us what you learn afterwards.

You are getting closer to the end! You have to find High Scale Kirn in The Hole. He is at the revenant castle at the top end of the tower. He is pretty obvious once you get to the top of the tower as he stands in the middle of the room in front of you. Kirn spawns in the dead city crypt, in a tower way down.

Give him the High Scale Icon (the one you picked up while doing the Report Information Part).

High Scale Kirn looks down at the icon in his hands for a long moment before speaking. 'Why did you bring me this? Are you here to accuse me of the queen's death?' High Scale Kirn chuckles venomously and continues, 'I am High Scale and beyond your petty laws. However, I wish the truth to be known. On my hand is a ring. If you can take it from me, show it to the queen and she will remember. However, I will not give up the ring easily. Defend yourself!'

The High Scale Kirn will then attack you. You should have atmost 3 groups of level 55+. He has a lot of hitpoints but shouldn't be hard to kill. He will drop the Engraved Ring whic identifies as: Promise Ring of Neh'Ashiir.

Run back to the City of Mist. Give the Ring to Neh'Ashiir.

Neh`Ashiir says 'Nothing is left to hide now. You shall have the truth. But truth is not won easily and if you cannot defeat me, you have not the ability to see that vengeance is served. Brace yourself!

Neh'Ashiir will disappear and reappear aggro. Kill her. She a level 53 wizard that casts wizard spells such as gravity flux. She has a few complete healing potions which can be interrupted with stun spells. Loot a Page from Neh'Ashiir's Diary.

Neh`Ashiir's Diary --

..another bazaar.. I was asked to judge..wrestling contest. It must have been the ten thousandth one... .week. Oh how I grow weary of...political monotony. The earlier days were much..exciting, crusades against..unworthy and smashing our opposition. Kirn's life must be epic indeed. He.. at me again during.. match. Hmmmm.

Go back to the Pond in the Emerald Jungle and give the Diary to the Sentinel Spirit.

Spirit Sentinel says 'So, the truth is found! Nak mourned over the loss of his child instead of relishing the blessing of his god, Cazic-Thule. His wife and the High Scale then abandoned him in disgust, but even that was an aftereffect of what caused the king to turn his back on his faith. The child is the key! If we put the child to rest, Nak may repent of what he has done and the mantle may be lifted. The most difficult task is now at hand. Find the child, then take proof of her passing to Nak. I can feel the mantle's foundation crumbling! Now, go!

Go to the Plane of Fear. Be very quick so that you won't have any run ins with creatures that you don't wish to see. Kill an Iksar Broodling. It is at the little pyramid -630, -360. To get it to spawn you must kill Fright and or Terror, the named golems. This will cause it to spawn. He is level 1 and has 15 hit points. Loot Child`s Tears

Bring the Child's Tears to Rak'Ashiir. He will immediately aggro you. He is best killed with mage fire pets and clerics healing them. The more pets, the quicker he dies.

Give the Scale the the Spirit Sentinel.

Spirit Sentinel says 'What is this? The scale of Rak'Ashiir's father? Then Rak has repented his mistake? But why is the mantle still in place? If Rak has repented, then the mantle should have dissolved since he was the one who initiated its construction. But is its initiation the key? How could we have been so blind? Kirn said Rak'Ashiir had the blood of his people on his hands but that is false. Rak merely pointed to a path that would lead them to destruction. It was the people who chose to follow

You say, 'What is lost'

Spirit Sentinel says 'The mantle was the product of thousands of faithless individuals. Not the single shroud we believed existed. Torsis is now truly cursed for all eternity as a great stain upon the universe. Today is a sad day, indeed. However, some good can still come of this. Your sacrifice and spiritual devotion in this matter have become legendary. You have waited for us at the bottom of the ocean. You have rubbed out a mighty rogue spirit. You have endured the black hole of Torsis and entered the a bode of Fear itself to save a child from eternal suffering. It is only fitting that we reward you with our greatest treasure, the [Spear of Fate].

You say, 'What of the Spear of Fate'

Spirit Sentinel says 'The spear was constructed millennia ago by Thalger, the first human Heyokah. One of the most destructive wasichu of Norrath, Miragul, as he is known, had been traveling the world searching out all known magic. Wherever he went, he discovered and experimented with all forms of dangerous magic. Most of the world cannot even fathom what the Arch Necromancer was capable of. He had haphazardly discovered a way to directly create a mantle of negative spiritual energy similar to what curses Torsis. He himself had willed into existence one of these [black holes].

You say, 'What of thease Black Holes'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Miragul often retreated to the frigid northlands to experiment in solitude. It was here that he created a black hole. Unfortunately for the small tribes of men who made the northlands their home, this new black hole threatened not only their livelihood but their entire existence. The mantle was so powerful it not only drained the spiritual energy of everything within its gaze, it also drained the life force as well. The tribes were threatened with complete annihilation. But one [powerful shaman] stepped forward and struck against Miragul's mantle.

You say, 'What powerful shaman?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Thalger had been the first to pass our tests and the timing was lucky indeed. We supplied him with materials needed to construct a weapon that could pierce the very fabric of the [cosmos]. First, was the sharpened shoulder blade of an ancient lion matriarch. Then Thalger found a young sapling for the shaft and shaped it over the course of 45 days using nothing but his fingernails. He then split the top of the flexible shaft, lodged the blade into place and bound them together with the tanned entrails of an ox. Finally, he adorned the spear with the magical feathers of a an aviak elder.

You say, 'What of the cosmos?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'Miragul's casting was strong but it was a force brought into existence. This force was positive in nature, the opposite of nothingness. Even though it worked like a void, it was still created by an imposition of will. We figured that if we could rupture the planar boundary and create enough anti-existence or non-matter, the mantle might destroy itself. Thalger volunteered immediately to pierce the mantle as no spirits could even get close to it. In one act of devotion and singular purpose, Thalger rode the wind far above the land and with one colossal arch ripped a [breach] across the planes.

You say, 'What of the breach?'

Spirit Sentinel says 'The tear in the fabric of existence created enough negative material to cancel out Miragul's abomination. Thalger's strike was so perfect that he cut just enough planar material to destroy the mantle and nothing else. Unfortunately, Thalger himself was lost in the process. All that was left was the spear that fell from the heavens to the ground where we recovered it. We have kept it since then and now we wish you to have it. When you strike with it, you must have the same singularity of purpose as did Thalger when he defeated Miragul's mantle.

Thank you, Heyokah Golan.

You will receive the Spear of Fate.

The Three Rewards:

Effect: It is a magic based dot which increases in power over time. The exact amount is not known but it is estimated between 1200-1500 points of damage.

WARRIOR EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

Jeweled Dragon Head Hilt

The quest starts in Lake Rathe where you must retrieve the Unjeweled Dragon Head Hilt. It spawns underneath the three aviak spawn tower. If you go straight down underwater and swim to the bottom, you will find the hilt lying there. You don't need enduring breath if you know where the hilt is but it might be safer with it. Next you need one diamond, one black sapphire, and one jacinth. These drop in the planes, high level dungeons such as Karnor's Castle and Sebilis, and can be bought for high prices in trading zones such as Greater Faydark. Take the items to Wenden Blackhammer, a level 50 Dwarf in East Freeport. He will give you back the Jeweled Dragon Head Hilt.

Finely Crafted Dragon Head Hilt

Next, retrieve the Damaged Dragon Head Hilt from the Chessboard in Timorous Deep. The location is -6500, +3000. It spawns at the base of the King Piece. Get a druid to come with you so that they can cast SoW and Levitate. This way you won't have to swim the entire way or loose levitate half way there and have to swim the rest of the way. Evil classes be warned, there is a high elf wizard that roams the area. He is kos to evil classes, and will blast you apart if you get too near him.

Next, get a Giant Sized Monocle from a Mountain Giant Patriarch in the Dreadlands (rare drop). This is a level 47 mountain giant that spawns around the giant fortress. One way to get it to spawn is to kill absolutely everything in the fortress. This can be done easily by a level 55+ warrior with a 35-60 level druid/cleric for heals and regeneration. After everything is killed wait for it to spawn again and then kill them. Continue doing this until the Patriarch spawns. The Patriarch cannot be soloed. You will need one full group of level 47-52. With a full group, he is very easy. These Giants has tons of hit points so be careful when killing them. Take the Monocle to Mentrax Mountainbone in Frontier Mountains. He is at the giant fortress at the very end of the mine. You might have to do a little bit of fighting to get there. Mentrax will give you in return for the Monocle Rejesiam Ore. Next, head to the Plane of Fear. You must loot the Ball of Everliving Golem from either Fright, Terror, or Dread. These are all level 50-52 named golems and personal guards of Cazic-Thule. They spawn at the temple. Take the Hilt, Ore, and Ball back to Wenden Blackhammer and he will give you the Finely Crafted Dragon Head Hilt.

Ancient Sword Blade

Now, go to The Freeport Authority and purchase a Keg of Vox Tail Ale. This will cost only 150-200 platinum depending on your charisma. Now go to Permafrost and kill An Ice Giant. Note: You must kill the Ice Giants in Permafrost. These are level 38-42 and put up for a very hard fight. They hit for over 100 damage rapidly and have tons of hitpoints. A major pain in the butt. Sometimes they will drop A Block of Permafrost. This is one of the items you need. While you are in Permafrost waiting for one to spawn, kill some goblin wizards and loot the heart of frost. You will need it later in the quest. Now, if you have high tinkering skill, create two Rebreathers. If you don't have high tinkering skill, then you can purchase these from players in Greater Faydark. They go for around 2-3k a piece. Turn in the items to Denken Strongpick. He can be found on the aviak island in Ocean of Tears. He will give you the Ancient Sword Blade.

Ancient Blade

The Ancient Blade is dropped by the Queen of Chardok, Queen Velazul. She takes an Uber Guild to kill because she is level 62. She has many followers around her including sorcerers and healers. She is a shaman so she has been AE spells such as high damage spells and poison AE's.

The Red Scabbard

Go to East Freeport and find Kargek Redblade. Hail him and say I will do you a favor. He gives you a wax sealed note. Take this note to Oknoggin Stonesmasher, a named ogre in Feerrott. He can be found standing next to the stone bridge. He will give you a Tiny Lute in return for the note. Take the Lute back to Kargek in exchange for a Book. Take the book to Tenal Redblade in East Karanas. He is at the very end of the canyon next to the ramp to Highpass. This is a very long canyon and you will past many NPCs here. Tenal is the very last one. Tenal will give you a Frozen War Totem. Give him the Frozen War Totem and the Heart of Frost (That you looted while hunting Ice Giants). He will give you the Totem of Fiery War. Now you need a Red Scale. This is most commonly dropped by Lord Nagafen, a level 55 dragon in Nagafen's Lair but can also be found off of Zordakilicus Ragefire in Solusek, or Talendor in Skyfire. Now find the Green Scale from Severilous, a level 60 sarnak dragon in Emerald Jungle. This mean dragon slashes for 500 and has a wolf pet to help him. You need many many groups to kill this monster. There is also a mob in The Hole named Nortlav the Scalekeeper. He is a level 51-55 Erudite that drops the Red Dragon Scale and for the Warrior Epic. He hits for about 190 on average. He has a nasty harmtouch that does around 1500 damage. He also uses harmtouch, and has a high magic resist. Wizard spells Ice Comet and the Lure Line will stick. Necromancer DoTs will also work. In the patch 06.27.01, a new source for the Green Dragon Scale was added. This source has recently been discovered! It drops from Hoshkar in Veeshan's Peak. This dragon is level 65 dragon that can only be killed by very uber guilds. Take the red scale, the green scale, and the Totem of Fiery War and give them to Tenal. Tenal will give you the Mark of the Sword. Now go to The Plane of Hate and kill the level 53 Follower of Innoruuk, Maestro of Rancor. He can be found sitting at his piano. Be careful with this guy because he has a 200 hp AOE lifetap spell. Once he has been killed, a small hand which looks like a frightfinger, will spawn at Maestro's Piano. When killing it, you will need to keep it rooted because it runs very fast when low of health. After you kill this hand, another hand will spawn which is called Hand of the Maestro. This hits hard and has a ton of hp so be prepared for a fairly hard fight. Loot the Hand of Maestro from him which drops every time. This is a rare drop so it might take a few kills to get it. Turn in the Hand and the Mark of the Sword to Tenal for a message to Kargek. Now go to The Plane of Air and kill The Spiroc Lord. This is one of the hardest creatures in Plane of Air. It is level 63 and looks like a rainbow aviak. Take the note and the Spiroc Wingblade looted from the Spiroc Lord to Kargek. He will reward you will the Red Scabbard.

The End

You then take the Blades and the Hilts and you combine them in The Red Scabbard. You then will come out with two 1 handed weapons. You can use these weapons if you are specialized in 1 hand or you can combine those two 1 hand weapons in the scabbard again and get one two handed weapon. Notice: All effects on weapons are proced, therefor they will work only while in combat.

WIZARD EPIC QUEST WALKTHROUGH

The Beginning

The Wizard Epic Quest is started by talking to Solomen (Level 40) within the Temple of Solusek Ro. Entrance is in Lavastorm location (+800, +228). Solomen is a human wizard located on the left portion of the temple, third floorm between the two undead knights, one room away from Lord Seafire. Here is what you say:

Start by saying "hail Solomen."

He will respond, "Ah, I see you have found my study. This is where I study and scribe the history of magic in Norrath."

Say, "What history?"

Solomen says, "I have worked to chronicle everything from the beginnings of magic to what we consider the modern day of magic. Solusek Ro has been very generous to those who wield magic in Norrath. But throughout history there is one thing I have noticed - too much power corrupts the soul. I have seen and documented that the strongest wizards and those closest to Solusek Ro become corrupted by their power."

You says, "What Wizards?"

Solomen responds, "Unfortunately, I don't have time to speak of such things right now. But I could use your help since you are here. I have here an envelope that I need delivered to one Camin Rah. You can find Camin in the wizard tower in the city of Erudin. He is a sage like myself whose knowledge rivals my own. Do you [agree] to undertake my task?."

You say, 'I agree.'

Solomen says 'Here you are, then. Good luck on your journey.

Solomen then gives you a note that you must give to Camin.

Camin

Now you must head to the City of Erudin and find Camin. He can be found at the Vasty Deep Inn. To find him, simply open the front door and go up the stairs to your right. Go down the hall and open the first door on your left. Camin will be behind the door. He is normally indifferent or apprehensive to everyone. Hand him the note that Solomen gave to you and your faction with TrueSpirit will increase.

Camin with say, "So you have met Solomen, eh? He is a man with a wealth of knowledge. It is good to hear he is well."

Hail Camin and he will respond, "Go away! I have no time for you!" If this does happen then you must raise your faction with TrueSpirit. There is no confirmed way to do this put some wizards have handed him 1000 platinum and it did the trick. You are not able to hand him the note over and over again to raise faction with TrueSpirit. This was nerfed since the patch on 10/03/00. You need to be warmly with him and then hail him again.

Then say, "What are you searching for?"

Camin says "Ah! A smart one, I see! If you really wish to know about such a thing, you will have to help me finance my studies. The knowledge I have acquired and researched did not come cheaply."

Hand Camin 1000 platinum pieces and yes it is confirmed that you must do this.

Once you have handed him the money he will reply, "Good, good, you show a willingness to learn of this with your offer. What I can tell you is that Solusek Ro had four followers who had shown exceptional aptitude in the arts of wizardry. Solusek Ro himself tutored them. He considered them to be like his own children. I know of one who still exists. He goes by the name of Arantir Karondor. He used to specialize in the storing of magic into physical objects. Arantir has been hiding for many, many years and will most assuredly be going by another name, so keep your eyes open. Anyway, be off, I need to continue my research. Return to me if you ever find Arantir Karondor."

Arantir Karondor

Now to find Arantir Karondor. There is a female NPC vendor in Halas named Dargon that sells a potion called Ro's Breath. She is located in front of the Shaman guild. Purchase this potion from Dargon for the sum of about 900pp to 1100pp depending on your faction and charisma. Now take this potion back to Camin in Erudin and hand it to him. He will reply with the following:

Camin says 'Very interesting... I've seen this work before. Yes, yes! It's the work of Arantir Karondor! Give this back to the person you got it from. Maybe he will have a clue to Arantir's location.'

Camin gives you back the potion (it has now been stripped of it's Shield of Lava charge) and you must take it back to Dargon in Halas. Note: you cannot skip the previous trip to Camin. You absolutely, must hand the potion to Camin. If you try to skip the trip to Erudin, you will get the following message from Dargon: "I didn’t request this item, but thank you very much".

Back in Halas, hand the Ro's Breath potion back to Dargon. She will turn into blue robe adorned, Arantir Karondor and reply with:

Dargon says 'So, I've been discovered! You must know Camin - he is one of the only people who could have recognized my work. I have worked very hard to mask my presence here.'

You say, 'hail Arantir Karondor'

Arantir Karondor says 'Before I tell you anything, I require you to help me. Seek a woman named Challice. Give her this letter and then return to me.'

Arantir's Ring

The letter that Arantir hands you is actually a ring called Arantir's Ring. Identifying it reveals: "Item Lore: My love has no bounds.". Challice is found in the basement of the Felwithe paladin guild. Remember that Arantir will despawn in three minutes. So if you want him to stay there while you go to Felwithe, have a friend stay with Arantir and continue to talk to him while you are gone. If he does despawn then you must wait for another wizard to make him spawn. Once in Felwithe, hand Challice the ring and she will reply with:

"Oh yes? Arantir? What a fool he was! The man gave me everything, but for all his intelligence, he could never understand why I was truly with him. It was for his power; he could do anything. But when he mysteriously lost it, he became just another toy. I never loved him. Return this ring to him. He will understand that I have no desire to see him again."

She then returns to you a new ring that you must take to Arantir/Dargon. It does not matter if you give the ring to Dargon if Arantir has despawned. If you do this, Arantir will respawn. Then hail him.

"Ah, but it pains my heart to see this. How I could love a women like that is beyond me. And yet, I still do love her. It was on the day I was to ask her to marry me that I lost my powers. When I was about to cast my greatest spell to prove my love to her, my magic failed. She ran out on me that day. But enough of me, do you wish to hear my story?"'

You say, "I wish to hear your story."

Arantir Karondor says "I once was one of four true followers of Solusek Ro. So great were the four of us that Solusek Ro himself made us each a special item. We did not know what the others' items were, but we realized that was for our own safety. Each one of us, after receiving the item, began to plot against Solusek Ro. Each of us believed we had enough power to dominate Norrath. Solusek Ro saw this and at the time we needed our powers most, he stripped us of them. Now I know two of the other wizards by name. One was called Sylen Tyrn, the other's name was Demunir Scry. The last wizard was a gnome, but I can't think of his name."

Sylen Tyrn - Blue Crystal Staff

You say, "What about Sylen Tyrn?"

Arantir Karondor says "Sylen was a high elf wizard, and like many high elves, he believed himself to be better than others. Because of his birth, he thought he was more noble and more intelligent than anyone else. I heard how met his demise - while flying over a vast area of water, his powers were stripped from him in midflight. He fell and was captured by a rival wizard who specialized in magics of the water. Search for that wizard and you could find a trace of Sylen."

The trace of Sylen Tyrn can be found on the Phinigel Autropos in Kedge Keep. The item he means is he Blue Crystal Staff. The Phinigel Autropos is a level 50 Wizard. He is actually quite easy to kill. If you have support, this part isn't hard to do. Phinny spawns every 14 hours. He is surrounded by guards, that can be solo pulled by 60. Phinny can be done with one well structured group of level 58s plus. There are many tactics to killing Phinny. The most used and most reliable is single pulling the guardians fast. They repop every 20 minutes so if you don't go fast enough, you will have to start over. Once they are dispatched, pull Phinny. He himself isn't very hard to kill. It helps to have someone to slow. If you are doing this with one group, you need a shaman, enchanter, warrior, cleric, yourself, and preferably a damage meleer such as a monk, rogue, or ranger.

Demunir Scry - Gnarled Staff

You say, 'What about Demunir Scry?'

Arantir Karondor says 'Demunir was a human in a rush for power. He was extremely intelligent and resourceful but, unfortunately, was more interested in destructive magic. Hearing of an ancient land, he immediately traveled to it, believing there to be powerful relics left undiscovered there. While exploring, he came upon a dwelling that housed a powerful warrior. Believing himself to be more powerful, he attempted to take this dwelling for himself. While in battle with this warrior, Solusek Ro stole his powers and left him helpless. It is said that Demunir's item is the warrior's most prized trophy."

The item you need this time is the Gnarled Staff dropped off of Venril Sathir in Karnor's Castle, the leader of the Iksar Empire. He is a 55 Warrior with approximately 18000 hitpoints. This is hardly anything, but his regeneration is amazing. You basically have to kill him within the first 20 seconds, or else it is hard to win the fight. Our guild usually downs him in 8-10 seconds. You have to realize that 18khp is hardly anything. He has 2 personal clerics with heal him and never seem to run out of mana. It might be smart to have a designated group that would kill these before helping the other groups with Venril. The best type of spells to cast on him are cold and fire because he doesn't have as strong resistances in those type of spells. He has 1000 lifetap punches which can be very dangerous also. Basically, you need a strong guild to kill him and be able to loot the staff, if it drops. Venril is on a 68-72 hour spawn.

The Gnome - Staff of Gabstik

You say, "What about the gnome?" If he doesn't reply, say:

"Who is the gnome?"

Arantir Karondor says 'Ah, the gnome I know very little about. I know he was small and crafty, and that he had a brother. His brother's craft was that of making fireworks, and he was the unfortunate victim of one of his own experiments. His firework exploded, leaving his mind diminished in capacity, even for a gnome. I remember others calling him 'Old Stewpot' in jest. I do not know if this is his birth name, but it may help you to locate him. I hear he also stays close to water because of the explosion. You never know when another gnomish invention will go awry. Give him this letter to help motivate him to remember."

The gnome Arantir Karondor is talking about is Kandin Firepot in Butcherblock. His location is -1500, +2800, near the ocean. There is now a new way you can get the Staff of Gabstik and the note to Arantir. This is a quest that I read up on at Graffe's. Instead of handing Kandin the note from Arantir, hail him:

You say, 'hail Kandin Firepot'

Kandin Firepot says 'Hello, there! Don't have time to talk. I'm workin', workin', workin'! Careful! Don't slip in the oil!

You say, 'what oil?'

Kandin Firepot says 'Ah the oil! I recently sent a specially crafted golem to explore through a huge portal to another plane. It's instructions were to collect special oil that I suspect existed in the plane. What I think is the golem broke down. This looks like a good task for one like you. Go see what's wrong with the golem. Here is spare gears of mine incase it's broken. Be careful though, if you put it in wrong it could explode or worse!

The golem he speaks of is called a broken golem in the Plane of Fear. His location is-720, -109. Give him the spare gears from Kandin:

an enraged golem says 'Error! Malfunction! Destroy!
an enraged golem says 'Warriors like you always bring out the worst in me.'

Now in the place of the broken golem is an enraged golem. He double hits for 400 and has around 150k hit points. You will need many tanks and clerics. Casters are not necessary, but they can sometimes but a dent into his hp. He does not cast so you don't need to worry about resists. When he dies, loot the green oil from his corpse. Return this to Kandin.

Kandin Firepot says 'Oh wow! You found the oil! Where is the golem? You didn't hurt him did you? I am very fond of him. Anyways, here is your reward a note and staff to give to that guy you were asking me about.

You will now have the note to Arantir and the Staff of Gabstik.

The Ending

Take the note from Kandin to Dargon and give it to her for Arantir to spawn. Then hail him:

You say, "hail Arantir Karondor"

Arantir Karondor says "Ah yes, you again. Do you have the items? Give me the three you possess and I'll combine them with my own."

Now give Arantir all of the three staves, the Blue Crystal Staff, the Gnarled Staff, and the Staff of Gabstik. MAKE SURE THEY ARE THE RIGHT ONES! Some of these staves icons look like other staves that aren't needed in the quest. If you give him the wrong ones then you will have to start over.

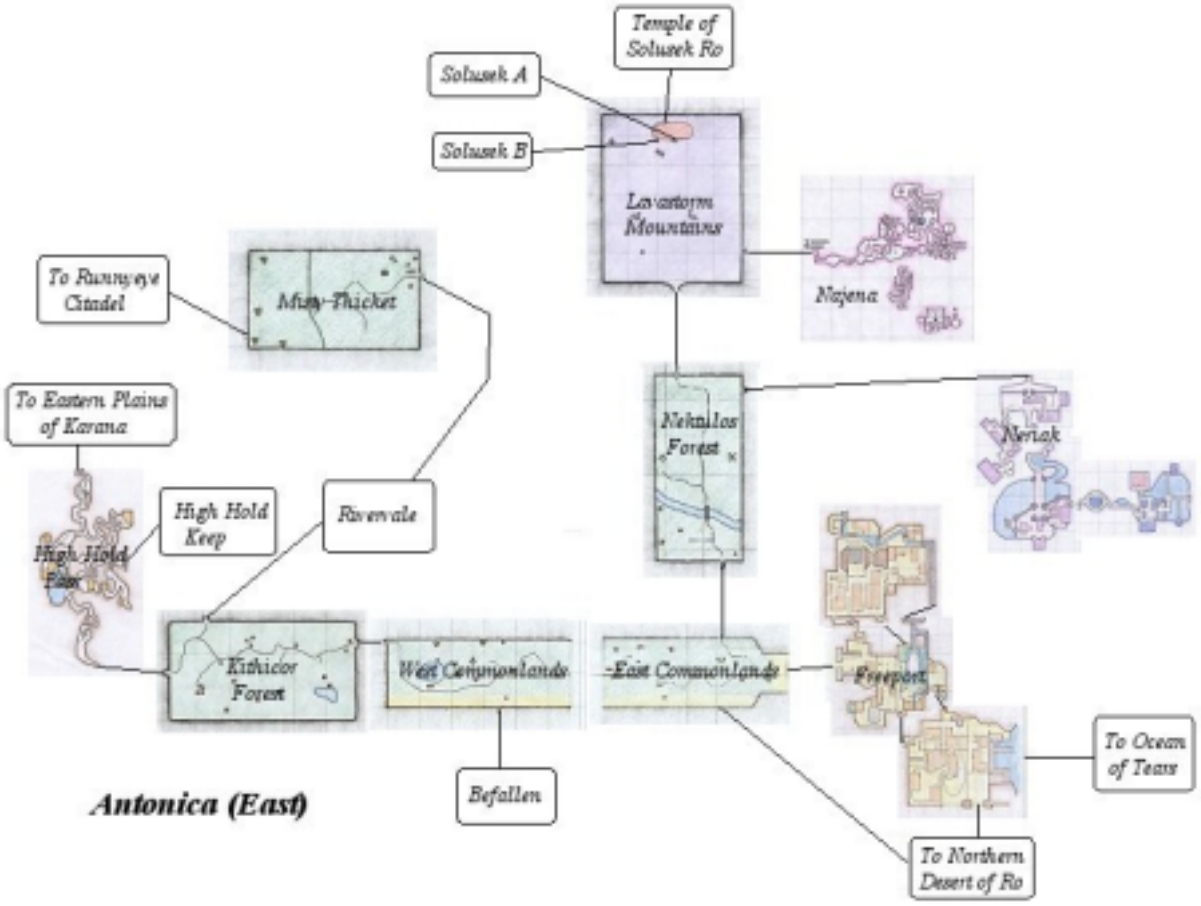

Arantir Karondor says 'Here, this pack contains all of our items. You will never be able to open it again, so you must deliver the pack, intact, to Solomen. He will then reward you. Now that I have helped you, leave me in peace.

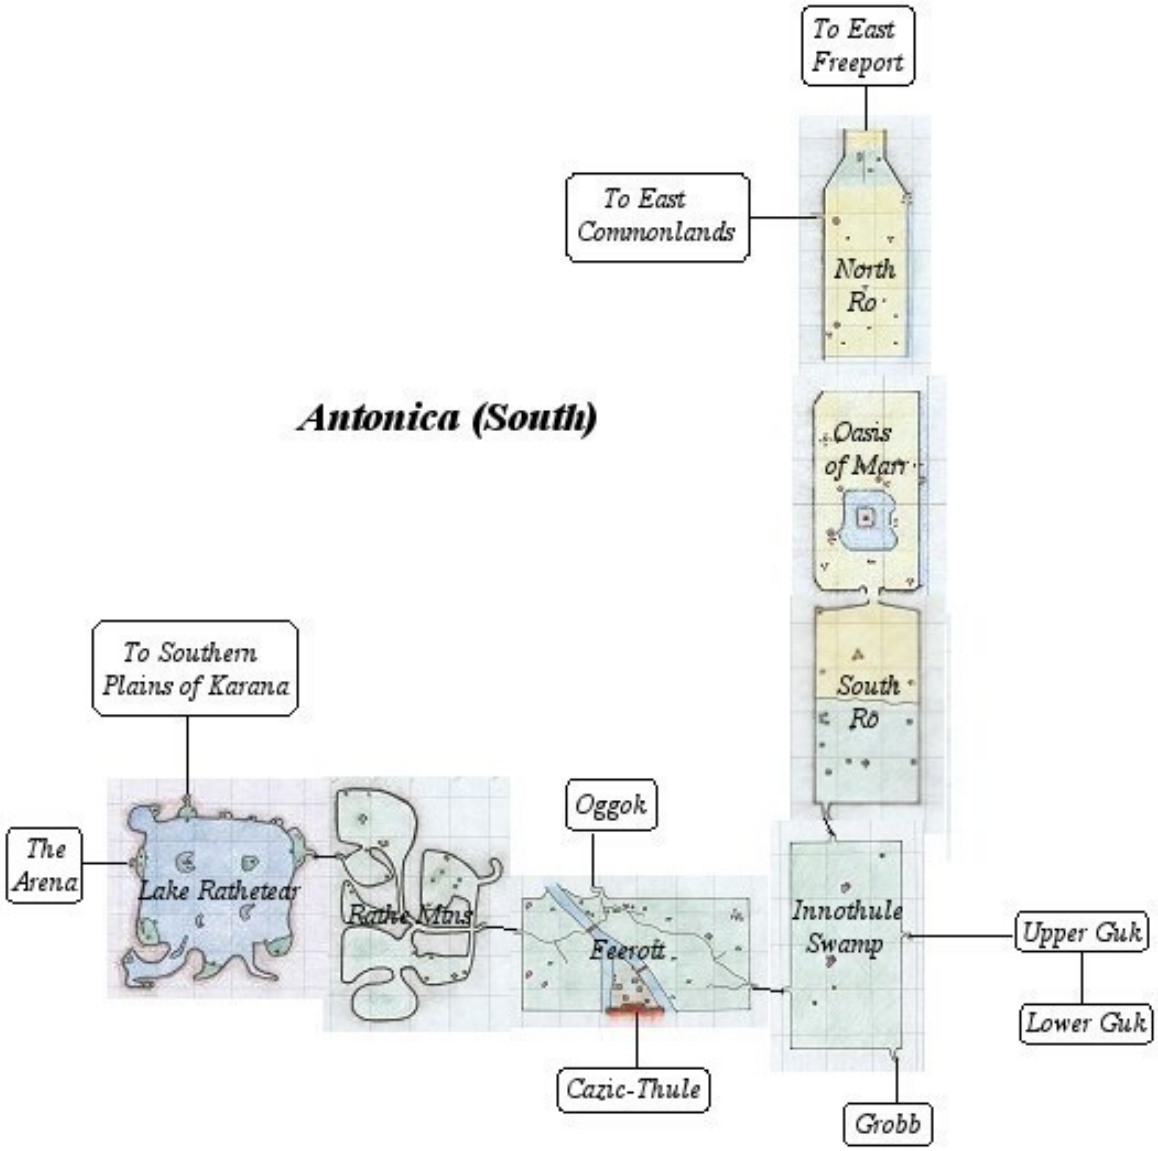

Now go back to Solomen and give him the bag. He will then give you the final epic weapon, The Staff of Four.

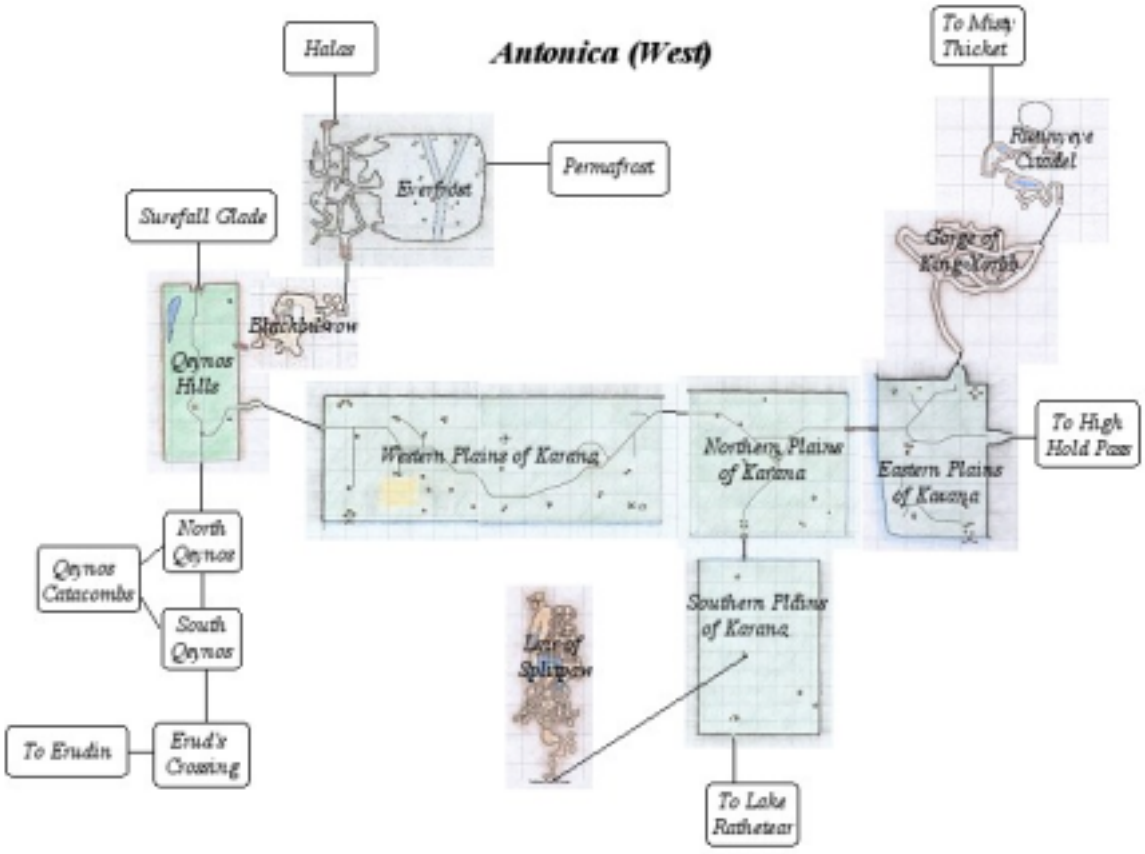

The effect is right click based and is a self only 800 damage absorbent. AWESOME! It lasts for 1 hour 40 minutes and also gives a minor effect of clarity which is stackable with the clarity line, manaskin, and harvest.

GUIDE TO TRADE SKILLS

Introduction

If you've never tried a trade skill before, there are a several things that you should know.

- Remember that training points can only be spent on trade skills early on. Once you hit a skill of 21 in the standard trade skills, you MUST gain skill increases through hands-on-practice.
- While tradeskills in EQ increase with practice, trade skills cost you money (in supplies), regardless of success or failure. For the more expensive skills (such as jewelcraft), it's wise to not only stockpile some money in advance, but also spend the training points to get to skill 20 before trying the skill.
- Low-level players: Before you even train in a trade skill, you should check to be sure that the materials you will need to practice your skill are available nearby. If they are not easily available, you have to make a hard decision -- do you want to try the skill anyway or do you want to try another trade skill? For example, if you want to bake, and the only baking supplies within the nearest several zones are batwings, you'll realize you're going to be running through a lot of zones to get some of your more basic supplies. This isn't meant to discourage you, but to make sure you don't spend a lot of training points before you realize the scope of the task ahead of you. (Higher level players tend to move around a lot, so this isn't as much of an issue for them.)
- If you're getting a failure rate that will rapidly bankrupt you, find something that trivials closer to your current skill to practice on. (i.e., don't try to make a silver sapphire necklace the first time you try jewelcraft).
- For everything but fishing, sell your goods to other players as opposed to NPC merchants where possible. If you sell to NPCs, you rarely will be paid what the raw materials cost you, much less the value of the item. For example, you'd get slightly over 1 gold for a piece of patchwork armor, when sold to an NPC merchant. The going rate when selling directly to players is generally 2 gold or so, depending on supply/demand and individual whimsy.
- When a recipe calls for two or more of a single item, DO NOT STACK the items. Have two (or more) single pieces of the item in your forge, brew barrel, etc., not one pile of two. Stacked items count as a single item! If you put a stack of 20 of an item in the tradeskill container during a combine, the container will count them as a single item, and "eat" the extra.

- The main trade skills are not level-capped, meaning that with enough time and raw materials, you could master the tradeskill at level 1. Other special skills, such as fishing, make poison, and alchemy are limited based on your level, just like your combat and other skills.
- When you see mention of a "trivial" on a chart, it means that at that skill level, you will no longer gain skill increases from making the item. You will, however, still continue to fail quite a bit when making the item. Just because something is trivial does not mean you can do it in your sleep. Eventually, as your skill improves, your chance of failing at making the item will decrease, but there's generally always a chance of failure. (silk swatches and silk thread are an exception to this). In addition, there are many spots on the recipes pages where items are listed as <=X or >Y (or a combination of the two). Please remember that: "<=" means less than or equal to -- all we know about the trivial is that someone of X skill attempted the item and it was already trivial. It may be that the trivial is 1 point below it, or it may be 100 points below. The only way we find such trivials is by folks reporting in their skill levels and trivial status after they make combine attempts. Similarly, if you see ">", it means greater than -- someone at Y skill attempted the combine, and it was not trivial. Again, there's no way to easily tell if the trivial is 1 point or 100 points above that in trivial unless folks actually report in their results.
- Grandmaster: Grandmaster (GM) in a tradeskill is generally considered someone with a skill of 200+ in a specific tradeskill. Of the 7 main tradeskills (baking, brewing, fletching, jewelcraft, pottery, smithing, tailoring) you may only have one of them above 200 (up to 250), while the rest are capped at 200. Some folks reserve the grandmaster title only for folks who have obtained skill 250 in their tradeskill of choice
- Specialized tradeskills are capped separately. Regardless of whether another skill is above 200 or not, other specialized tradeskills are as follows: Alchemy 130 before level 51, 180 at 51+; Poison Making 200 pre-51, 250 post-51; Tinkering 250, Fishing 200

Alchemy

I am a shamaness, a spiritdancer, from the frozen northlands. Over the years, the spirits have spoken to me of many things, but one of the more interesting and unique things they have taught me is the magic of herbs and potions.

With the knowledge granted by the spirits, as well as the proper herbs, a shaman of 25 trainings or more can mix powerful potions with the use of a medicine bag. The resultant potions have a variety of uses, from the popular "Blood of the Wolf" potion which grants the imbiber the Spirit of the Wolf, to the "Ants Potion" that will shrink the drinker, regardless of their location. Some grant a fleeting strength, others invisibility to undead, or a blistering damage shield. The very skilled elder shaman can even create potions that will gate the drinker to a specific location.

Most of these herbs must be painstakingly collected and prepared in order to retain their magical properties. Only a few souls have remembered the proper collection and preparation techniques. Because of this, herbs you find on your own in the wild do not work. Instead, you must seek out certain skilled herbalists to obtain the wares needed. Be forewarned, their wares are not cheap, and this skill is not for the faint-of-heart, or the empty of pocket.

The spirits are also sparing in their knowledge, and limit your rate of skill increase based on your level of learning (i.e., there is a level cap to this skill). Apparently too much power in the hands of the untrained can be dangerous, and lead to disastrous side-effects.

Once you have learned how to create potions using your newfound skill, you may find yourself afloat in potions that do not pack together nicely. Again, the spirits have seen to our needs. Tailors may make bearskin potion bags from the thick pelts of grizzlies, using strong silk thread to stich and bind it. These potion bags, can be used to combine 5 or 10 of the same potion together to create a single multiple-charge potion. This currently only works for potions made by a shaman, not store-purchased potions, but the combining in the potion bag can be performed by anyone.

At times, you may find that your alchemical skill will be called upon to create extracts for armor dyes as well, though you'll find that if your alchemy skill is weak, you'll end up wasting the components instead of making a colorful extract.

The Initial Step:

Alchemy is a shaman-only skill which shamans of level 25 or higher can learn, gaining the unique ability to make potions. Unfortunately, unless you like throwing away money, the skill cap on alchemy is so low at level 25 that you'll likely fail on most attempts to make potions and lose your platinum very fast.

What is the skill cap on Alchemy? Put simply . . .

(Your character level minus 24) times 5

Hence, at level 25 the maximum alchemy skill you can achieve is 5 or [(25-24)*5]. At level 26 the maximum skill is 10 or [(26-24)*5], and so on.

Since the easiest potions become trivial at 17 skill, we recommend that you reach level 29 before attempting any Alchemy. The trainer at any shaman guild will allow you to put 21 initial practice points into alchemy skill, but no more. This is true whether or not you actually put any training points in before 21. Skill above that level must be obtained "in the field", which means to get further skill increases above 21 you will need to attempt to make potions. So unless you'd prefer to throw several hundred plat getting there the hard way, be sure you've saved 21 guild practice points by the time you hit level 29.

The Influence of Stats:

Originally the general consensus was that Intelligence helped you gain skill faster, while wisdom helped you successfully create items more often. This is incorrect.

When the Ruins of Kunark Guide came out, it explained that Intelligence affects how fast you learn many skills. For a necromancer, wizard, magician, enchanter, shadow knight or bard, it also affects maximum mana at each level. Wisdom affects how fast you learn specific skills. For a ranger, paladin, cleric, shaman or druid, it also affects maximum mana at each level.

This is still not terrifically precise. Further clarification on the official message boards and at various fan faires has led to the current, statistically supported belief:

Whichever attribute is higher, intelligence or wisdom, determines your rate of skill increases. So, if your wisdom is 200 it does not matter whether your intelligence is 50, 100, or 150. Likewise if your intelligence is 200, any wisdom under that does not matter as far as alchemy is concerned. However, since wisdom is important for shamans to increase our mana pool, the logical thing is to focus on getting your wisdom up and completely ignore intelligence. Your rate of success has nothing to do with stats and can only be improved by improving your skill in alchemy. This, of course, can only be done by actually practicing to get it up higher or by acquiring an item that gives a % bonus to alchemy.

To Make your First "In the Field" Potion:

1) Go to the Herb Vendor of your choice. (Check the Alchemy Vendor List for vendor names and locations).

2) Choose a potion to make. You will have a better chance of succeeding at one with a low trivial, so use the Prices Chart sorted by trivial as your guide. Just be sure that your chosen potion is not trivial below your current skill if you chose to put training points into alchemy before starting.

3) Check the recipe for the potion you've selected on the Alchemy Recipes page and purchase 5 or 6 of each of the two required herbs.

4) Purchase a Medicine Bag from the same vendor.

5) With the Medicine Bag in one of your 8 general inventory slots, right click on it to open it.

6) Place one of each of the herbs you purchased in step 3 into the Medicine Bag and hit "Combine". Note: For this level of potions, there should only be two kinds of herbs (for example, one Lucern herb and one Birthwart herb if you're attempting to make one Lesser Vigor potion) in your Medicine Bag when you hit "Combine". If you put a stack of 2 or more herbs into the Medicine Bag, it will be treated as one herb when you combine. So putting in a stack of Lucern and a stack of Birthwart will give you only one potion if you succeed.

7) After hitting Combine, you will receive one of five possible messages and success/failure outcome combinations in making a potion as follows:*

a) You fail and receive a message indicating you do not have the skill to make that potion. (Unfortunate, but it happens...a lot.)

b) You will fail and receive a message indicating your skill in alchemy has increased. (Yay! You are getting better!)

c) You will succeed in making the potion and receive a message indicating you have created something new, but receive no indication of whether the potion is trivial, which means it is not trivial yet. (Good work, you are a succesful alchemist!)

d) You will succeed in making the potion and receive a message indicating your skill in alchemy has increased. (Two rewards, excellent!)

e) You will succeed in making the potion and receive a message indicating that you can no longer advance in skill from making this item, which means the potion is now trivial for you to make. (Time to move on to the next harder potion!)

Optional Method #1: Blood of the Wolf

It has been suggested by some shamans that making only the Blood of Wolf potions from skill 21 through 37 (trivial level for Blood of Wolf) would provide the alchemist with a more viable product for sale to the public, thereby decreasing their learning costs as they can recoup their platinum. This is a valid method and you may want to choose this method of increasing your alchemy skill. What generally happens when using this method is your inventory becomes overloaded with Blood of the Wolf potions (commonly referred to as SoW potions), forcing the shaman to sell quickly to clear up enough space to continue making more potions and gain more skill increases. Naturally, this tends to deflate the price charged in zones with the herb vendors. I've often seen shamans selling SoW potions in Firiona Vie for 8 platinum per potion which, when you consider failure rates, is very close to actual cost of making the SoW potions. It's all about supply and demand. SoW is in high demand which tends to push the price up, but by overloading supply in the SoW zones with herb vendors, the price is pushed down, at least in those zones. Either method of increasing skill is valid, but as much as I hate to see one of our best potions get undersold, I too would recommend the Blood of Wolf method to increase skill from 21 to 37 to save the shaman some money in the learning process. Naturally, if you're the only shaman in the zone selling SoW at that time, you can still charge a fair market rate for the potions and will likely recover a greater amount of platinum for furthering your skill, although it might take a little longer to sell out your inventory.

Optional Method #2: Dye Extracts

High end smiths use dyes to tint fine plate armor any of a variety of colors. Part of the process of creating a dye requires a shaman using alchemy or a rogue using poison making to turn the raw material into an extract of the appropriate color. Anyone can then turn the extract into the appropriate dye. The great thing is that the extracts are trivial at 36 and only cost 2-3 silver pieces for ingredients. The downside is that one of those ingredients is not standard vendor stock anywhere, so you will have to either do some Merchant Mining or spend time collecting the ingredients from creatures and ground spawns. I highly recommend this method to get you from 21 to 36 if you are of the right level to be hunting in the areas where any extract ingredients are collected, or if you are really strapped for cash. For recipes see the Alchemy Recipes - Dyes or see the Dye Information for drop information and other details on use.

What Do I Do With the Potions I Made?:

You have three basic choices:

1) Sell them to other players. The going rate is typically twice the cost of the component herbs that go into it. This varies somewhat according to the usefulness and difficulty of the potion, but is a good rule of thumb. See the Alchemy Prices guide for a handy reference to actual cost per attempt.*

2) Sell them back to the vendor for about one tenth of what you paid for the component herbs.*

3) Destroy or drink them.

Using the references on this website as a guide to trivial levels, recipes and herbs, and as you level your shaman up and raise your skill cap, pick the next harder potion to make, taking into account herb price differences in similar-level potions, and go for it!

A Brief History of Alchemy

In the beginning, there were two kinds of herb vendors. One was found in some shaman cities and had a set of herbs that each could be combined with a different dropped item, like a rat ear or undead froglok tongue. The other type of vendor was the gypsy vendors, found in gypsy camps across Antonica. They had a different, smaller set of herbs that each also could be combined with a different kind of dropped giant toe to make other potions.

However, shaman guild trainers across Norrath refused to train their pupils in the fine art of alchemy. It was well nigh a year before they received their instructions from On High ensuring that they would finally consent to teach us the fundamentals of alchemy. The herbs and potions at the time also were extremely expensive and of very limited usefulness. (One of them with an herb cost of more than 30pp and requiring a drop from the Plane of Hate had the oh-so-powerful effect of Endure Magic.) Therefore, when our guildmasters were fixed so that we could train, our line of potions available was completely changed in the revamp.

All of the old shaman city vendor herbs were removed entirely, effectively removing access to those potions. Only the gypsy vendors remained and their potions continued to work. In the cities, the old herb vendors were replaced by a whole new set of herbs that took up two vendors because there were so many. These are the herbs that are most familiar to folks nowadays, the ones that can make sow potions and invis to undead potions. For these potions, no dropped component is required, they are made entirely via herbs bought from the vendors.

Thus the world remained, with Revamp Alchemy and Gypsy Alchemy composing the entire line of alchemy available. Until Luclin.

With the advent of Luclin two additional sets of potions were added to a shaman's menu. First was a whole new set of potions with brand new effects. These include the mana potions and grow potion. These herbs are available in a few different places, all in Luclin. The other set of potions...well, shamans exploring Shar Vahl came across these strange herbs with naggingly familiar names...until it hit them. Old Alchemy. Now available in Shar Vahl are the herbs used to make potions from the old, original, pre-revamp alchemy. These are the ones that required the drops like rat ears and undead froglok tongues.

And this is where it stands, with four lines of alchemy potions:

1. Old Alchemy (requires dropped ingredients, herbs only found in Shar Vahl)
2. Gypsy Alchemy (requires dropped ingredients, herbs only found on gypsies)
3. Revamp Alchemy (no dropped ingredients, herbs found in many places)
4. Luclin Alchemy (no dropped ingredients, herbs found only on Luclin)

Bearskin Potion Bag

NOTE: The May 8th, 2002 patch changed the recipe for the bearskin potion bag. Instead of the "grizzly bear skin" we now need a "thick grizzly bear skin". The "grizzly bear skin" still drops but is for a Freeport quest and cannot be used to make any kind of potion bag.

This is the tailored container that allows shamans (or anyone else for that matter) to combine several of the same potion in quantities of 5 or 10 into a single, multi-charge potion.If you do not tailor and do not wish to learn, ask your local tailor to make it for you. It trivials at 68 skill for tailors.

How to Use the Bearskin Potion Bag:

The bag will only combine identical potions into multi-dose potions in sets of 5 or 10. Dissimilar potions or combining potions in a quantity other than 5 or 10 will not work.

1) Make 5 or 10 of the same kind of potion
2) Place 5 or 10 of those potions you just made into the Bearskin Bag
3) Hit Combine

There is no skill check for combining potions in the Bearskin Bag, so as long as you use like potions in quantities of 5 or 10, you should never fail.

How to Use Multi-Charge Potions:

Just right-click to use the potion like you normally would. But now, instead of the potion disappearing, it will have one less charge to it. When you use the final charge, the potion will disappear. You can left-click a potion at any time to see how many charges remain.

Note: You cannot combine herbs in the Bearskin Bag, only potions. You will therefore need to keep both your Medicine Bag (to make potions) and your Bearskin Potion Bag (to combine potions into the 5 or 10 charge varieties).

Frequently Asked Questions

Who can make potions with alchemy?

Alchemy is a shaman-only skill.

When can I start working on alchemy? When should I start working on alchemy?

You can start once your shaman is level 25. However, many shaman wait until they are level 29. See our guide on Beginning Alchemy for more information.

Is there a skill cap on alchemy? What is the formula?

Yes. The formula for alchemy skill cap is:

(Your level minus 24) times 5.

See our guide on Beginning Alchemy for more information.

What do the individual herbs cost?

See our Herb Prices guide for detailed prices on herbs throughout Norrath.

Where can I buy herbs?

See our Herb Vendors guide for a complete list of known herb vendors throughout Norrath.

Where do I find the recipes for known alchemy potions?

See our Recipes and Effects page for detailed recipes and effects.

What are the best potions to make in order to increase my alchemy skill?

Try to find a balance between potion trivial and herb component cost, taking into consideration those potions that sell best to players (Blood of Wolf, Invisibility to Undead and Shrink, etc.)

Also, see our guide on Beginning Alchemy for more information.

What attribute has the greatest effect on alchemy success rates and skill increases?

Wisdom.

See our guide on Beginning Alchemy for more information.

Where do I find the various dropped ingredients used for certain alchemy potions?

For the most part, you can figure out what drops a given item by the name of the item itself. Werewolves drop werewolf pelts and fire giants drop fire giant toes. Some of them are not as obvious, however, or are downright misleading. Vampire dust is only dropped by vampires in the Plane of Hate. Consult our guide to Dropped Ingredient Locations if you're not sure. If you cannot yet kill that kind of creature or cannot easily get to them, try checking vendors near those creatures to see if players have sold some off.

What the recipe for regular Invisibility potions?

There is currently no known recipe for making regular Invisibility potions in alchemy. However, they and other non-alchemy potions can be vendor purchased in virtually every city throughout Norrath at a potion merchant.

What is the best price to charge players for potions?

Market prices for one charge of a potion are typically twice the cost of the component herbs for one attempt. Some shamans give a discount for customers buying 5 or 10 charged potions, or for potions that are hard to sell. Others increase the price if they are have plenty of customers or if they are providing some extra service, such as selling the potions in a remote location.

See our guide to Alchemy Prices for more information.

How do I make five-shot and ten-shot potions?

Combine 5 or 10 of the same type of alchemy potion in a tailored bearskin potion bag.

How do I make extracts and dyes for Fine Steel Plate armor?

See the Dye Recipes

What Do Alchemy Potions Do?

In order to take full advantage of this intriguing aspect to Everquest, a complete understanding of exactly what each potion will do is crucial.

When Verant first revamped the old alchemy into the new alchemy, many shamans on many servers spent untold hours and many thousands of platinum discovering its secrets by trial and error. Many potions have been discovered, and there are likely others still to be discovered. For the time being, we do have quite a few potions (59 at last count) to work with.

The following information will be vital in determining which potions you might need, and which you do not.

Potion Categories

There are essentially three broad catagories of potions discovered so far:

1) Stat-enhancing potions (adjusts three stats from among Strength, Stamina, Agility, Dexterity and/or Charisma)

2) Aura-enhancing potions (adjusts two stats from among Strength, Stamina, Agility, Dexterity and/or Charisma, AND adjusts one stat from among Disease Resist, Poison Resist, Heat Resist or Cold Resist)

3) Utility potions (provides you with some special, useful ability)

Stat-Enhancing Potions

Varieties:

All Stat-Enhancing Potions adjust two stats upward (favorably) and one stat downward (unfavorably), and come in six known varieties:

1) Stability (strength, stamina and agility)

2) Vigor (agility, strength and stamina)

3) Power (dexterity, strength and stamina)

4) Adroitness (agility, stamina and dexterity)

5) Cohesion (stamina, dexterity and agility)

6) Accuracy (agility, dexterity and stamina)

TIP: Pick a stat that you can take a negative "hit" on, and then determine if the two positive stat "buffs" will be beneficial to you in a given situation.

Potencies:

Each of the above stat-enhancing potions comes in three potency levels:

1) Lesser Stat Potions (+ 5, + 5, - 5)

2) Regular Stat Potions (+ 10, + 10, - 10)

3) Greater Stat Potions (+ 15, + 25, - 20)

TIP: The more powerful the stat adjustment means the more expensive the herbs to make it will be, increasing the likelihood of occasional shaman failure in making (just like gold or platinum jewelcraft has higher failure rates than silver or electrum jewelry) and therefore, the higher the end-potion price will be.

Aura-Enhancing Potions

Varieties:

In similar fashion to stat-enhancing potions, aura-enhancing potions come in five known varieties, each variety adjusting two stats favorably, an one stat unfavorably:

1) Aura of Heat (stamina, cold resist and strength)

2) Aura of Cold (agility, heat resist and stamina)

3) Aura of Purity (strength, poison resist and chrsm)

4) Aura of Null (dexterity, magic resist and agility)

5) Aura of Antibody (chrsm, disease resist and dexterity)

TIP: Pick a stat you can afford to take a negative "hit" on, then determine if the stat and aura positive "buffs" will enhance your character in a given situation. Example: Aura of Purity is great for melee battle since the negative charisma won't effect combat outcome. If you're fighting a poisoning mob, so much the better Purity becomes.

TIP: Aura's of Cold and Heat might be a "must" before tackling Vox or Naggy. Purity for deep Splitpaw excursions. Null or Antibody for battles against necromancers or other disease-riddled mobs. It's all about having an edge. "You gonna draw them potions or just whistle Dixie?"

Potencies:

Aura-enhancing potions also come in three potency levels:

1) Minor Aura Potions (+ 5, + 5, - 3)

2) Regular Aura Potions (+ 15, + 15, - 8)

3) Greater Aura Potions (+ 25, + 25, -15)

TIP: As with the stat-enhancing potions, the more powerful aura-enhancing potions will of necessity cost more to make, and will increase the purchase price and margin-over-cost charged due to higher failure rates.

Utility Potions

Utility potions are wonderful elixirs that will confer some special ability to your character for varying lengths of time. They come in a plethora of varieties.

Varieties:

Adrenaline Tap bestows Quickness upon you to increase your attack speed for approximately 5 minutes. Still an expensive potion at an average price of 100 pp even if it has a slightly longer duration than Tamed Mercury.

AntiWeight grants you the ability to fly over lava, water, pits or canyons with Levitation lasting approximately 12 minutes. You must have a batwing in your inventory as a component before drinking this potion. Despite the necessity of a component, this is a very popular potion in areas of deep canyons (Dagnor's Cauldron) or for crossing expanses of water (Ocean of Tears) or lava (Sol A & B, Skyfire). To many players, well worth the average price of 20 pp.

Ant's Potion will Shrink you to the size of a gnome and will last until you log, die or zone. This potion will now work INDOORS or OUTDOORS. Very useful to all non-shaman large races and well worth the average price of 20 pp.

Aquatic Haunting will give you the ability to Breath Underwater for approximately 30 minutes. You must have a fishscale in your inventory as a component before drinking this potion. This is a "must-have" or "better-have" potion for underwater adventuring in Kedge Keep or Lake of Ill Omen when your Enduring Breath caster goes link dead or dies and you start to drown. Very handy for emergencies at an average price of 20 pp.

Blood of the Wolf gives you the benefit of Spirit of the Wolf spell, allowing you to run much faster than normal in outdoors zones (although can be imbibbed outdoors and will stay in effect after zoning into a dungeon) for approximately 40 minutes. Probably the most popular potion in game for the broadest population of players, the long duration and ability to outrun "most" mobs can save your life and at an average price of 12 to 15 pp (10 shot multi-dose usually around 120 pp) is well-worth keeping a few around for any non-sow-casting class.

Bone Field will instantly Teleport you to location negative 2000 positive 350 in the Field of Bones on Kunark with exactly a 30 second "casting" time. A crucial potion for non-gating, non-porting, non-evacing classes and well worth the 375 pp average cost to escape the planes or other high-level deep dungeons.

Dulsehound bestows + 18 Strength while also reducing Intelligence by - 25 and invoking a 3 min Regeneration at 3 hp per tick. Drinking time (read: casting time) is virtually instantaneous and duration is approximately 3 minutes. A nice potion to drink in the heat of a tough battle if you can afford the average 70 pp price.

Etheria's Poison Antidote will Counteract Poison and works instantly. At an average price of 12 pp 5 gp, a very handy potion to keep around for mid to high level players. Stronger poisons may require drinking multiple gulps.

Frost will instantly Teleport you to Everfrost Peaks in the "3 igloos" area with exactly a 30 second "casting" time. A crucial potion for non-gating, non-porting, non-evacing classes and well worth the pricy 375 pp average cost to escape the planes or other high-level deep dungeons.

Graveyard Dust will add +27 to Strength, +20 to Agility and increase your attack speed, the effects gradually wearing off over the course of approximately 1 minute, leaving you a slightly negative effect of less strength and less agility after it's worn off than before you drank it. Drinking or casting time is instantaneous.

Kilva's Blistering Flesh invokes a Scorching Skin damage shield lasting approximately (level of the drinker/4) minutes. Damage is equivalent to the (level of the drinker/4) + 1. Hence, a level 40 drinker would benefit from an approximate 10 minute (40 / 4) damage shield doing 11 points of damage (40 / 4 + 1). At an average price of 17 pp, this potion is more popular with higher level drinkers due to the increased damage and duration. Also note that this damage shield WILL STACK with Mage and Druid damage shields.

Kilva's Skin of Flame invokes a Scorching Skin damage shield lasting approximately (level of the drinker/4). Damage is equivalent to the (level of the drinker/2) + 1. Hence, a level 40 drinker would benefit from a approximate 10 minute (40 / 4) damage shield doing 21 points of damage (40 / 2 + 1). At an average price of 30 pp, this potion is more popular with higher level drinkers due to the increased damage and duration. Also note that this damage shield WILL STACK with Mage and Druid damage shields.

Kithor's Disease Treatment will Counteract Disease and works instantly. At an average price of 12 pp 5 gp, a very handy potion to keep around for mid to high level players. Stronger diseases may require drinking multiple gulps.

Negation will Cancel Magic by removing the top-most spell effect on your screen instantly, but then only sometimes. Until Verant fixes this "top most" spell removal to "last cast" spell removal, this potion is fairly worthless if you have any other buffs cast upon you at all.

Negation, Greater will Cancel Magic by removing the top two spell effects spell effects in certain circumstances.

Rejuvenation, Lesser has the same affect as Chloroplast (regenerates your hit points at + 10 per tick for ~ 2 min) but will reduce your strength and intelligence by - 10 and slow your attack speed by - 9 while it is in effect. Fairly expensive at 40 pp or more for 200 points of damage healing.

Rejuvenation has the same affect as Chloroplast (regenerates your hit points at + 20 per tick for ~ 2 min) but will reduce your strength and intelligence by - 20 and slow your attack speed while it is in effect. Expensive at 75 pp or more for 400 points of damage healing.

Rejuvenation, Greater has the same affect as Chloroplast (regenerates your hit points at + 40 per tick for ~ 2 min) but will reduce your strength and intelligence by - 40 and slow your attack speed while it is in effect. Very expensive at 140 pp or more for 800 points of damage healing.

Serpent's Conviction grants you the effects of Serpent Sight, also known as Infravision. A good potion for Barbarians, Humans and Erudites that have no "night-sight" spells and, to many, worth the 18 pp average price per potion to keep a few around.

Serpent's Drink buffs your armor class by 6 points in the manner of Scale Skin spell and has a duration of approximately 27 minutes. A fairly worthless potion, you must have a snakescale in your inventory as a component before drinking this potion.

Spirit Shield buffs your armor class by 18 points in the manner of Shifting Shield spell and has a duration of approximately 47 minutes. No component is needed, this potion may prove moderately useful at an average price of 40 pp.

Stinging Wort grants an instantaneous 300 Hit Point boost both to total and current hit points while adding 17 to Strength. The Strength and Hit Point boosts wear off gradually in "damage over time" fashion over a 6 minute period. Another nice potion for melee classes.

Swamp will instantly Teleport you to Innothule Swamp with exactly a 30 second "casting" time. A crucial potion for non-gating, non-porting, non-evacing classes and well worth the pricy 375 pp average cost to escape the planes or other high-level deep dungeons.

Tamed Mercury bestows Quickness upon you to increase your attack speed for approximately 3 minutes. While a very popular effect for melee'ers, a fairly expensive potion at 55 pp average price considering the short duration.

Unlife Awareness makes you Invisible to Undead creatures. Like most invisible spells, duration may fluctuate. Very useful in the areas like Lower Guk (dead side), Combine City (Dreadlands), Keasora, and elsewhere. Worth the 20 pp average price in many instances when you'd like to enter or leave an area without agro'ing everything in your path.

TIP: Whether you need a utility potion for some specific mission or raid, or whether you just want to keep a few around for emergency purposes (the most likely reason), these utility potions can give you the edge you need to survive, conquer or escape death and the xp loss that death conjurs. Ask yourself, "Is it worth a half bubble of lost xp to gobble down a potion at the right moment?" The answer is academic. A tank walking out of the Frenzied room in Guk would find an Unlife Awareness potion handy. Being stuck alone deep in a dungeon or on the planes after going link dead could be disastrous without a gate potion. There are a thousand different situations where you may find yourself needing a potion.

Dyes can be used to color the visible pieces of fine steel plate armor. (No other type of armor in-game can be dyed/colored.) The extracts needed for the dyes are made by either a shaman or a rogue, using alchemy or make poison, respectively. These extracts can then be used by anyone (no specific skill check) to be combined into dyes. There is a smithing skill check when the smith then applies the dye to the armor. If you still need clarification on the following, please post to the message boards..

These are the VERY basic steps to creating dyes. See the detailed explanations below for how to complete these steps

1. Make the extract
2. Make the dye
3. Dye the armor

Step 1. Make the Extract -- Extracts MUST be combined in either an alchemist's medicine bag, or in a rogue's mortar and pestle. It appears that this may have recently turned into lower trivial combine (it was trivial 36-ish). (i.e., supposedly non-rogues and non-shamen can now perform this combine and get a trivial message, but it can still fail.) The "empty vial" needed is sold by the dye supply merchants - you CANNOT use poison vials for this recipe.

color extract	main ingredient	drop locations	other ingredients
blue	Permafrost crystals	many creatures in Permafrost, on ground in Dire Wolf Pens in Permafrost, ground spawn on the golra island in Timorous Deep	empty vial, flask of water green	Evergreen leaves	found lying on ground in Greater Faydark, lighter shade of green, uncommon and hard to see	empty vial, flask of water
red ("berry")	Sarcoscypha fungus	fungus types in Upper Guk & Innothule Swamp, on ground in LFay Faerie camp	empty vial, flask of water

brown rust	Russet oxide - there is ONLY a 1-resin version	various elementals, also some lying on ground in Steamfont, elemental warriors in the Hole iron & stone guardians in Nektulos	empty vial, flask of water
red rust	iron oxide -- there is ONLY a 1-resin version	various elementals, also some lying on ground in Steamfont, elemental warriors in the Hole, iron & stone guardians in Nektulos	empty vial, flask of water yellow	jack o' lantern fungus	on ground in LFay Faerie camp, scarecrow types in WK, Unrest, etc.	empty vial, flask of water
black	Charcoal OR blue slumber fungus OR green goblin skin OR froglok skin OR red cockatrice feather	charcoal: various elementals, elemental warriors in the Hole, iron & stone guardians in Nektulos, golem-types, including Terror (plane of Fear) Blue slumber fungus: ground spawn in LFay Faerie camp, drops off mushroom folk in Sebilis green goblin skins and red cockatrice feathers are a Kunark drop	empty vial, flask of water

The elementals (earth/air/fire/steam) for the oxide/charcoal drops can be found in places like Steamfont, Lavastorm and Najena. Still stumped on where to find the ground spawn dyes? Here's some hints on how to Find that Dye!

Step 2. Make the Dye - can be made by anyone, using the above extracts, and combining them in a medium clay jar (made by a potter, this is a combineable container. You lose the jar on combine) along with merchant-sold resin

- darker shade - 1 resin, 1 extract -- the LARGE bracer when dyed with 1 resin black is slate (pale gray) in shade
- base color - 2 resins, 1 extract
- lighter shade - 3 resins, 1 extract

See color samples of the dyes.

Step 3. Dye your armor: Take a completed piece of fine steel plate armor, place it in the forge along with 1 dye, 1 jar of acid, 1 jar of lacquer and combine. Once dyed, the color cannot be removed. You CAN fail on this part of the process (it's a skill check versus your smithing skill - trivial <150), read your combine message carefully. On a failure, the armor will be returned to you, undyed, and you lose the dye, lacquer and acid.

Alchemy Prices

Alchemy supplies — Alchemy recipes

Prices listed are using best charisma and faction. They are listed in platinum pieces in decimal form preceded by a dollar sign: $9.524 would mean 9pp 5gp 2sp 4cp.

NOTE: There are two different herbs both called "Figwort". One is sold in Shar Vahl and can ONLY be used for the old alchemy potion Gulon's Impunity. The other is sold in many cities throughout Norrath and is used for the revamp potion Rejuvenation. The two are NOT interchangeable. Hopefully one of them will get renamed soon.

Alchemy Dropped Ingredient Locations

This is a listing of the drop locations for all alchemy ingredients that are not regular vendor stock (except bat fur, which is listed because it is the only Old Alchemy ingredient that is vendor stock.) You might still find them on vendors, however, if a player sold it to that vendor. In fact, some of these are very commonly available on merchants near the areas where the items drop most often. For example, zombie skin and lightstones are both plentiful on Erud's Crossing, making that an excellent place to do some Merchant Mining for those two items. If you have corrections or additions, please post them on the Alchemy Message Board.

Note also that some of the usual vendor herbs drop from certain sarnaks and their dogs in Chardok. Look for the sarnak herbalist, chokidai rootdigger, chokidai herbsniffer, sarnak herbcollector, wizened herbcollector, apprentice herbalist, and alchemist acolyte. As Chardok is a high level zone that requires a good group to get very far, it's probably not going to be enough to fill all of an alchemist's needs. It is, however, a nice extra bit of loot that could help put the most expensive potions within reach for the financially challenged among us.

Baking

Baking is the art of turning various items into edible food. Many of you may be thinking "but why not just buy food from the vendors?"

There are several reasons to pursue baked foods:

stats - several player-baked foods now grant statistics (gained when the item is the first food item in your inventory). These stat bonuses stack with all buffs, and can be a boon to those trying to eke out every point in a stat (or resist) that they can get weight - this is especially true for monks, since most baked goods weigh less (0.1) than most purchased foods duration/yield - you can make long-lasting foods (hearty meals, banquets, etc.), as well as make several of some items at a time price - since many of the items are scrounged from mob drops, relying on baked goods can save you money in the long run satisfaction - now, truly, which would you rather bite into, an iron ration, or a nice juicy steak off that mammoth you just killed?

A wee halfling lady stands atop an overturned vegetable crate, lecturing to a small cooking class. She wields a large wooden meat tenderizer as if it was a weapon, occasionally waving it at a student for emphasis.

"So, ye want tae be cooks, lads and lasses? Cooks are the unsung heroes of any great war, as without food and drink, those brawny warriors cannae keep up their fighting strength." She smiles impishly up at a large barbarian warrior as she says this, her brown eyes glinting with merriment.

"What do ye need to bake? For the simplest of recipes, nothing more than body parts off a couple critters that are found in many low-level hunting areas ... and an oven. (Most every city has one or two ovens, if not more.) For more complex things, you'll actually need to buy some added ingredients, invest in some cookbooks, and mayhaps some cooking pans."

"I warn ye now, lads and lasses, that cooking is nae a fast road to riches." She waggles the meat tenderizer at a daydreaming student. "Rather, your rewards come in more intangible ways. Ye can feed yourselves, your family, and your friends off items that, without your expert touch, would be totally inedible. Ye can also add some extra flair to events such as weddings and the like with some sweet treat they'd be unable tae find in any shop ... and guarantee it's freshness as well. Most importantly, ye can rescue folks from the dire tedium of eating rations day in and day out." She shudders expressively at this last.

"Until I can be certain if certain foods are better for ye, and therefore last longer, than other foods, I cannae give ye proper recommendations on marketing. Such wonders as 'edible goo' sell for less to a normal (NPC) merchant than that same merchant would pay for the individual components. Other foods, such as 'fish rolls', can be sold to that merchant for more than ye'd pay for a normal food ration, and as such, ye can make a small profit. I've nae found the rhyme nor reason tae it ... yet."

"Now, ye bought yourself a cookbook, did ye lass?" Niami peers quizzically at a young elf holding a large cookbook in her arms. "I hope ye study that well and take careful notes on it. Once ye've scribed the recipes contained in it (4 recipes - 8 pages - per book, at the current time), ye no longer need the book. Ye can locker it, sell it back, or whatever ye wish with it."

"Mind ye, there are a LOT of recipe books available, and ye'll rapidly eat away at your savings ... no pun intended ... if ye buy all the books yuirself. Find a couple other would-be cooks and share the expense of the books, and the recipes! But if ye're not one of those large folks (ogres, trolls) who eat other (player) races for dinner, then stay away from any recipe books written by that 'Ghumin' feller." Niami mutters something nearly inaudible and incomprehensible about programmers and Hot & Spicy Toelings and then continues the lesson. (Note also that some of the recipes contained in the books have errors. Attempts have been made to make sure that this site's recipes page contains working recipes, not just reprints of the recipe book information.)

"The main things to remember with the recipes are the ingredients and the cooking implements needed. When in doubt, use an oven, but if it says to do it over a roasting spit, mayhaps ye'll hae better luck than I at finding one."

"Ye do know how tae use an oven, don't ye?" One timid student shakes their head and blushes. "Good grief, were ye orphaned at birth?" At the small affirmative nod, the tiny halfling turns on the motherly charm. "Ye poor lad, I be sorry. Forgive me runaway tongue. Ye'll see brick ovens, with windows in the front door of them and flames dancing inside of them hiding in odd spots in town. But for the untrained, it is sometimes hard tae tell an oven from a kiln . When in doubt, open it (stand in front of it and left click on the flames) and inhale. Ye'll be able tae tell verra quickly if it be used for baking food, clay or metals. Then ye just put the proper ingredients inside, pray tae your favorite deity, and bake. (press that 'combine' button.) Ye'll also find spits being sold in various spots, an' they can be used tae bake as well. Think of them as yuir own personal portable oven."

"Oh, and make sure that when they ask for a flask of water that ye use an actual flask of water, not one of those magical globes of water."

"That's all for this class, but feel free tae contact me if ye need extra tutoring."

She notes one student lagging behind. "What, ye want me tae give ye all the recipes, too? Pshaw, lad, any good cook can tell ye that experimentation is necessary. But I'll take pity on ye this much -- yuir early attempts should be something simple. Why don't ye try combining a fire beetle eye and a rat ear in that oven of yuirs and see what comes of it?"

Guide to Power Baking

This is a quick and dirty guide to getting your baking skill up as high as possible, as fast as possible. This is definitely a spoiler; so if you want to figure things out for yourself, stop reading now. It is a very step-by-step, hold your hand guide to mastering baking in the shortest possible time.

First a few general things for all trade skills

Gather Space: Empty all your bag slots into the bank, so you are carrying no bags. Go to the gnome camp in Iceclad Ocean (get a port or take the boat from North Ro). Buy 8 deluxe toolboxes (10 giant slot, wt 4, perfect bank boxes, cost less than 2pp each). Go back to your bank and switch the toolboxes for your normal bags. You now have 80 giant slots in your bank, instead of 64 if you used all backpacks.

Boost Stats: Trade skills go up based on the higher of your int or wis. You may have heard rumors that one affects skill and the other affects success. Let me squash that right now. The ONLY thing that affects success rate is your skill level. Stats make NO difference of any kind. For skill up purposes the engine looks at either your wis or your int, whichever is higher. The other can be 0 for all you care.

Based on your class and race, decide which is easier for you to raise.

- For Magicians, Enchanters, Wizards, Necromancers, Shadow Knights and Bards it is usually easier to boost int.
- For Clerics, Shamans, Druids, Rangers, Beastlords, and Paladins it is usually easier to boost wis.
- For Warriors, Monks, and Rogues ... both stats will be low, pick whichever one is easier for you to raise and boost it

You will see much faster skill ups with higher stats. Get a “training suit” with the most int/wis you can afford that you can keep in the bank, and put it on when you are working on trade skills.

Ok, on to the baking.

For all races except Iksar, the best place to power bake is the East Commonlands area. For Iksar you have 2 choices: stay in the Cabilis area, or do a ton of faction work in Freeport or Neriak. Due to the lack of fresh fish on vendors near Cabilis, I recommend going to Freeport and getting faction or hiring a newbie/using a mule

Step 1: Batwing Crunchies

If good

1. Go to East Commonlands
2. Katha Firespinner (inn 3): buy 10 stacks of Bat Wings
3. Parthar (inn 1): buy 10 stacks of frosting

If evil

1. Go to East Commonlands
2. Katha Firespinner (inn 3): buy 10 stacks of Bat Wings
3. Go to Neriak Commons
4. Niz L'Crit (refined palate, next to bank): buy 10 stacks of frosting

If Iksar

1. Go to Field of Bone
2. Klok Acet (near entrance to Cabilis): buy 10 stacks of Bat Wings
3. Go to East Cabilis
4. Klok Sweetie (near bank): buy 10 stacks of frosting

THEN:

1. Go to your favorite oven (or use a spit if you want to lug one around)
2. Make Batwing Crunchies till skill 46: 1 Bat Wing, 1 Frosting.
3. Sell leftover frosting and crunchies.
4. Keep extra wings

Step 2: Fish Filets

If good

1. Go to East Commonlands
2. Parthar (inn 1): buy 30 stacks of jug of sauces
3. Go to East Freeport
4. Tanlok Harson (port authority at dock): buy 30 stacks of fish

If evil

1. Go to Neriak Commons
2. Niz L'Crit (refined palate, next to bank): buy 30 stacks of jug of sauces
3. Mariz Ixtaz (near Toadstool): buy 30 stacks of fish

If Iksar

1. Go to East Cabilis
2. Klok Sweetie (near bank): buy 30 stacks of jug of sauces
3. Check all vendors, and try to buy as much fresh fish as you can find.
4. Then grab a pole and hit the fishing button till you have 30 stacks. (I told you to go to Freeport)

THEN:

1. Go to your favorite oven (or use a spit if you want to lug one around)
2. Make Fish Filets till skill 82: 1 Fresh Fish, 1 Jug of sauces
3. Sell extra sauces and filets.
4. Keep extra fish

Step 3: Fish Rolls

If good

1. Go to East Commonlands
2. Katha Firespinner (inn 3): buy 20 stacks of Bat Wings (including leftovers from step 1)

3. Go to E Freeport
4. Tanlok Harson (port authority at dock): buy 20 stacks of fish (including leftovers from step 2)

If evil

1. Go to East Commonlands
2. Katha Firespinner (inn 2): buy 20 stacks of Bat Wings (including leftovers from step 1)
3. Go to Neriak Commons
4. Mariz Ixtaz (near Toadstool): buy 20 stacks of fish (including leftovers from step 2)

If Iksar

1. Go to Field of Bone
2. Klok Acet (near entrance to Cabilis): buy 20 stacks of Bat Wings (including leftovers from step 1)
3. Check all vendors, and try to buy as much fresh fish as you can find.
4. Then grab a pole and hit the fishing button till you have 20 stacks of fish (including leftovers from step 2). (I told you to go to Freeport)

THEN:

1. Go to your favorite oven (or use a spit if you want to lug one around)
2. Make Fish Rolls till skill 135: 1 Bat Wing, 1 Fresh Fish
3. Sell all leftover Fish
4. Keep extra Batwings
5. Use Fish Rolls (these are very popular items, especially among monks)

Step 4: Bat Wing Pie

If good

1. Go to Lavastorm
2. Kill lava basilisks till you get 15 eggs
3. Go to West Freeport
4. Pincia Brownloe (unlabeled building next to monk's guild, W Freeport): buy a mixing bowl
5. Go to East Commonlands
6. Parthar (inn 1): buy 15 milk and 15 cups of flour, 10 stacks of spices
7. Go to East Commonlands
8. Katha Firespinner (inn 3): buy 10 stacks of Bat Wings (including leftovers from step 3)
9. Acquire a pie tin (see smithing or pottery recipes for more info. Personally, I recommend pottery. It is far easier and cheaper)

If evil

1. Go to Lavastorm
2. Kill lava basilisks till you get 15 eggs
3. Go to Neriak Foreign Quarter
4. Sal Drana (human side): buy a mixing bowl
5. Go to Neriak Commons
6. Niz L'Crit (refined palate, next to bank): buy 15 milk and 15 cups of flour, 10 stacks of spices
7. Go to East Commonlands
8. Katha Firespinner (inn 3): buy 10 stacks of Bat Wings (including leftovers from step 3)
9. Acquire a pie tin (see smithing or pottery recipes for more info. Personally, I recommend pottery. It is far easier and cheaper).

If Iksar

1. Just go to Freeport. There are no eggs in Kunark. Sorry

THEN:

1. Make clumps of dough. They are long since trivial for you: 1 basilisk egg, 1 cup of flour, 1 milk (yields 15 clumps of dough)
2. Make Bat Wing Pie till skill 142: 1 Bat Wing, 1 Clump of Dough, 1 Spices, 1 Pie Tin (you get the tin back).
3. Sell extra wings and pies.
4. Keep extra dough.

OPTIONAL Step 1 - 4 variant: Bear fillet

Since the patch of May 8, 2002, a new skill up route has become available for bakers all races:

1. Get a filleting knife (see smithing recipes for more info)
2. Go to Thurgadin (you didn't blow your Thurgadin faction yet, did you?)
3. Mordin Frostcleaver (Mordin's Meats): buy bear meat

(if your Thurgadin faction is bad, then go to Shadowhaven and buy bear meat from one of the vendors that sells it)

THEN:

1. 1. Make Bear Fillet till skill 143: Bear meat, filleting knife

Step 5: Cakes

All people

1. Go to Greater or Lesser Feydark
2. Hunt Brownies for their parts.
3. Make White Chocolate: 2 frosting, 1 spices, 1 brownie parts (in a mixing bowl)

4. A*nd/or* Make Winter Chocolate: 2 frosting, 1 brownie parts (in a mixing bowl)

THEN:

1. Make Birthday cakes till 162: 1 White Chocolate, 1 Frosting, 1 Clump of Dough
2. And/or Make Wedding cakes till 162: 1 Winter Chocolate, 1 Frosting, 1 Clump of Dough

Step 6: Pixie Powdered Cinnesticks

All people

1. Go to Greater or Lesser Feydark
2. Buy or Forage Cinnamon Sticks
3. Hunt Pixies for Pixie dust
4. Make Pixie Powder Cinnesticks till trivial (>200): 3 Pixie Dust, 1 Cinnamon Stick (in a mixing bowl)

Step 7: Dragon Steaks

All people

1. Get Dragon meat however you can (it is a rare drop off Velious dragons), and make Dragon Steaks till trivial.
2. Then come back and tell us what the trivial is: 1 Dragon Meat, 1 Jug of Sauces, 1 Spices.

Meadowflower's Method

Hi, I've just gotten my baking to 191 in a few days, and thought I would share the method I used.

I am a Wood Elf Druid, and my main skill will be Fletching, but I am working on baking, brewing, pottery, smithing, tailor, and fletching. Jewelcraft I think I will leave alone for now =)

When I bake, my wisdom is 215, and when I sell my charisma is 132.

Preparation for any trade skill:

1) Find yourself as many 10 slot bags / boxes as you can, A good method is to go to Iceclad and get the Deluxe tool boxes from the gnome camp there. they are 3.5 wt 10 giant slot containers for less than 1.2p and make great bank boxes, because unlike the bazaar bags, they are light, and tradeable. Bear skin potion bags would work well too, if you have a tailor friend or can make them yourself.

2) Get Smarter! Go to the bazaar and get some wisdom gear! Well this depends on your class =) the highest of wisdom or intelligence applies to baking, so do what you need for your class. Wisdom might be easier for the non-caster classes. Put your race/class and wisdom(or int) as the stat to look for in the bazaar window, and shop to your hearts content. you should be able to get 3-5 wis in every slot you have without much trouble, Int, I don't know much about.

3) Brain food! Buy a few Misty thicket picnic's (str sta wis int 5) and a few Qeynos afternoon tea (dex agi wis int 5), each one provides 5 wis or int, whichever you need. To gain the benefit from these foods, they need to be the topmost food/drink in your gear. What I do is keep a giant-slot bag in the top left slot and keep my brain food in the top two slots, below them I keep a stack of food and water. Why the food and water you ask ? As you work, occasionally force feed yourself food and water, to keep yourself full. (place REGULAR food and drink in main inventory slot and right click to force feed) this keeps you full, and you wont eat your brain food ! no need to buy stacks of it!.

3) Dress nice for the merchants! A pair of the opal encrusted steins will run you from 25pp to 100pp each, and at +25 charisma each, even the merchants that don't like dwarves and halflings start to think they are really cute and ask for phone numbers =) I have heard with indifferent faction, you only need about 107 charisma for best price. One way is to keep a gem, that you know the best price for, the one I keep is peridot, best possible price is 9p524c, Even if you start with a really low charisma, say 45, a pair of opal steins and a pair of 7 charisma gold cats eye bracelets would take you to 109 charisma.

OK! down to cookin' !

4) Now we need something to cook with! You need to decide if you are going to run back and forth to an oven (around 30 seconds from the meat merchant in shadowhaven) or take a spit with you and sit at the merchant. Other items you will need are a fillet knife, and a frying pan, both made by smithing, and can be found over on the smithing recipes page if you can make them, or find a friend who can. Raising your smithing to 74 isn't too hard, or expensive, at 74 smithing i made 5 out of 6 non-stick frying pans and got 3 skill increases =)

5) Down to business, clean out all your bags as much as you can, bank too. Can prolly get this down to 2-3 trips from Norrath to Luclin, including the trip to buy brain gear =).

6) Production line ready to go! Lets get some supplies. Count all the slots you have open, divide by 2, then subtract 2. So if you have 100 slots open total this gives you the number 48 (I had half as many slots open when I did it) Go to town and buy 48 stacks of bread, then go to Jaggedpine and get 48 stacks of cheese, this leaves you with 4 open slots to move stuff around, and buy the meat, and stack finished products. Now, head up to Luclin, go find the Soulbinder in ShadowHaven, If you have gate, or can get translocated, its faster than waiting for the port back to Luclin, if you need to get more supplies from Norrath.

Across the pond from the Soulbinder are 2 halfling merchants, the cute one on the right sells unlimited supplies of lion and bear meat, being a druid, I only used lion meat, so I wouldn't support the killing of bears =)

skill 1 to 143:
Buy lion meat. Make lion fillet. recipe: lion meat, fillet knife, in spit or oven.

This is not for the faint of heart (or wrist)

Got that done ? that was the easy part =)

skill 143 to 191:
Buy lion meat. Make patty melts. recipe: lion meat, cheese, bread, non-stick frying pan, in spit or oven.

Hopefully your bank was near empty and you got lots of bread and cheese and won't have to make a trip back down to Norrath. If you do, try to figure out how many skill gains you got on average per stack of attempts, then buy enough meat (or more) to get your to 191, and go back to Norrath, get more bread and cheese, and get back to work. I chose to just go buy more bread and cheese, then gate back to Shadowhaven for meat because I am working on pottery there right now too. Whichever works for you.

skill 191 to ???:
What comes after? For you I am not sure. I am only taking my baking to 200, so I have a ranger out killing pixies and foraging cinnamon sticks (and morning dew) to make pixie powdered cinnisticks (3 pixie dusts, 1 cinnamon sticks(foraged) in a mixing bowl trivial 202 skill. Others are using the Ohabah Truffles, which take foraged mushrooms, frosting, and dark chocolate creme(cream, frosting, brown algae, eucalyptus) to make, same trivial 202. As you can see the Truffles require less chasing critters.

After that its pretty much what you can get to cook with, ranging from brownie parts for holy cake, to Tae Ew, Dragon, Anaconda, and griffon meat.

The Baking Cannibal's Guide to People Part Drops

This is not a complete list of every single being in Norrath who drops racial meat. It is intended rather as a guide to some of the best places where racial meats can be found. Keep in mind that most of the named folk listed are not necessarily up all the time. Some of the parts listed here cannot yet be baked into anything but are included here in case they should ever be added. Other races, like barbarians, fight far to fiercely to ever get anything usable in the unlikely event that they should succumb. So, if a race is not listed here at all, you can safely assume that you'll never get meat off of them. There may also be some inconsistencies in the name of the parts. For some races it may be called meat or flesh. I tried to use the right name here but could not verify all of them first, so do not be alarmed if you find yourself looting Gnome Meat or some such. Whether flesh, meat, or parts, it should still work.

If you have corrections or know of additional drop locations, please report them in the Baking Forum. Please only report drops that you can personally confirm because not every creature of a given race will drop parts. For example, the halflings in Nektulos Forest do NOT drop halfling parts. Also, this list does not include brownie parts (or frost giant or siren, etc.) because they are not one of the playable races and therefore don't make you a cannibal. You can still discuss how to find them in the Baking Forum. Be sure to scan the last few pages of posts first, however, as you're probably not the first person who wants to know.

As a last tip, just because they taste good doesn't mean that they might not be generally nice and useful people, right? So if you want to stay in the good graces of the race that's on your menu, it is important to be selective in which of their kin you go after. Do a little research, you can often find rebels and bandits who have been outcast by their home city. Sometimes you will even become better liked in their home city for having taken out these embarrassments to society. Likewise, if you have no desire to enter the city but would like to be able to associate freely with the outcasts, center your hunting efforts on the more respectable members of that race. And of course, don't forget to check vendors in the area of the creatures that drop the meat you want in case another hunter sold some. For example, vendors in East Karana almost always have some halfling parts off of the spiders, while wood elf vendors in Kelethin often have wood elf parts from the bandits nearby.

EQ Baking Recipes

As with ALL trade skills, be very sure that a) you do NOT stack any items when combining, and, b) you use water flasks (from a merchant), not summoned or foraged water. Remember to use ALL items listed in the implements column for that particular recipe. Except where noted, implements such as skewers, cake rounds, pie tins, etc. are returned, regardless of success or failure of the recipe. Pie tins, skewers, muffin tins, pots, cake rounds and cookie cutters are player-made (pottery and/or smithing). You will not find the items sold on a merchant unless a player has made the item and sold it to the merchant. Spits, on the other hand, are merchant-sold, and you will find merchant information in the baking section of the Trade Supplies pages.

Foods have varying durations based on classification. The type/stats section will list if it is known to be a snack, meal, hearty meal, or banquet. It will also note when the item has any stat attributes assigned to it. Unless otherwise noted, all baked goods have a weight of 0.1

Any recipe that requires any ingredient found only on Velious, Luclin, or the new Cazic-Thule will be listed below the main recipes. Quest-related recipes are listed below that. May 8 recipes are included in the below listings.

Brewing

An Overview of Brewing

Brewing has been updated in the last year. The following is intended as a guide for those interested in advancing brewing skills with a minimum of begging for foraged items and running around gathering things that don't stack (like fire beetle eyes). I can recommend Qeynos as a town to learn in, but others are similar in their suitability. With decent INT., one can advance in this skill relatively quickly, just don't drink while you're brewing! (Ed: Drinking does not affect Wisdom, if your wisdom is higher than your Intelligence then that is the stat your skill increases will be based off of, so feel free to sample the goods! (Ed. Ed.: Drinking has been updated to affect Wisdom now, so don't touch until you're done brewing!))

Don't train any points in this skill unless you just have some to spare (I never did). Snake scales are too easy to come by, and Bog Juice will take you to skill 21. Here's the progression (non-bold steps can be skipped if you are willing to fail a bit more often to avoid collecting items or dealing with casks that don't stack):

- Bog Juice to 21
- Short Beer to 31 (requires casks)
- Heady Kiola to 46 (Sell this to Tailors for use in making Cured Silk Armor)
- Short Ale to 51 (requires casks)
- Fish Wine to 62
- Gnomish Spirits to 101 (requires spider legs & rat ears)
- Ol' Tujim's Fierce Brew to 135
- Faydwer Shaker to 188 (Elven Wine & Gnomish Spirits are available in various locations, requires casks)
- Minotaur Hero's Brew to > 200 (requires casks)

Note that you can easily acquire the snakes scales and fish while leveling early on. If you work Tailoring while you level, and fish during healing/medding time (yes, you can fish while medding), you can easily get to the point where your tailoring skill is just beginning to need the Heady Kiolas when you're at the skill level to start making them. Of course, if you save a stack of whatever you're brewing lately, you can keep your alcohol tolerance maxed as well. Cheers!

EQ Brewing Recipes

As with ALL trade skills, be very sure that a) do NOT stack any items when combining, and, b) you use water flasks (from a merchant), not summoned or foraged water. Trivial levels listed are player-provided. Please post to the message boards any trivial levels/yields that you are aware of.

Fishing

Fishing is the easiest trade skill to master and the quickest one to turn a profit. It also has the added benefit of being a cheap trade skill you can avoid spending training points on, and still keep your profit margin in the manageable ranges.

Fishing can keep you fed. At low levels, fishing can earn you coins enough to buy those spells or supplies you need in order to practice your more difficult/costly trade skills. For those who don't like /gems, it also gives you something to do when you're recovering mana/health, practicing spell skills, etc. Later in life, fishing will also have a better chance of netting you special items that are needed in other tradeskills (such as tanning and temper agents for tailoring and smithing, special fish for baking exotic dishes, fish that can be turned into eggs and scales for a quest, etc.).

What do you need in order to fish? A fishing pole, some bait, some open inventory spots in order to transport your booty to the nearest shopkeeper, and a stream/river/lake or ocean to fish in. The pole will cost you over 2 gold, and it can/will break on you at some point, so be prepared for the need to replace it. The bait will cost you a few copper per bait, and you'll need at least one bait per fish you hope to catch. You can also use fishing lures to catch fish, but while they enhance your ability to catch fish, they will cost you added money.

As mentioned briefly above, you can net yourself some special fish. As with real life fishing, however, you have to know where to find those special fish, as they each have their favorite spots to swim. The fish by zone listing can help you know which zones have special fish in them. Some of these fish will be worth more coin than fresh fish, others will be sought after by tradesfolk for various reasons.

Make sure when you are trying to fish that your pole is held in your primary weapon hand, that you're standing/sitting at the edge of the water, and facing the water. (You can also meditate while fishing, as long as you've equipped the pole in advance, and are sitting on the shoreline.) Then just cast your line and wait for the fish to bite. Cast. Wait. Cast. Wait. Eventually, you should catch... something. Yep, that's right. There's more than just fish available in the water. You can sometimes find fish scales and other oddities snagged on your hook. Don't throw them away, as you can sell them to any (NPC) merchant to add to your slowly growing profits. (The most common nonfish items you will catch are tattered sandals, rusty daggers, and fish scales.) As you continue to fish, your fishing skill should improve... to a point. The fishing skill is level capped (level times 5 plus 5), so there's only so far it will improve, especially if you're low level.

When I had a couple hours of fishing under my belt, and about 20 ranks in fishing, I made a profit of over 6 gold in half an hour. It's still a very slow way to make money, but it's relaxing and if you're truly a broke newbie, it's a great way to earn some money. When you're a spellcaster just learning how to meditate, it can be relaxing and profitable to plant yourself next to a safe body of water, spellcast your mana down to 0, and fish while meditating.

When you're done fishing for the day, stow that fishing pole and some bait (or some extra coins) in the bank. You never know when you're going to end up with your corpse on one continent, and yourself on another continent with no gear, and no way to get to your corpse without food and money. Being able to run to the bank and fish your way into food and coins can make all the difference in the world. (On more developed servers, fishing for your food gives you something to do while you're waiting for your res, tp back to your corpse, etc.)

Just DO remember to stow that fishing pole and re-equip your weapon before you go wandering. As I can attest, from personal experience, trying to attack a monster with a fishing pole does little... other than cause folks to laugh at you. I know of no monster yet that has been clubbed to death with a fishing pole...

Zone-specific Fishing

When fishing in various zones, you will find a wide variety of items being reeled in on your line. Post to the fishing message boards with any new fish that should be added to this list. (Several zones still have fresh fish as their main fishing items, so bakers need not despair that they'll run out of normal fish for baking anytime soon.)

Also note that there are several fish that you have to kill to get. They are not fished - you have to jump in the water and give them a chance to bite you back if you want them. These include: Rivervale Trout (Rivervale), Pirahnas (N. Freeport Hall of Truth?), Cabilis Barracuda (Cabilis), and the infamous koalindl (N. Qeynos). Unsurprisingly, since the koalindl is a sacred fish, certain residents of Qeynos take offense if you kill it, so beware of faction hits, and guards that will try to kill you if you attack one of these little fish.

Fletching

Using the fletching skill, a player may make bows and arrows of better quality, range and damage than what can be purchased from a merchant.

I have good news for fletchers. I have designed a clockwork fletching kit, which will not only make bows and arrows for you but actually go out and gather the necessary raw materials based on how you have set a series of selection levers. Sadly, ever since an unfortunate incident in which my first prototype suffered a malfunction involving King Ak'anon, his favorite feather duster, two score drunk dwarves, and a rather large clump of dough, I have been unable to find a patron willing to fund my research. Until that blessed day arrives, it will continue to be necessary to craft one's bows and arrows by hand. To that end I have come here to provide you with instruction.

The first thing every fletcher should know is that arrows are for learning and bows are for selling. As arrows are much cheaper to make than a bow of similar difficulty level, you can make many more arrows, and thus have many more chances to improve your skill at fletching, than bows for the same amount of money. Thus, when trying to improve your skill, you should always work on arrows instead of bows.

Fletching is a very easy skill to learn in terms of time spent on it. Everything you need to master the skill is available from a merchant so that you don't have to run around hunting creatures that no longer provide you experience in order to gather needed components. There are really only two recipes to learn, one for arrows and the other for bows, so you don't have to keep a lot of different recipes straight. Difficulty levels for crafting items rises in a logical progression removing a certain degree of guesswork in deciding what to work on next after mastering a particular item. The more expensive the components used to make a particular arrow or bow, the more difficult that item is to make. At present we don't even need any items crafted by another trade skill.

Arrows are composed of four parts; tip, shaft, feathers, and nock. To make an arrow, simply place one of each component type in your fletching kit and press the combine button. For each successful attempt you will receive five arrows back. Each component has a specific effect on the arrows. The more expensive the tip and/or shaft used, the more damage the arrow will do. Furthermore, silver tips will make the arrows magical in nature so that they can hit willowisps and similar creatures. The smaller the nock, the greater the range of the arrow. Feathers affect both range and damage with parabolic feathers increasing the range and shield cut feathers increasing the damage. Vanes take the place of feathers in the higher end arrows and increase both range and damage.

Bows, at their most basic, are composed of a bow staff and a string. The more expensive the staff is, the greater the bow's base damage, range, and delay will be. The more expensive the string is the lower the bow's damage and delay. There are several other items such as whittling knives, planing tools, and cams that are completely optional. Each of these optional items has the effect of further lowering the bow's damage and delay. Note that you can't use both a whittling knife and a planing tool on a bow. It has to be one or the other. Also note that you can't use one of the optional items on a bow staff that is cheaper than the optional item. You cannot, for example, use a whittling knife on a hickory bow staff.

With that knowledge under your belt, you are now ready to begin practicing fletching. The very first arrow you should begin with is with a field tip, wood shaft, round feathers, and large nocks. This is the easiest and cheapest arrow to make and all subsequent arrows that you make will be variations upon it. Once you've mastered this particular arrow, visit your arrow merchant, make a list of the remaining components, and order it by price. This is the order in which you will work on mastering the remaining components. The difficulty of making an arrow is based on the single most expensive component of the arrow, not the sum of the components. Thus a field tip, steel shaft, round feather, large nock arrow is the same difficulty as a hooked tip, steel shaft, parabolic feather, small nock arrow. Therefore you should only swap out one component from the basic arrow recipe at a time when trying to learn. When mastering small nocks, make field-wood-round-small. When mastering bone vanes, make field-wood-bone vane-large. If you practice in this manner, you will maximize your skill at the least cost.

To repeat what I said earlier, do not practice with bows to raise your skills. Bows are very expensive relative to arrows. If you practice with bows you're just throwing your money away and if you've got that much money to waste you ought to be giving it to me instead so that I can complete my clockwork fletching kit research.

Basic bowcraft information

Each bow consists of:

- Bow Staff (Hickory, Elm, Ashwood, Oak, Darkwood)
- String (Hemp, Twine, Silk)

Optional:

- Tool (Whittling Knife or Planing Tool)
  - Whittling knives can only be used on Elm or better bows
  - Planing tools can only be used on Ashwood or better bows
  - Tools are returned to you on combine failure, but not on success.
- One or more Bow Cams
  - One cam may be used on Oak or better bows
  - Two cams may be used on Darkwood bows

The base statistics on a Rough bow using hemp string of each type are:
Hickory: 10/50/50 (trivial ~35)
Elm: 13/51/75 (trivial ~80)
Ashwood: 16/58/100 (trivial 126)
Oak: 21/65/125 (trivial ~185)
Darkwood: 25/68/150 (trivial >202)

-Component effects-

Each possible component included is additional modifier to the bow, reducing the damage and delay (but not affecting range, which is only determined by which staff you use)

Strings:
Hemp: -0 / -0
Twine: -1 / -4
Silk: -2 / -8
Strings do not seem to affect bow difficulty

Tools:
Whittling Knife: -1 / -4
Planing Tool: -2 / -9
These seem to only affect bow difficulty on elm and ashwood bows respectively; I believe it works similar to arrows in that the most difficult staff/tool determines the difficulty of the combine attempt. So making a shaped oak is no more difficult than making a rough oak. I haven't fully tested this however, so I could be wrong.

Cams are -1 / -5
Cams give the best bonus but are also the most expensive and add significantly to the difficulty of the bow. I recommend finding a tinker you like and having them supply you with cams, as you can get them significantly cheaper than store-bought in this way. These seem to always add to bow difficulty, however, again, I haven't fully tested this.

-Naming-

A bow is named "<tool type> <staff type> <cam type> Bow"

Tool types:
None: Rough
Whittling Knife: Carved
Planing Tool: Shaped

Staff types:
Hickory, Elm, Ashwood, Oak, Darkwood

Cam types:
None: Recurve
One: 1-Cam
Two: Compound

The string used has no effect on the bow name.

-Selling-

I find I usually am only able to sell the most damaging and the best bow of each type--nobody seems to want one in between. These are listed here:

Hickory + Hemp: 10/50 range 50
Hickory is an exception in that nobody wants fast hickory; the ratio is actually worse than the slower one. I usually keep a couple of these in the bank to give away/sell cheap to newbies.

Elm + Hemp: 13/51 range 75
Elm + Silk + Whittling Knife: 10/39 range 75 - these sell well to people looking to improve their archery skill as they are very fast and relatively inexpensive. I usually keep 2-4 of these in the bank.

Ashwood + Hemp: 16/58 range 100 - these seem to be somewhat popular, and I keep 2 in the bank on the chance someone wants one.
Ashwood + Silk + Planing Tool: 12/41 range 100

Oak + Hemp: 21/65 range 125
Oak + Silk + Planing Tool + Cam: 16/43 range 125

Darkwood + Hemp: 25/68 range 150
Darkwood + Silk + Planing Tool + Cam + Cam: 19/41 range 150

Arrows:

Naming

Old world arrows are named by three of their components, in order that they appear in the name, fletch, shaft, and arrowhead. For instance, an arrow made with wooden vanes, ceramic shafts, and hooked tips would be called a CLASS 4 Ceramic Hooked Arrow.
The new Luclin arrows, on the other hand, are simply called Condensed Substance Acrylia Arrows, where Substance is one of Shadow, Flame, or Ice.
The nock never changes the name of an arrow.

Class		Shaft		Tip
Arrow Name	Component	Arrow Name	Component	Arrow Name	Component
CLASS 1	Several Round Cut Fletchings	Wood	Bundled Wooden Arrow Shafts	Point	Field Point Arrowheads
CLASS 2	Several Parabolic Cut Fletchings	Bone	Bundled Bone Arrow Shafts	Hooked	Hooked Arrowheads
CLASS 3	Several Shield Cut Fletchings	Ceramic	Bundled Ceramic Arrow Shafts	Silver	Silver Tipped Arrowheads
CLASS 4	Set of Wooden Arrow Vanes	Steel	Bundled Steel Arrow Shafts
CLASS 5	Set of Bone Arrow Vanes
CLASS 6	Set of Ceramic Arrow Vanes

Assembly

Arrows are assembled from four components, one each of arrowhead, arrow shaft, fletch, and nock. Each of these components contributes some combination of damage and range to the arrow produced. To find the stats any combination will produce, simply add up the stats from each of the components in the table below, and add to the "base arrow", of damage 1 and range 50. For instance, using the above example of CLASS 4 Ceramic Hooked Arrows with Small Grooved Nocks, you would have +1 dmg from Hooked Arrowheads, +2 dmg from Ceramic Arrow Shafts, +1 dmg and -25 range from Wooden Arrow Vanes, and +50 range from Small Grooved Nocks, for a total of +4 damage and +25 range. Add to 1 dmg and 50 range, and you have an arrow of 5 damage and 75 range.

The trivial to make an arrow is the highest trivial value of the four components. For instance, to make the CLASS 4 Ceramic Hooked Arrow with Small Groove Nocks, the trivial of each component would be 102 for Hooked, 135 for Ceramic Arrow Shafts, 122 for Wooden Arrow Vanes (the CLASS 4), and 56 for the Small Groove Nocks. Since 135 is the highest of these, that would be the trival value of the arrow.

Most arrow combinations return 5 arrows upon success. However, arrows with silver tips, and condensed substance acrylia arrows, return 10 arrows instead. Additionally, these arrows are magic, and can hit targets only affected by magic weapons.

Note that acrylia arrow shafts and condensed substance arrowheads only combine with each other, a shield cut fletching, and a small nock. The "Condensed Substance" can be one of Condensed Shadow, Condensed Flame, or Condensed Ice, which result in an arrow that does an additional 4 damage if the target fails to save against magic, fire, or cold, respectively. These shafts and arrowheads are made by Smithing.

All arrows have a weight of 0.1.

Bows:

Naming

A bow is named by the tool with which it was made (if any), the material from which it was made, and the cams included or lack thereof. Much like the nocks of arrows, the string is not reflected in the name of a bow. For instance, a bow made with an Oak Bow Staff, Whittling

Blade, one Standard Bow Cam, and any string would be called a Carved Oak 1-Cam Bow. Again, a table of components and the resulting names:

Tool		Staff		Cam(s)
Bow Name	Component	Bow Name	Component	Bow Name	Component
Rough	(no tool)	Hickory	Hickory Bow Staff	Recurve	(no cam)
Carved	Whittling Blade	Elm	Elm Bow Staff	1-Cam	Standard Bow Cam
Shaped	Planing Tool	Ashwood	Ashwood Bow Staff	Compound	2 Standard Bow Cams
		Oak	Oak Bow Staff
		Darkwood	Darkwood Bow Staff
		Shadewood	Shadewood Bow Staff

Assembly

Bows are made by combining from two to five components in your fletching kit. All bows include a bow staff and a string; additionally, you may be able to add a tool and one or two cams, depending on the bow staff material. If your bow staff is made of elm or better, you may use a Whittling Blade. If your staff is ashwood or better, you may use a Planing Tool. If your staff is oak or better, you may use a single cam, and if it's darkwood or shadewood, you can use two cams to produce a compound bow. Unlike all other bow components, a tool is returned on failure, but consumed on success.
Much like arrows, you can take the values for the individual bow components from the table below and add or subtract them to figure the stats of the resulting bow. Note that, although all the "extras" actually reduce damage, they also reduce delay, usually enough that the overall damage/delay ratio is improved. And, again, the trivial of the bow is the highest trivial of its components (with the complication that two cam compound bows have a different trivial than single cam bows). For instance, making the Carved Oak 1-Cam Bow mentioned above, with a Silk String, would have a base 21 dmg, 65 delay, 125 range from the Oak Bow Staff, minus 2 dmg 8 dly for the Silk String, minus 1 dmg 4 dly for the Whittling Tool, minus 1 dmg 5 dly for the Standard Bow Cam, for a total of 17 dmg, 48 dly, 125 range. Trivial would be 192, the single cam trivial being higher than the others.

All player made bows have a weight of 4.0, excepting the quested Trueshot.

Staff	Damage	Delay	Range	Trivial
Hickory	10	50	50	16
Elm	13	51	75	68
Ashwood	16	58	100	129
Oak	21	65	125	168
Darkwood	25	68	150	215

Cam(s)	Damage	Delay	Range	Trivial
Single	-1	-5	-	192
Compound (2)	-2	-10	-	235

 Note that the range of a shadewood bow depends also on the number of cams. A shadewood bow with no cams has a range of 150, with one cam has a range of 175, and with two cams a range of 200.*

Restringing

Bows can be restrung for a slight modification to damage and delay. Just combine the bow and the new string in your fletching kit. The string must be a different type than the bow is already strung with, and the combine never fails. Trivial is thought to be 16.

Quest Recipes:

Trueshot Longbow

To obtain a Treant Bow Staff (note that this is LORE, but not NO DROP), you must speak with Maesyn Trueshot in Faydark's Champions, the Rangers' Guild in Kelethin. Get a components bag from him, and combine a Spiderling Silk, Micro Servo, Wooden Shards, and Dwarven Wire.

- Spiderling Silk is obtained by killing spiderlings anywhere, naturally.
  Spiderling Silks are stackable and tradeable. You will need one per Trueshot attempt.
- Micro Servos are dropped by Rogue Clockworks in the Steamfont Mountains.
  Micro Servos are stackable but NO DROP. You will need two for every Trueshot attempt.

- Get Wooden Shards by giving a small lantern to Hyle Windshots in Hogcaller's Inn in West Freeport—don't be fooled by the Jyle in East Freeport! There is a chance (perhaps 1 in 20) that Jyle may give you a Wooden Heart instead of Wooden Shards. If you're a ranger yourself, hold on to this; it's used in the Raincaller upgrade of the Trueshot. If you aren't, you might as well destroy it because it's NO DROP.
  If you're evil, you can also get Wooden Shards by killing treants, but this can make it hard to pay Maesyn a visit later. But you can often find them on merchants in areas where players kill treants, if you find your warm welcome in Freeport is a little bit uncomfortable due to one faction or another.
  Wooden Shards are stackable and tradeable. You will need one for each Trueshot attempt.
- Getting the Dwarven Wire is a small quest itself. It's easiest to do this on the way back from getting the Wooden Shards in Freeport. Get off the ship at Erollisi Isle in the Ocean of Tears, run into the nearest hut, and buy Kiola Nuts. You will need four Kiola Nuts per Trueshot attempt; these cost at least 1gp 7sp 3cp each. Hopefully you can do this quickly enough to run back to the ship before it leaves; if not, wait around and catch the next one.
  When you get to Butcherblock, go to South Kaladim and give Tumpy Irontoe in Irontoe Eats one Kiola Nut and one Flask of Water at a time. He will give you back one Tumpy Tonic for each of these. Now go to North Kaladim, and locate Trantor Everhot. He wanders, so you might have to search or track a bit. Give him two Tumpy Tonics at a time, and he'll give you one Dwarven Wire for every two tonics.
  Dwarven Wire is stackable, but NO DROP. Get two Dwarven Wire for each Trueshot attempt.

When you have combined these in the bag, give it to Maesyn (make SURE you've combined it first!) and he will return to you a Treant Bow Staff (LORE, but not NO DROP).
Now, in your fletching kit combine this Treant Bow Staff, another Micro Servo, another Dwarven Wire, and a Planing Tool (bought from bowyer vendors, costs at least 10pp 7gp 1sp). If you're either very skilled or very lucky, you'll have your new Trueshot Longbow! The combine is trivial at 235.

Foraging

Foraging is not really a tradeskill. However, since foraged items are used for several tradeskills, I felt it wise to finally say something about it here.

Foraging is an ability that is granted to three character classes (ranger, druid, bard), and two races (wood elf, iksar). Some of these races/classes can forage "zone specials" (see below) and others cannot.

If you have gained the ability to forage only due to your race, you will never see a skill increase in your forage ability. (I believe racial forage is at a skill level of 50 for both iksar and wood elves, though I may be wrong.) If you are a ranger, druid or bard, you will be able to increase your foraging by practice, with 5 added points gained per level until you reach your maximum ability. (Bards have a very low forage cap, while druids and rangers have a higher forage ability.)

There are several basic items that can be foraged from almost any zone in the game: pod of water, vegetables, fruit, berries, rabbit meat, fishing grubs. Other than the fishing grubs, these items cannot be sold to merchants, but can be used as drink and food, as well as used in various other recipes. (The pods of water can be brewed into water flasks for use in other tradeskills. The veggies, fruit, berries and rabbit meat can all be cooked, and the veggies, fruit and berries can also be brewed into drinks.)

Many non-city zones have one or more specific items that can be foraged from that zone, but not from any other zone. In order to have a chance to randomly forage these items, you must have a forage skill of over 100 or be an iksar. Some of the foraged items can be eaten, some can be sold to merchants for cash, some are for quests, some are used for tradeskills (brewing, tailoring, smithing), and some just plain ... perplex ... me. (Like the iksar phalange [dagger] foraged in Field of Bone)

While having a character that can forage is NOT a requirement for practicing tradeskills, it makes several of them, especially baking and brewing, much easier and cheaper to accomplish.

Of course, those of us who can forage, such as my ranger, tend to run out of pack space quickly, as I tend to press the forage button every time it pops, whether I need more food and drink or not.

Others tend to leave "druid" droppings all over the place, foraging an item and instantly dropping it on the ground if they don't like/want the item. ... this leads to an interesting way for a non-tracker to find a druid or ranger ... just follow the trail of foraged goodies on the ground. ;)

Jewelcraft

Jewelry making is not for the faint of heart, or the empty of pocket. Rather, it is a skill that will take a lot of time, training, patience and financial resources before you can excel in it. However, once you excel in it, you will find that your wares will command a high price indeed.

At first glance, it may seem that much jewelry is "just fluff". In many cases it is. However, this is a role playing environment, and I'd be willing to bet that moon-eyed fellow in the corner would love an engagement ring to present to his beloved. And what about wedding rings for that big ceremony if she says yes? And what about a lovely gaudy show of wealth for that vain elf over there?

If that were all there were to it, however, it would not be that popular a trade skill. Like tailoring, greater skill and better materials allow you to make more valuable items... including enchanted jewelry. By enchanted jewelry, I mean jewelry that will enhance stats when worn. (e.g., +5 mana, +4 save vs. poison, +4 strength, to name a few.) You must use enchanted metals to make enchanted jewelry (you will need to hire an enchanter that can cast the proper enchant spell, if you're not an enchanter yourself).

Now that I've got you drooling and mentally counting the riches that could be yours, let me inject more reality into the picture. There are 5 basic metals to use in jewelry making: silver, electrum, gold, platinum and velium. These are listed in order of cost and in order of difficulty. If you have problems making a simple silver bar and a cheap piece of malachite combine into a ring, don't even think of trying out electrum or the others. Cheap gems are also easier to work with than the really expensive ones.

However, with a lot of training in the skill before you start trying to make anything, and a careful squirreling away of any pretty stones you find along the way, you should be able to progress well.

By the time I had a jewelry skill of 30, I was able to make a (very) few different electrum pieces, and a good chunk of silver and gem combinations. I'd made some very lovely pieces of jewelry that took my breath away, and whimpered when I destroyed a gem that cost over a platinum on a failure.

How did I do it? Start small, with silver and lesser stones, and work your way up to more expensive stones before you try the same thing with electrum. Keep good notes of what combinations of stone and metal bar make what. My recommendation is to just work with plain silver and gems for the first little while, to get your skill up. Once you have relative ease with making a certain item, then get a piece of enchanted silver and try the magical version of the item. Find other folks working in jewelry and compare notes. You can both save yourselves some costly experiments if you share your knowledge.

The basics: You need a jeweler's kit (sold where the silver/electrum/gold/platinum metal bars are sold -- it looks like a small sack), a metal bar (start with silver) and a gemstone (start with the cheapest - malachite). Put the single metal bar, and a single stone, in your jeweler's kit, close your eyes, pray to your chosen deity, and press combine. I'd recommend training yourself up to 20 ranks in the skill, or as close as you can, before you start trying anything (to save yourself coin). Malachite and silver will become trivial at skill rank 21, at which time you start using another cheap gem, such as lapis or turquoise for practice.

Step-By-Step Jewelcraft

When I started jewelcraft I wanted a guide that would take me step by step through the process. While there are many guides which are helpful, none were as detailed as what I was looking for. In this guide I walk a new jeweler step by step from a skill of zero to 191, when it is too expensive to make jewelry for practice. I specifically tell you what to make and why, how much things cost, and how much they sell for.

A couple of warnings to start. First, I do not recommend jewelcraft for anyone except enchanters. Only enchanters can enchant metal bars. Only jewelry made with enchanted metal bars has any magical properties. Only jewelry with magical properties is worth wearing. If you cannot enchant the metals yourself you face the added expense and difficulty of having bars enchanted. Don't let the ease of obtaining enchanted silver fool you, players at that level are often poor and willing to sit and cast for a few platinum. By the time an enchanter can handle electrum bars, it is not worth his time. My advice is phrased as though you are an enchanter. The second warning is that, whether you are an enchanter or not, you should be a character who possesses a high intelligence, since jewelcraft is very expensive. Intelligence determines how often you get skill increases, and so how much it costs to improve. Be sure to wear the best intelligence gear you can when jewelcrafting, which, you being a jeweler and all, should be pretty good. Some time back Verant authoritatively said that Wisdom did not affect the chance of success in skills, squashing an old rumor. In September of 2000 they said that the higher of Int or Wis will help you succeed. I suggest you check here or the message boards for the latest.

Getting your enchant metal spells is tricky if you are not a Dark Elf. The spells are only sold in Neriak in the Library in Neriak Third gate. (Ed: The spells are now sold in Felwithe as well.) If you worship a good god (enchanters should be agnostic anyway) you should not enter Neriak. If you are new to Neriak I suggest making a newbie Dark Elf to learn your way around the city before taking your enchanter in. You have to zone three times, and your illusion drops when you zone. So you have to invis, zone, check for guards, and re-illusion yourself each time. Illusion Dark Elf is good in Neriak, but illusion Gnome works also. You should have a steady source of income before you start jewelcraft. I do not mean to be negative, and if you are extremely patient you can make jewelcraft pay from the start. However, it is best to be realistic, and recognize that although huge profits await you later, it will cost more than you make for a long time. It will cost around 1500 to 2000 platinum in failures to get to 191.

I give advice in this guide on prices. Prices vary from server to server, older servers have more jewelers and more older jewelry and lower prices, new servers are the opposite. The prices I list are average. I tend to price things so that I will sell many items at a modest profit, rather than a few items at a large profit. I want people who bought silver jewelry from me to come back to me for platinum jewelry, not regret having dealt with me because they found out later that they overpaid. For this reason I spend most of my time selling things that are well below my skill level, so that I seldom fail and can make money with low prices. Remember when auctioning stats or prices to put a space between any number and a letter. If you don't, some numbers will be dropped, even though the message looks fine to you. So say "WTS 2 Int rings 4 p" NOT "WTS 2int rings 4p" which people will often see as "WTS int rings p."

Start by spending 21 practice points on jewelcraft with your guildmaster, the maximum. If you start jewelcraft late enough in life to have so much money that twenty or thirty platinum does not mean much, then make silver malachite until it becomes trivial at 16. Verant no longer uses the phrase "This item is trivial for someone of your skill to make", but we still refer to the point when a combination cannot increase your skill as the trivial, or triv, level. Remember, you get one item from a stack by holding down control when you click on the stack. The most important factor to recognize in any trade skill is that the closer your current skill level is to the trivial level of the item you are working on, the less likely you are to fail, and the more likely you are to get skill increases. If your skill level is only three or four points below the triv level of the item you are making, then your failures will be fewer, and your skill increases more likely than if you were ten or twenty skill levels below the item you are working on. It is critical to understand this, it's the key to all you will be doing. In jewelcraft it is best to make many items which you will never use, and which no sensible player is ever going to want. Jewelcraft has a very nice progression of trivial levels, since there are so many gems, so you can always be working on items that triv a few levels from your current skill. The only exceptions are jumping from one metal to the next.

Merchants will pay you roughly what the components cost when you successfully make an item, assuming decent faction and good charisma (above 100). So you lose nothing on a success sold to a merchant. Failure destroys the gem and the metal bar. Merchants pay a little extra for enchanted items, but not enough to justify enchanting bars for items you will sell to the merchants.

Start your real jewelcraft career by making silver cats eye agate necklaces. These cost about seven gold per attempt, five for the bar and two for the gem, and yield a +3 charisma necklace. I suggest enchanting some of the bars for the cat's eye agate necklaces. There is not as much of a market among players for these as there should be, but these can be sold for 2p each. The trouble these days is that Splitpaw necklaces are +5 charisma and are lore, so they tend to be cheap. Silver cat's eye agate triv out at jewelcraft skill of 24. Make bloodstone silver next, which trivs at 26. With luck you will only need to make a few bloodstone and sell your successes back to the merchant.

Next make a few onyx bracelets, which triv at 28, cost over a plat per attempt, and are also not worth selling to players. Then make silver Jasper, a +2 Wisdom ring, which trivs at 30 and makes your first truly useful bit of jewelry. These cost about a plat and a quarter to attempt, and sell for about three plat each. Next make Silver Carnelian, which is a +2 Agility ring, trivs at 32. You can sell some now and then for about 3p. Next go to star rose quartz, which makes a +2 Intelligence ring, and costs a plat and a half per attempt, and trivs at 34. These sell for about four plat each. Both the wisdom and intelligence rings have a good market if you travel around selling your wares. Up to this point, with decent success and patience selling what you create, you can break even on jewelcraft. You can either be patient and sell lots of rings, or get an outside source of funds (I was extremely lucky, can you say "toolboxes"?).

Selling is easier if you make the items only when you have a buyer. When I travel I carry stacks of enchanted metal bars, and partial stacks of gems, and I only make the items when I need them. Jewelry never stacks, so each item you make takes up a slot, whereas all your gems and metal take eight or ten slots total. Just keep enough extra gems and bars for failures. The exceptions are the more expensive items. Also, enchant all of the bars you carry, or none. Having two sets means that you will accidentally sell someone an unenchanted item at some point, which is very tough to explain.

Now you can go to Silver Amber Rings, which are +2 strength, cost over three platinum per attempt, and trivs out at 36. These are tough to sell because the players who could use just two strength can seldom afford the five or six plat you need to charge for these rings, counting failures. The next step up is Jade. Later in your career, Jade will make really nice bracelets when combined with electrum which will pay for much of your jewelry making. However, with silver all you get is a 5 mana 5 hitpoint, 1 AC ring that there is not much demand for. Your wis/int rings provide the same mana to casters, and it is difficult to justify twelve to fifteen plat a pair for the extra ten hitpoints and 2 AC. The mana of a 2 int or wis ring increases as the players level, but jade rings stay at 5 mana forever. On the other hand, hybrids (Rangers, Paladins, ShadowKnights), who get a whopping 20 mana at level 9 (Ed: Huh? Even at base stats, more like 135.), could use the mana, the hitpoints and the AC the rings give. Jade can be purchased in Highhold Keep, from Merchant Edina who is on your right just before you turn left to go down the stairs to the bank (she also is the closest place to Freeport that I found Topaz, Emeralds, Opals or Rubies). These rings triv out at 40, and cost more than four platinum per attempt. In my first stab at these I tried ten Silver Jaded rings, failed on seven and got no skill increases (my int was around 135). In other words I spent 41 plat to get 12 plat worth of rings and gained nothing for my loss of 29 platinum. Ouch.

At level 40 you face a choice. You can continue with silver and expensive gems, or switch to electrum and cheap gems. Electrum Malachite costs under three plat per attempt. Silver pearl costs over five plat per attempt, but it trivs out at 42, only two levels above your current skill. I got lucky with pearl, I failed four times out of five, but got two skill increases, and trived the combo out for a cost of 20 platinum. Then you can make silver topaz, which cost nearly six plat per attempt, but which triv out at 44. I tried seventeen times, failed on seven, got one skill up. So I lost 37 plat for one skill increase. Later I ran across a Topaz someone had sold to Pardor the Blessed, took it as an omen, and bought the only one he had. I succeeded and got a skill increase. The move from 43 to skill level 44 netted me a profit of a quarter of a platinum selling the enchanted item to a merchant.

To review up to this point, the main thing we learn is that luck plays a huge part if you look at only a few skill increases. With decent luck and sales you can get to a skill of 34 for free, or nearly so. The increase from 34 to 44 cost me about one hundred platinum, 10 plat per increase. Another bit of advice on practicing: although the Freeport area is better than Qeynos for selling, with all the high levels around the bank, and the constant bazaar in East Commonlands, Qeynos is better for practicing. The Jewelbox inside Ironforges in North Qeynos has a merchant with most of the gems you need and a merchant with metal bars a few feet apart, whereas in Freeport you have to zone, North Freeport has metal bars and West Freeport has gems. Also in Freeport many gems must be bought either in East Commonlands (Katha Firespinner) or even Highkeep.

The next step, whenever you stop using silver, is electrum malachite, which cost two and three quarters plat per attempt, but which trivs out at 74. Since this is 30 points above your current skill, it will therefore fail a lot and give few skill increases. Silver items triv out every few skill levels, peridot (ten plat) 46, emerald (13 plat) 48, but the cost of the gems is too high to make it worthwhile. Silver ruby makes a very nice veil, 4 strength and 4 wisdom, and it trivs out at around 75 or 80, but costs 132 plat per attempt. Do not try silver Ruby until you have mastered jewelcraft, or you will never make money on them, as they sell for 175-200 plat. In fact, a skill of 150 is best working with silver and expensive gems. So you take your money from the bank, bite the bullet, and make Electrum malachite bracelets, which triv at 74. Lapis lazuli trivs at 76, turquoise 79, hematite 82, cat's eye agate (4 charisma bracelets which can sell for 10p a pair) 84, bloodstone 87, onyx 90 all will get you the few points of skill for each gem with relatively few attempts.

Jasper electrum makes a +2 wisdom earring, which costs three and a half plat per attempt, and should fetch 6 or 7p each on a fairly regular basis. Electrum star rose quartz, on the other hand, trivs at 98, costs under 4 plat to try, but produces a 2 int necklace which will not sell because blackened iron medallions (+3 Int +3 wis) sell for 20p or less.

When I Mastered jewelcraft and started work on Jaded Electrum Bracelets I had an epiphany, a revelation. I had always known that the random number generator in EQ was very streaky: I once failed ten consecutive times on an item that was trivial to me. However, I experienced success with the first few bracelets, and got good skill ups, so I kept at it. I went ten for twelve, with skill increases on both failures and five skill ups total. So for 75 plat I got five skill increases and five pairs of bracelets I easily sold for 125 plat. More importantly I learned a valuable lesson - when the rolls are with you keep rolling, use up your gems til the tide turns. If you start at another time and fail, say two of your first three, stop. Wait a few minutes, make jewelry later and see how the random number generator is feeling. Shortly after this I heard a jeweler shout that at skill of 198 he had just blown 2000 plat trying to make platinum ruby veils (235 plat per attempt). I know why, and I know that this will not be happening to me. You can stop it happening to you.

Through all my enchanting to skill 150 I made most of my money on one item - Jaded Electrum Bracelets, 10 Mana 10 Hitpoints, 2 Armor Class wrist item, which any player can wear. They cost about 6 and a quarter plat per attempt and sell for 25 plat a pair easily. I auction the stats, not the name, and sell these constantly. Electrum Jade trivs at 106, then go to Pearl 108, Topaz 111, Peridot 113, Emerald 116, and maybe Opal 119, which costs 20 plat a pop. At this point you are switching to a more expensive metal, again, and cheap gems. Gold Malachite costs ten and a half plat per attempt. I tried 100 times in one sitting. I failed 25 times but went from 125 to 138 in skill. So it was around 20 p per skill increase. When you near 150 in skill you can think about Silver Ruby Veils, and other expensive gems combined with silver. This is the phase of your career that causes other players to think all enchanters are rich. You will enjoy it. In fact, it will probably change your idea of "rich" so much that you'll feel poor with 1k in the bank and another k in merchandise in your backpacks.

Silver Ruby Veils are a 4 Wisdom 4 Strength item that Clerics, Druids and Shaman all love, and that Rangers and Paladins find useful as well. These cost 132 platinum to attempt, but are tough to sell for more than 180 platinum each, though 200 is possible. You should just make these and carry the finished product around with you. With a price of 180 you need a success rate of 75% just to break even. At a skill of 139 I failed one of two attempts. At around 145 I was on a good random number streak and made one with no problem. Once I hit 150 my failures were few and far between (better than 90% success). That's why you wait so long to make these. Remember, it is still worth it for the very best jewelers to make Silver Ruby, so you're competing with people who can't remember the last time they failed. Plus, there are a lot of these around, almost everyone who buys a Platinum Ruby veil sells a silver ruby veil, so many of your customers will remember someone trying to dump silver ruby for 150 plat (merchants pay 137).

Silver Star Ruby costs 70 plat and makes a 5 charisma 5 dexterity veil that you are probably wearing. So you can always sell yours for 100 or 110 plat and make a new one later. Silver Sapphire costs 105 plat and makes a 4 intelligence 4 strength necklace that has a decent market at around 150 plat. In Gold the progression is the same as for Electrum and will take you to 191 in skill. Gold Malachite trivs at 146, Lapis Lazuli 148, Turquoise 151, Hematite 156, Cats Eye (7 CHA bracelets, sell for around 35p a pair) 156, Bloodstone 159, Onyx 162, Jasper 164. The Jasper make a 3 Wisdom Earring that sells well for around 20p each or 35p a pair. Gold carnelian trivs at 167 (5 Agility ring, 35p a pair). Star Rose Quartz makes a 4 Int necklace and trivs at 170. Caster's realm lists Gold Star Rose Quartz as bugged, with far more fails that normal and I have had so many problems that I stopped selling them more than once. Because of failures you can get 25p or even 30p for these necklaces, few jewelers sell them. Do not make these for practice, save yourself some aggravation. I switched to Amber (3 Strength earring 40 to 45 p a pair) which trived at 172. Next comes Jade (15 HP 15 Mana 2 AC Bracelet 45 p a pair) 178, Pearl 180, Topaz 183 (3 AC earring 45p a pair), Peridot (21p per attempt)186, Emerald (24 p per attempt) 188, and Opal (28 p per attempt) 191.

When you get above 180 in skill you can start thinking about electrum and expensive gems. Star Ruby makes a great enchanter ring, 7 Charisma 5 Dexterity which sells for around 100-120. Sapphire makes a 4 Strength 2 Intelligence earring, but these are not that great because golden ear studs (a quest reward, I think) give 3 int for around 30 plat, and electrum sapphire has to sell for 150 to 175. Likewise electrum ruby is not that great, 4 str 2 wis, 200p or so. Your real money at this point is still silver and expensive gems, or many common gold items.

You will notice as you get to around 175 it takes more and more attempts to get a skill up. I tried 100 gold jade at skill 176 without an increase! An odd thing is that as you work with harder and harder combinations you fail less because your skill is so high. On those 100 gold jade tries I failed only once. On gold emerald on the other hand I was 28 of 28 with three skill ups. These were all with an int of 157. You should expect a skill up for about every two or three stacks. Platinum currently never trivs, so each skill increase past 191 will be a lucky bonus to making jewelry because the higher gold combos, and all platinum combos, are too expensive to be used just for practice.

Gold and expensive gems are also fairly disappointing, and should only be made when you have a buyer. Gold Sapphire earrings, 4 Int 2 Str are the only exception (wear them and sell yours), they sell for 180-200p. Gold Star Ruby makes a 5 Cha 7 Dex ring, nice for rogues, and sells for around 120-140. Gold Ruby makes a 2 Str 4 Wis ring that is strictly special order, around 200-220. Gold Fire Emerald makes a 5 Str 3 Dex bracelet, selling for around 150-175. Platinum is where you make your real money, and a sympathetic enchanter might enchant a few bars for 10p a piece so you can make these in the long wait from level 24 to 34. These are where the money truly lies, and the failure rate will show you why. An experienced jeweler I know says that even near skill 200 Platinum Ruby fails 60% of the time. Treat platinum like gambling, only use money you can afford to lose. I failed my first two platinum ruby at skill 191 and it made a big dent in my bank account. Platinum Jasper, 6 Wisdom ring, sells for around 200, though I have seen 300 a pair. Platinum Star Rose, 4 Intelligence ring, sells for 200 or 225. Platinum Sapphire Necklace, 7 Int 7 Str, sells for around 700. Platinum Star Ruby Veil, 9 Cha 9 Dex veil, sells for 650, but not often, I saw one at a vendor in East Commons <cries>. Platinum Ruby veils, 7 Wis 7 Str sell for around 800, and is the most demanded of the high end items.

The trade skill patch is very recent as I write this. It will have a varied effect on most jewelers, though buyers of jewelry will be happy. Since skill can now go to 250, the failure rate for high end jewelers will be reduced dramatically. On the other hand, only a few very rich jewelers can afford to spend the money to practice with platinum bars, so the rest of us will be taking price cuts even though our success rate is the same. We may well be priced out of all the better platinum items, and left making only things that the best jewelers don't bother with. I will update this when the prices have stabilized in a few months.

There are more exotic gems that generally don't get made with silver or electrum that you can attempt when your skill reaches 180 to 190. The trouble is that most are so rare that they really should be combined with Platinum. These are not sold by any gem merchant, they are dropped by fairly high level mobs. The lowest of these is Black Pearl, and it sells for 40 to 50 plat as I write this. I sold the first one I ever looted for 200p. Black Pearl makes a dexterity/agility item, gold is 7/7 necklace, platinum is 6/6 ring. Fire Opals are nice in that they can be bought. They cost 55 plat (NPC says gold only, it does NOT have to be in gold!) from Genni in the Temple of Solusek Ro (right side, third level) and can be used to make rings, 2AC 30HP for silver, electrum 3/35, gold 4/45 or platinum 5/55. The plat rings seem to sell for 1k a pair, the gold 250-300 a pair. Black sapphire is a drop and makes HP mana necklace (silver and platinum) and earrings. I have seen Platinum Black Sapphire necklaces, 55 HP 55 Mana, auctioned for 2k, but I am not sure of their true value. There are also Jacinth (AC/save magic) and Diamond (all saves) drops. These you will have to learn more about on your own.

I hope this walk through helps in your jewelcraft career. The main thing about being a jeweler is to remember that you are a merchant as well as an player. Avoid getting into arguments. Never try to rip off your customers. Be prepared for people to try to rip you off, however: you advertise 180, player says "I'll take it", then he says"How about 170?", then he says "All I have is 165" after you've been waiting where he said to meet you for ten minutes. I try to insist on not getting ripped without turning it into an argument. It's tough to do when someone in an Oracle Robe is jerking your chain for a few plat, or five gold (I have had it happen). Still, it does not pay to do anything more than walk away. I always advertise my price, so that people don't feel like they might be getting ripped off. If your price were way out of line you'd get shouts about that fact. Auctioning your prices shows confidence in your prices, reduces silly tells, and allows potential buyers to compare your price to others. If someone gives you grief about not knocking 30% off your price, it will happen, just say "Sorry, I have to cover failures" and leave it at that.

Help people whenever you can. Give often to newbies but never to beggars. Clarity/Breeze people as you pass, and all your customers who can use it. No sense running around with full mana. You'll be passing through many zones, and a good deed now and then is rewarding on its own and will help you become known. When you're rich and powerful remember when you were poor and weak. Finally, remember to go out and play some.

Standard Jewelry Combinations

The gems are sorted in order of difficulty per metal, so it's easier to see where you are on the skill scale. However, due to printability issues, trivials are not listed here. Until such time as we can get FTP access to the site sorted out, the most accurate trivial list can be found on Gumkak's site. I won't include it here, as it will make this page pretty unprintable for most folks.

Make Poison

Poisons are a rogue's toy for death. They come in 16 different flavors.

Berserker Madness - Target bonus STR and AC, does small Direct Damage and good DoT.
Blind - minus to ATK.
Brittle Haste - bonus to ATK Speed, lowers AC and STR.
Contact - Direct Damage.
Dizzy - lowers AGI, lowers AC.
Feeble Mind - Reduces targets Mana.
Flesh Rot - small Direct Damage, Long term DoT (more like a disease).
Injected - small Direct Damage, 30 second DoT.
Liquid Silver - Heavy damage Contact poison for UNDEAD only.
Lower Resist - just what it says, lowers resist except for poison.
Muscle Lock - Slows Movement (snare).
Paralyzing Root - Lowers Attack Speed (like shaman/enchanter slows).
Poison Animal - Heavy damage contact spell, for animal type monsters ONLY.
Poison Summoned - Heavy damage contact spell for summoned ONLY.
System Shock - good Direct Damage, pushes target back, and stuns/interrupts spells.
Weaken - Reduces target strength.

Poisons have an interesting way of deciding how much damage/results you will get with the actual poison you have. First off, is the level of the poison. We will use Contact poisons as an example. Contact Poisons currently have 4 levels of strength. Contact I, II, III, and IV. The amount of damage is decided by the level of player, and the TOP end of that is decided by the poisons level. Below is an example.

Contact I - DD for 5 to 141 damage, Level 35
Contact II - DD for 5 to 177 damage, Level 44
Contact III - DD for 13 to 221 damage, Level 55
Contact IV - DD for 13 to 445 damage, Level 55

The difference? The top end of the poison. Contact one tops out at 141 for a level 35 Rogue. Any level above 35 will still do 141 damage. Now, a Contact II will also do 141 for a level 35 rogue, BUT at level 36 the contact II poison will do more damage. The Contact II poison tops out at level 44, where you will have to use a Contact II to do more damage. Notice that Contact III and IV both top out at level 55. The difference in these two is how much damage they do at what level. At level 35, Contact IV WILL do more damage than Contact II, even though the Rogue has not topped out either poison, this is due to the damage range of the poison.

Listing of Poison Effects

Books on Poison

As far as I know (this is a guide not a definitive writing) There are 11 different books on poisons. Most of them are straight forward on how to make the poison but do not hint at how hard they are to make, or what level of poison they will be. (Note: these books are not all written in Common)

Making Poisons

First and foremost, poison making is not something you do with a few spare plat, because you want to be badass in combat. Poisons will make you more effective, but you MUST realize the penalty for using them. First, Poisons are expensive and time consuming. You WILL blow a lot of money on em even if you make your own vials. Most components are dropped off monsters so you will have to go out and 'farm' if you wanna keep any kind of supply on you. You have to SIT and apply the poison, you must remain seated while it is applying. (this checks your apply poison skill... you rarely fail to apply a poison you can make, but the higher your apply poison skill the faster you can get the poison on your blade and stand back up.) Now if you still aren't shying away from poison making, You are ready to roll.

Tools of the Trade

To actually make the poison, you will combine 3 (or more) things in a Mortar and Pestle. You can pick one of these up in 3 places. Dagnors Cauldron, Firiona Vie, and West Karanas. You will combine a poison vial (Regular, Lined, or Sealed), a Suspension (Regular, Constrict, Larent, or Ethereal), and finally the actual component that you farmed or bought. The first poison that you should try just to get used to it is known as "Spider Venom" this is a Weaken I type poison, and is fairly useless, but it is cheap to make, easy to farm the items, and helps bring up your apply skill if you haven't used poisons before.

In your Mortar and Pestle, put one suspension, one poison vial, and 2 UNSTACKED spider venom sacs. (gotten off almost any spider larger than a spiderling.) Then press Combine. One of two things will happen. This poison trivials out at 20, so it should be pretty much trivial to you already. If you succeed, then you now have an unstackable poison bottle, if you failed you will be given your vial back, and the rest of the items destroyed.

Applying your poison

Once you have your poison, to apply your poison to your blade, just right click the poison. Unlike drinking you can also do this from inside bags. You will get either a "you have successfully applied" or "you have failed to apply" message. If you fail, your blade is not poisoned, and your poison is GONE. If you are standing when you try to apply, you will automaticaly sit down and start applying.

IMPORTANT NOTES -

1. Once your poison is applied to your weapon, the poison is gone, you can not retrieve it.
2. Poisoned blades do not last through zoning. (if you zone, the poison on the blade is GONE)
3. Poisons are uninterruptable, and will fire off on the first successful hit, that is not a backstab.
4. The way the game works is to apply the poison to your primary hand slot, you can not poison one blade, move it to secondary and then poison another blade. The game is not actually poisoning the weapon, just the weapon slot. You can prove this by poisoning with a contact poison then removing your weapons.
5. Injected poisons MUST have a piercing weapon to proc.
6. Poisons CAN be resisted, and the resists are based off of the level you are to the monster, and its resist to POISON, even flesh rot is a POISON.

Poison Table

The codes for the vials are: V=Poison Vial, L=Lined Vial, S=Sealed Vial. The codes for suspensions are: S=Regular Suspension, C=Constrict Suspension, L=Larent Suspension, E=Etheral Suspension. The prices are given for indifferent with charisma 95 in coppers (and will be reviewed soon). If you have missing informations or corrections please post it on the poison-board. The make and apply are the skill where working with that poison becomes trivial. They are not perfectly accurate and will be updated as soon as any mistakes will show up.

Pottery

Pottery is a unique trade skill in a number of ways. First of all, pottery seems to be the only trade skill aimed at enhancing another trade skill. Most of the goods you'll manufacture with this skill will only be of interest to bakers. Second of all, it is the only trade skill, to the best of my knowledge, that requires you to make two skill attempts in order to manufacture goods. Third, it’s incredibly easy to raise. Finally, you can make a good profit off this skill just selling goods to vendors though you'll have to have a high skill level before this is possible.

To start with, first verify that everything you need to practice pottery is readily available. That means you'll need to find a pottery wheel, kiln, and vendors to buy sketches, clay, and firing sheets from. When I first started practicing pottery I was using a pottery wheel and kiln in South Qeynos, buying my clay and firing sheets in West Karana, and was getting my sketches from a barbarian shaman who was making frequent trips between Halas and Qeynos. Trust me when I say it was a very frustrating period for me and I eventually just relocated to Halas, where I paid higher prices for raw materials and received lower prices for finished goods, just to have all of my pottery needs met in one small area. You'll eventually also want glass shards and bits of metal for more advanced pottery but you can worry about that when the time comes.

Next you'll want to spend a practice point on pottery just to get it started. Once you start practicing you'll find that pottery raises fairly easily and I certainly wouldn't spend more than 1 practice point on it. Certainly not before trying it a few times just to see what sort of raises you get on your own. Buy the basic pottery book for the instructions and "recipes."

The actual practice of pottery is a two-stage process. First you place a sketch, a flask of water, don't use the globes of water some casters can summon or the pods of water that woodsy types can forage for, the appropriate amount of clay, and any necessary extras like glass shards on a pottery wheel and click combine. If you're successful you'll be rewarded with an unfired product that you can then place in a kiln with the appropriate type of firing sheet(s) and combine to get your end product. When practicing keep working with an item until the pottery wheel returns the message that the item is trivial for someone of your skill level to make but ignore the kiln if it tells you that an item is trivial. It is harder to turn something out on the pottery wheel than it is to put it in the kiln to harden. The kiln will tell you something is trivial to make long before it’s trivial to make on the pottery wheel.

Clay, firing sheets, and some sketches don't stack so when buying trade supplies you may find yourself pressed for space. Because of this I recommend that you don't buy firing sheets until you actually have unfired products ready to put in the kiln. Otherwise you'll probably wind up dragging around excess firing sheets that are filling inventory slots that could be better used carrying clay.

What to make? The first few items in the pottery book, skewers, ceramic linings, and clay jars, are good starts. After those, however, there's a sharp increase in prices. I've never made a pot because I can't find a pot sketch but it also calls for metal bits and a smith friend has told me that they cost around 7 gp to make. Smoker and cookie cutter sketches are expensive as well, running in the 5 to 6 gp range. As you can see, at this point failures become very costly and you may want to jump ahead to more difficult but cheaper items. As of this writing, the recipe for small bowls appears to be broken. At least I get the message that "those items don't appear to combine in those quantities" when I try it. However, the next recipe, pie tins, works just fine and, even better news, actually turns a tidy profit when successful. It costs me slightly under 2 gp to make a pie tin and I can sell it to a merchant for slightly over 5 gp for a profit of 3 gp and mind you I'm dealing with merchants who give me bad prices because they don't like me. Cake rounds are slightly more expensive to make since they require glass shards but they also return a profit. Beyond that, I don't know the profit potential of the larger bowls because I haven't tried them yet and probably won't until pie tins and cake rounds become trivial. I suspect some of them will be quite profitable too, especially mixing bowls which may actually have a player market now that the baker's recipe for clump of dough has been fixed.

Now if you'll excuse me, my cookies are about ready and they're always best straight out of the oven. (I like to bite the heads off the troll shaped ones.)

Since the writing of this pottery guide, Verant has implemented a patch which has effectively made pottery non-viable as a trade skill. NPC merchants now pay below cost, in some cases as much as 1 to 2 pp below, on all items listed in the basic pottery book. NPC merchants also sell some pottery goods, primarily those that other players would be interested in buying, for less than a potter can make them. Which means that you will lose significant amounts of money practicing pottery, even when you successfully make whatever item it you're attempting, and then be unable to sell your goods to anyone but NPCs because players will prefer buying pottery goods at the lower NPC prices.

If you choose to be a potter then I urge you not to sell any of your more saleable goods (skewers, pie tins, cake rounds, muffin tins, mixing bowls, vials, etc.) to NPC merchants. They don't normally stock pottery goods so if we don't sell to them then they won't be able to undercut the prices we're now forced to charge in order to make a profit. When you generate excess stock of these items through practice, bank what you can to sell later and destroy the rest. I know that sounds bad but when you reach my skill level and are looking at expending 40-60 pp just to master large bowls, which are not a saleable item, you'll be thankful for the existence of a player market for your wares and that market can only exist if the merchants aren't undercutting us. Hopefully Verant will make pottery more viable some day but in the meantime this is what we have to do if we're to pay for our craft.

Becoming A Master Potter on 30pp Or Less

Would you like to become a Master Potter in just over 4 hours, for less than 30 platinum? Here’s how I did it.

Since your Pottery books tell you how to make the items, let's skip to the good stuff. (If you need more information on that, just visit the main Pottery page.) All prices are with apprehensive faction with the merchants and a charisma of 45.

What I Bought

50 Medium JAR sketches
200 Medium BOWL sketches
1 water flask per sketch (summoned and foraged items don't work...grrr)
1 Medium block of clay per sketch
Don't worry about the firing sheets at this time. (Will explain shortly.)

What I Did

Start on the pottery wheel with the med JARS, continue till it becomes a trivial thing for you (You can't make med BOWLS till then). Next move to the med BOWLS and continue till you become a Master Potter. At this point you can move to the more profitable and nifty items.

Why No Firing Sheets?

Sheets are pricey, and you just never fail at the kiln. It’s best to destroy your successes since you’ll loose money if you fire up and sell the med JARS and BOWLS (at least I did).

My cost thus far has been:

50 med JAR sketches at 1s8c each
200 med BOWL sketches at 3s7c each
250 water flasks at 1s5c each
250 med block of clays at 6s each
For a grand total of: 27p5s.

But if I had bought a high quality firing sheet at 5g1c apiece for each success, the price would have shot through the roof.

Just learn the lay of the land, find your supplies and have fun.

Pottery Secrets

Pottery is generally produced in two stages. In the first stage you combine the appropriate sketch and a flask of water with clay and other materials on a pottery wheel. You then take the result and combine it with firing sheets in the kiln to make a finished product.

As with ALL trade skills, be very sure that a) you do NOT stack any items when combining, and, b) you use water flasks (from a merchant), not summoned or foraged water

Trivial levels listed are player-provided. Please post to the message boards with any trivial updates. All trivials listed are for the combination on the pottery wheel, unless otherwise specified. The actual firing of the piece always has a much lower trivial level.

- A large block of magic clay is made by an enchanter using the level 8 Enchant Clay spell. It requires a large block of clay as a material component
- Mana vials (more details can be found here):
    - The vial of cloudy mana is made by an enchanter using the level 20 Crysallize Mana spell. It requires a poison vial and a peridot as material components

    - The vial of clear mana is made by an enchanter using the level 29 Clarify Mana spell. It requires a poison vial and an emerald as material components
    - The vial of distilled mana is made by an enchanter using the level 39 Distill Mana spell. It requires a poison vial and 2 sapphires as material components
    - The vial of purified mana is made by an enchanter using the level 49 Purify Mana spell. It requires a poison vial and 4 rubies as material components.
- The divine crystalline glaze is made by mixing white lead, flask of water, iron oxide, and permafrost crystals in a glaze mortar, and is a no-fail combine
- White lead is rmade by combining lead sulfide and limestone in a mortar and pestle, and is a no-fail combine
- celestial essence is made by combining celestial solvent with a high-end research component in a mortar & pestle
- The following pelts have been found to NOT work for the poison vials: low quality cat pelt, catman skin, large Snake skin, ruined lion skin, shadow wolf pelt, shark skin, froglok skin, kobold hides, cougar pelts, dire wolf skins, scaled curskin, scaled wolf hide, ulthork hide, giant rat pelt, giant snake skin, kerra guard skin, arctic wyvern hide, tiger mane, tiger hides (any type), walrus skin (it appears that no Velious or Kunark skins or pelts work for this recipe, but many of the "old world" pelts and skins don't work either)

Smithing

Since June 5th, 2002, pretty much all smithing trivials were altered in some way. As a result, this guide takes the new trivial levels into consideration, as well as cost of supplies. Each of the steps outlined below are suggested based on cheap cost and readily-available supplies. These steps are designed for the beginner in smithing, who wishes to increase his or her skill at a relatively cheap cost to themselves. This guide suggests steps to a smithing skill of about 110.

First things first: increase your stats! If you are a caster, raise your intelligence/wisdom (whichever is your primary stat) as high as you can before attempting to smith. Melees can do this, but strength may substitute for wisdom/intelligence. So get either wisdom, intelligence, or strength as high as you possibly can. There is no need to max out all three stats; just pick one that should be easy to increase. Recall that spells may also alter stats, not just armor and weapons.

Why do you want to increase your stats? As your stat increases, so does your chance of getting a skill-up in smithing. This is not to be confused with the actual creation of a new item. Whether or not you succeed when trying to create a new item depends on your smithing skill level. If your smithing skill is 25, you have the exact same chance of creating a steel boning whether your intelligence is 120 or 180. However, with a 180 intelligence, you will be more likely to improve your smithing skill to 26.

The following is what I have done in order to master smithing. My charisma (affects prices from merchants) has fluctuated between 75 and 92, and my wisdom (primary stat) fluctuated between the 120's and 160's. Most merchants I dealt with were indifferent to me.

(Begin Steps in Guide)

Sharpen rusty weapons (sharpening stone + rusty weapon) until the mid-20's. The first rusty weapons begin to trivial at a skill level of 18, but you can take your skill up to 24 with a rusty longsword. Sharpening stones may be bought in a few locations, including Erudin, Ak'Anon, Felwithe, and Freeport to name a few. You can sharpen some rusty weapons all the way to 26, but I think it's ok to move on to steel boning at 24. You can sell tarnished weapons and recover the cheap cost of the sharpening stones; you find enough rusty weapons at low levels off of enemies so you shouldn't have to buy any. Alternately you can make metal bits (2 small pieces of ore, flask of water) to 18, but if so, you will need to buy the ore. Rusty weapons are free.

Create steel boning (small brick ore, file, flask of water) until 37. If you don't see a file for sale, you can make one (1 metal bits, file mold, flask of water; trivial at 21). If you are also interested in tailoring, you may alternately make studs (3 metal bits, file, flask of water) until 35 and then boning until 37. However, I tried this, and for whatever reason I got skill-ups with almost every boning attempt, while studs took more time to prepare and gave me fewer skill-ups. Steel boning may be saved if you are a tailor, or sold back to recover some of the cost of the ore.

Create lanterns (1 metal bits, lantern casing mold, bottle, flask water) until 68. This is surprisingly cheap. It will take you a while to make a few stacks of metal bits, but otherwise this is not too costly (several plat). The lantern casing molds are not stackable, so have a few empty backpacks/containers with you. The only nuisance here is that lanterns do not give you much money when you sell them back to a merchant.

Create dairy spoons (2 metal bits, scalar mold, flask of water) until 74. Same as before; these sell back for even less than the lanterns. However, they, too, are fairly cheap to make.

Create banded gorgets (1 sheet metal, gorget mold, flask of water) until 92. Finally, you can make something that you may actually be able to sell; banded armor! I suggest making banded gorgets (these are cheapest) until your skill hits in the mid-80's. At that point, try auctioning your smith skills to other people. Offer to make custom banded armor for whoever wants some and is willing to pay. (Check with some people to find out what is a standard price for banded armor on your server; the price varies.) Be fair; do not ask for more money than what is fair. Why? No matter what, you're going to get more money from players than from merchants, so why be greedy? So not only are your customers gaining banded armor, you may continue to get skill-ups while filling orders and you recover more of your lost money than you would selling back to merchants. It's a win-win situation. I have found that when your smithing skill is in the mid-80's, you are able to make most banded pieces within three attempts, so buy three molds per order and sell back any unused molds to merchants.

Continue with banded helmets (2 sheet metal, helm mold, flask of water) until 106, or continue to fill orders for banded armor until you trivial it. The only two banded pieces that trivial above 106 are the leggings (108) and the mail (110), but these take 3 sheets of metal and their molds are more expensive than most. Sheets of metal can be made (2 small bricks of ore, flask of water) and are stackable; molds are not stackable. Sheets of metal can sometimes be bought from merchants (Freeport, for example). I am planning on stopping at 106 when the helmets trivial and moving on to more expensive armor, rather than spending more money on leggings and mail.

(End Steps in Guide)

Congratulations! At this point you have become a master smith! I have bought most of my supplies from merchants and have probably spent 200pp so far (my skill is 104 as of July 2nd). However, I have been making a profit on banded armor, so I've only lost about 100pp total to get my skill up to master level. At this point you can offer to make banded armor to people, studs and boning to tailors, and tools such as skinning knives and filet knives to others. On my particular server, a full suit of banded armor costs 92pp, and considering I am out almost 100pp but now able to make banded armor for profit, I am really surprised more people don't take the extra time to smith.

In general, you won't often see a profit as a smith. You certainly will lose money up until the point that you can make armor, and even now I don't see people wanting to buy banded very often. However, smithing, like all tradeskills, is a fun way to take a break from the normal routine of raids and soloing.

Notes on Advanced and Cultural Smithing

There has been a lot of excitement, and even more confusion, over cultural smithing. Hopefully this guide will help to clarify some of the more commonly asked questions.

What is cultural smithing? Cultural smithing is race-specific smithing. It must be performed at a specific cultural forge, by a smith of that same race. Enchanters cannot fool cultural forges by using illusion. (Cultural smithing recipes can be found here.)

I heard someone mention dyes - can I dye my banded/cultural/etc. armor? Currently, only fine steel plate armor (shortened to "fine steel" by many) can be dyed. Some of the cultural armors have colors of their own, but this is not done by dyeing process. Dye making for fine steel is a multi-step process that adds significant time and expense to the smithing process. (More information on dyes can be found here. Recipes for fine steel plate can be found here.)

What about this imbue and enchant thing? Any race that has cultural smithing also have some "normal" cultural recipes, and then either imbued versions of the recipes OR enchanted and enchanted/imbued versions of the recipes.

Imbuing is the process of calling the blessings of a specific god down upon an item, limiting it to use by followers of only that deity. While we originally thought that there would be imbued armor for pretty much every race/deity combination, this is not turning out to be the case. Imbuing is performed by a cleric/shaman/druid on the specific gem for that deity. (See the imbued gems list for information on the gem for each deity.) The imbued gem can then be used by a smith of any religious background, provided that the recipe in question accepts that gem as a valid recipe. The end result will only be able to be worn by a person who meets the race/class AND deity restrictions of the end result. (Exception to the above info is the Solusek Ro imbue, which is performed by wizards of Solusek Ro.) Races that have non-enchanted imbued items include: barbarians, iksar, ogres and wood elves, plus some Freeport human recipes. These groups have no enchanted versions of their armor/weapons.

Enchanting is the process of granting magical bonuses to an item without deity restrictions. Several races have enchanted versions of their armor and sometimes weapons. These items can often also be imbued, though, again, seem to have some odd limits to what gems will work, leaving many gaps in that race's armor for different valid deities. Each enchanted ore requires a level 49 enchanter to cast the spell as well as a large brick of the proper type of ore. If an enchanted folded sheet is needed, then all three large bricks that go into the making of the block must be enchanted.

Basic Metalworking - Ore conversions, bits, studs, boning, etc

All recipes must be combined in a normal forge (cultural forges will not work for these recipes) Note: many trivials changed with the June 5 patch. Understandably, it's going to take time for updated information to be put in place.

Cabilis, Shestar's Scaled Coif - combine unfinished coif (from Trooper Shestar in East Cabilis for 3 loose scales and 5gp) and 3 loose scales in a forge to get a Shestar's Coif. (trivial 23)

Tempers and Tanning Agents

Cultural smithing, racial tailoring and Velious tailoring require several brewed tempers and tanning agents. Note that ALL smithing tempers can be brewed by brewers of ALL races. Race restrictions are only for the smith working on the appropriate racial smithing item. These items are all combined in a brew barrel.

Please post any corrections/changes on the message boards.

Known locations for temper materials:

- akheva blood: drops off Xin Thal Centians in Maiden's Eye, off "bleeding" undead in Akheva, Shadow Masters in Grieg's End
- blood water: merchant sold, also given out in some iksar newbie quests
- coldain velium temper - on top of the recipe above, it is also merchant sold
- drops of mercury: drops off various elementals (Steamfont, Najena, the Hole, etc.), eart elementals in Twilight Sea
- dwarf blood: if you guessed from dwarves, you'd be correct! For the faction conscious, try the dvarven bandits in Butcherblock
- dwarven ale: sold at various alcohol vendors
- elf blood: off a variety of elves (Sister Isle in OOT, Wood elves in Timorous Deep, etc., are commonly "farmed" for blood)
- essence of darkness: Dark Assassins & Dark Masters in Umbral, Centi Dators & Transients in Akheva, Greater Spire Spirits in Mons Letalis
- essence of fire: guardian elementals in Solusek A, fire elementals in Lavastorm & Najena, lava elementals in Sol B
- essence of moonlight: many mobs in the castle of Mistmoore (no longer just the vampires), dread wolves in Kithicor Forest
- essence of shadows: shadowed men (any zone that has them: EC, Lavastorm, SK ...)

- essence of sunlight: found on Sand Giants in South Ro, the Squire in Upper Guk, chromadracs in Skyfire, fairy dragons in Wakening Lands
- essence of wind: drops off air elementals in Twilight Sea, crag li & meeda hune in in Tenebrous Mountains, crag li in Scarlet Desert
- essence of winter: ice giants (Permafrost and Everfrost), tundra yeti (Dreadlands)
- fish wine: sold at various alcohol vendors, can also be brewed
- flame agate: drops off various goblins in Solusek A, ice giants in Everfrost, pandas in Stonebrunt, mobs in Mistmoore, various mobs in Lower Guk, aviaks in South Karana ... and many others
- froglok blood: found off frogloks in Upper Guk, some frogoloks in Kunark
- griffene blood: rare drop off griffenes and griffons in North Karana, as well as timber griffawns and griffons in Jaggedpine Forest. Also reported as dropping off the sphinx on isle 6 (drake isle), plane of air
- grinning goblin brew:- drops in Temple of Droga off backbiters
- human blood: found on humans. For the faction conscious, try bandits, dervish cutthroats, raiders, etc.
- ice goblin blood: from various ice gobbies in Permafrost/Everfrost
- iksar blood: various iksar, with spellcasting ones seeming more likely to drop it (i.e., iksar necromancers in Sebilis jail)
- imp blood: fire imps in Lavastorm (hint: fire elementals will kill fire imps if they find the imps before you do, so be sure to go on killing sprees), imp protectors in Sol B (Nagafen's Lair)
- lava rock - fire elementals (Lavastorm, Najena, etc.), Fire Giants (Solusek B), wyverns in Skyfire, fire elementals in Twilight Sea
- morning dew: foraged in Greater and Lesser Faydark at any time of the day, also some ground spawns in LFay
- mt death mineral salts: drops in Temple of Droga
- mug of sea foam: found on seafury cyclops in OOT, isle goblin chieftan in OOT
- neriak nectar: sold at various alcohol vendors
- ogre swill: sold at some booze merchants in Oggok and Freeport, possibly other locations as well

- rain water: gnolls in South Karana, Lake Rathe, and East Karana
- saltwater seaweed: fished in OOT - this is a NO DROP item, whomever is doing the brewing for this must do the fishing for it as well. This has also been reported as fished in Timorous Deep.
- sarnak blood: found on various sarnaks in Kunark
- swirling mist: found off steam elementals in Steamfont (extremely rare), mist elementals in Najena, "Huge Water Elemental" in LGuk; A Crystalline Cloud and A Gust of Wind on Gorgolosk Island in Plane of Air, Water Elementals in Twilight Sea
- Tae Ew blood: NO DROP item from the "new" Cazic Thule zone, extremely, extremely rare drop
- windstone: grimlings in grimling mines in Tenebrous Mountains, Moktar Tribesmen in Umbral Plains

Known locations for tanning materials:

- aviak eggs - foraged in Butcherblock Mountains
- cobalt cod - fished in Cobalt Scar
- drake eggs - foraged in Skyshrine, Western Wastes, Temple of Veeshan, also rare drop off named drakes in Skyshrine
- misty acorn - ground spawn in Misty Thicket, also can be foraged in Misty Thicket
- oak bark - foraged in Kithicor Forest, Warslik's Woods, ground spawn in Butcherblock
- paeala bark - sold by merchants
- yew leaves - ground spawn in Wakening Lands; rare forage in Wakening Lands

How to Become a Mistress

Ah, smithing. The forging of weapons and armor to protect ones body, or to fatten one's bank account. A trade that many a warrior, cleric, or paladin undertakes. One that takes strength and stamina.

So, what chance in hell does a Dark Elven Necromancer, like me, have to succeed in smithing?

Logic aside, I've found smithing to be a rewarding trade by far, and wish to share my knowledge with the rest of Norrath, and guide others onto the path of smithing mastery.

0-21

So, you want to smith, do ya? Well, before you can make that full suit of enchanted imbued cultural armor, you've got to do the grunt work first, young apprentice. Most take two paths in approaching their first 21 points in smithing. The least expensive is to sharpen weapons. This takes 1 sharpening stone and a rusty weapon; both placed inside of the forge. Click the 'combine' button: on a success, you lose the sharpening stone, and get a tarnished weapon in return, which has a delay that's 2 less than its original (faster); a failure costs you the sharpening stone and returns the rusty weapon. The drawbacks to this method are that it's time consuming, especially if you need to zone multiple times to get the stones, and rusty weapons are heavy. The other way is to dump points into smithing until it won't let you anymore… crude and more expensive than sharpening, but effective nonetheless. (You can sharpen long swords up to 26 and two handed swords up to 31 - Ed.)

22-51

Now begins the hand cramping stages, as you need to start making metal bits. To make a metal bit, put 2 small pieces of ore, not stacked, into the forge along with one flask of water. Click 'combine'.On a failure, you get laughed at by the gods of fate, on a success you get a metal bit. Better make room in your schedule, as for my guide you'll need at least a 10-slot backpack full of metal bits. After you've made these, and they'll be trivial long before 51, you will make toolboxes. Toolboxes are very easy, as they take 1 flask of water and 1 metal bit. The problem is, they are containers, and they don't sell for very much, so you'll either waste time selling the boxes or money tossing them aside. Toolboxes become trivial at 51.

52-115

Big jump, isn't it? That's because there are two paths for this leg of your journey. If you have faction in a good aligned city (Qeynos faction is VERY easy, I'm dubious with the Clerics and Corrupt Guards in N Qey, warmly with everyone else), then skewers will be what takes you to 115. You will fail a lot early on, but it's not as costly or annoying as the alternative listed below. To make skewers, it takes a metal bit, a flask of water, and a skewer mold in the forge. The molds don't stack, by the way, and are used up on a success or fail. Skewers are trivial at 115.

For those of you that don't have faction in a good city, your next step is lanterns. Lanterns take 1 metal bit, 1 flask of water, 1 bottle, and a lantern mold. These are trivial at 68. At this point, you'll sorely wish you had faction in a good city, as the next step is banded, which takes sheets of metal. To make a sheet of metal, put two small bricks of ore and 1 flask of water into the forge and click combine. They will be trivial long before 68, but failures are all too common. Make either banded gorgets (easier and cheaper, fewer raises), boots (costly and more difficult, faster raises), or bracers (in between), each taking 1 sheet of metal, the appropriate mold, and a flask of water.

116-175

This is the money-wasting step, as there is no other reasonable way to make it to 175. Make metal sheets, or buy ‘em from vendors in Qeynos Hills, among other places, and make Banded Cloaks. They take 2 sheets of metal, a flask of water, and a banded cloak mold. You’ll get some failures, but can counteract them by selling easier to make pieces to other PCs.

175 and beyond

Get a fairly large monetary base before attempting this. Fine Plate will be the best path to reach the 200’s, as most of the materials can be purchased easily. First, smith a Skinning Knife (a large brick of ore, 1 flask of water, a dagger mold, and a hilt mold), then make your way to Everfrost with a sewing kit of any size. You will need to make leather backings first, as Fine Plate and some cultural armors require them. Leather Backings take a Silk Thread (2 spiderling silks in a sewing kit, trivial at Tailoring (15), never fails) and a Low Quality wolf/bear/cat pelt. Everfrost has both spiderlings and wolves/bears, just wandering around saying ‘skin me!’, so oblige! The Skinning Knife is used to lower the quality of a pelt. Put a Skinning Knife and a pelt of any quality other than ruined into the kit and click ‘combine’: to my knowledge, this never fails. You can easily get 4 or 5 stacks of leather padding (trivial in the 30’s, but lots of failures until the 50s in Tailoring) killing these yourself, or buying them from newbies. Fine Steel plate takes Medium Quality Ore, sold in only 3 places in the world: Steamfont, Highpass, and Rathe Mountains. Smelt the ore into Folded Medium Quality Sheet Metal by combining in a forge 1 Block (20pp) of MQ ore, 1 smithy hammer (not the cultural one), and a flask of water. For each piece of FS Plate, you need a plate mold (sold in every city save Cabilis and Surefall), 1 leather backing, the smithy hammer (which is always returned unless you botch the recipe), 1 flask of water, and MQ Folded metal sheets (1 for bracers and gorgets, 3 for breastplates, greaves, and cloaks, and 2 for everything else). Lighter than bronze and similar to the class specific quest armors as far as AC is concerned, FS plate is a good alternative to those that can’t afford the various Crafted or Lambent or what have you. In addition, it can be dyed, but I have not attempted to do so as of yet.

Tailoring

Tailoring

Tailoring is the art of working with pelts, hides, and silks in order to make armor and various containers. It is one of the easier skills to get started, but one of the hardest tradeskills in which to grandmaster. Three races (halflings, wood elves and erudites) also have tailoring as their cultural specialty.

If you wish to make non-metal armor for yourself and others, tailoring is the skill you need to learn. Your first finished products will be patchwork armor for the non-casters, and silk swatches and raw silk armor for the pure spellcasters and monks.

While some folks have expressed an interest in learning simply to make themselves some armor, in order to develop enough skill to make yourself armor, you might as well continue working on the skill enough to pay for all those pelts and patterns you ruined in the process.

I'm not going to tell you everything there is to know about tailoring, but here's some basic information to save you a lot of mis-spent money.

For patchwork:

First, lets clear some misconceptions and confusions: a) Small sewing kits can be used to make armor for all size folks. The size of the sewing kit does NOT affect the size of the armor being made. (I've seen a lot of humans running around looking for "medium sewing kits" to no avail.) b) Somewhere along the way, the powers that be did a name change on things, so some pelts will be called pelts, others will be called "skins". As long as the other part of the description matches the pelt you need, it's the one you want. (e.g., ruined bear pelt, high quality bear skin, etc.)

The pelt or skin determines the size of the armor made. (Wolf for the wee folks, cat for the medium folks, and bear for the large folks.) Ruined pelts are for patchwork, which makes sense, since patchwork is bits and pieces, and you mangled the pelt while skinning it. Better pelts/skin, plus the large sewing kit mix with patterns and certain metal objects, to make studded leather and reinforced leather armor. Of course, these sorts of things are a lot more difficult to make, and so on, so forget about it for now. Just focus on the basics — patchwork. By the time you have mastered that, and have a tailoring skill of 26, then you can start asking around to find someone willing to teach you the tricks to the better leather armors. Until that time, you'll waste a lot of materials, and frustrate yourself unduly.

For silk armor: The first thing you're going to need is spider silk, and lots of it. Now, we're not talking of mugging spiderlings here, as their silk is too small to do any good for armor (there are tailoring uses for spiderling silk, and this guide WILL be rewritten with that information once the DenMother is back from vacation). You need the bigger spiders to pull this off: large spiders, giant spiders, carrion spiders, crag spiders, wooly spiders, etc. You can get your skill in tailoring from 0 to somewhere in the teens by just taking two pieces of spider silk and combining them in either size sewing kit. Set the resulting silk swatch aside — you're going to need lots of it. Once your sewing skill is in the teens (or sooner if you want to risk ruining more silk swatches and patterns), you combine silk swatches and patterns in the large kit to produce raw silk armor that spellcasters and monks can wear. The number of swatches you need varies with the item being made, but always, always, with any trade skill, remember that if something needs 2 or more of an item, that those items must be unstacked in your kit before you combine. Once raw silk armor is trivial for you, then you can start teaming up with a brewer to make cured silk armor, and with an enchanter to make Wu's Fighting Gauntlets for the monks (the only piece of "glowing silk" armor in the game so far), but definitely don't even think of trying to learn how to tailor on the more advanced items unless you have a lot of money you're willing to waste as you ruin things.

Studded/reinforced leather: At one point, studded and reinforced leather armor were the main tailored armor upgrade for druids. With the addition of halfling and wood elf cultural tailoring, especially the imbued versions which cover the druidic deities, this is no longer the case. While these items are good for skill increases, it's unlikely you'll find much of a market for them.

Bags and other containers: There are several containers that you can make via tailoring. Some, such as handmade (10-slot) backpacks and bearskin potion bags (for combining several single-charge alchemy potions into one multiple-charge potion) will have a market.

What's next?: There's still a LOT more you can make with tailoring from this point onwards, but it will be expensive to your pocketbook as well as eat a lot of your time. If you're looking for the "cheapest" path to mastery after cured silk, your best bet is likely to work on quivers until they go trivial at 115, and then work on the crystalline silks from Velious until skill 131. There is no cheap and easy way to grandmaster level tailoring from 131 onwards at this time. All other "advanced" tailoring from this point onwards requires serious amounts of time spent collecting components and serious amounts of cash investments... plus high failure rates. There are many nice items that can be made by highly-skilled tailors, and you may be one of the treasured few who works their way to becoming a grandmaster (200+) tailor, but please, don't say you weren't warned that it would be a difficult and expensive path. :)

How to Become a Mistress Tailor

Tailoring is the fine art of skinning helpless and not so helpless animals of their pelts and sewing them into garments to provide warmth, protection, or glamor. Fortunately for us Norrathians, Greenpeace doesn't exist to stop us professional furriers, so I've taken it upon myself to guide the future fashion experts on this fine art.

Glossary

- Arctic Wyvern—Shaman-only armor made from arctic wyvern hides. Studded.
- Black Pantherskin—Monk- and Beastlord-only armor made from Black Pantherskins. Reinforced.
- Cobalt Drake—made from cobalt drake hides. Can be worn by all except intelligence-based casters.
- Fizzle—failing the creation of a trivial item. Regardless of skill, there is always a 5% fail rate on any given item, even if it is trivial, unless it is no-fail.
- Fur—see Pelt.
- Haze Pantherskin—Rogue-only armor made from haze pantherskins. Reinforced.
- Hide—see Pelt.
- Ice Silk—Caster-only armor made from the silk from Ice Burrowers. Silk.
- Imbued—to bless a piece of armor or a weapon with a diety's power. This is usually accomplished by putting an imbued gem with the rest of the items when doing the combine.
- Infused—the most powerful version of a cultural armor. Requires much more expensive components.

- Leather—armor designed from hides, pelts, skins and furs, designed for monks, druids, and other leather-wearing classes.
- Leatherfoot Bags—made by Halflings. These bags come in various sizes, and are all 100% weight reduction.
- Mana Vial—always entitled 'vial of [adjective] mana', these are made by enchanters. They require a poison vial and an appropriate gem:
    - Viscous: pearl, Thicken Mana (level 12)
    - Clear: emerald, Clarify Mana (level 29)
    - Distilled: 2 sapphires, Distill Mana (level 39)
    - Purified: 4 rubies, Purify Mana (level 49)
- Mithril Leather—also known as wood elven cultural. Can be studded or reinforced, made from sabretooth tiger hides. Made by wood elves, humans, wood elves, and high elves can wear. Can be imbued with Tunare's power only.
- No-fail—regardless of skill, no fail items will always result in successful combines. Currently, only silk swatches and silk threads are no fail.
- Oil—see Tannin.
- Pelt—the skin, hide, or fur used in the construction of the leather-class of tailored armors.
- Random Number Generator—or RNG, it is the bane of all tradeskillers. It is the last word on the success or failure of any combine.
- Reinforced—armor made from regular, velium, or acrylia bonings.
- Silk—armor designed from silk, designed for monks, beastlords, and intelligence-based casters.
- Skin—see Pelt.
- Steelsilk—also known as Erudite Cultural. Made from Terrorantula Silks. Can be worn only by Erudites, and can be imbued with Prexus', Quellious', or Cazic-Thule's power. Plate and chain classes only.
- Steelweave—the infused version of Erudite cultural. Same restrictions as Steelsilk, but humans may wear as well.

- Stormreapers—the infused halfling cultural armor. Available in reinforced for druids, chain-type for rangers and plate-type for paladins. Halfling, human, and half elf wearable, it can only be imbued with Karana's power.
- Studded—armor made from regular, acrylia, or velium studs.
- Swatch—two silks of the same types combined together.
- Tannin—the 'temper' used in some leatherworking.
- Thread—two lesser silks (usually has the suffix –ling in its name) combined together.
- Trivial—when you can no longer raise skill through the manufacture of a given item.
- Tunarean Soldier—a special armor made by wood elves. It is the upgrade to reinforced mithril leather.
- Vale Leather—also known as Halfling Cultural. Available in studded and reinforced, and made with brute hides. Halflings, humans, wood and half elves can wear, and it can be imbued with Karana's power.
- Woven Platinum—infused Erudite Cultural armor that can be worn only by intelligence casters. Same restrictions as Steelsilk.

So, you want to be a Tailor, do ya?

For the beginning tailor, you will require at the very least a small sewing kit. These are sold in most cities on Norrath, but I recommend upgrading to a large kit asap, as most of the advanced recipies require them. Large kits are located in the inn in North Ro, the Feerrott, Qeynos Hills, Thurgadin, and many other locales that one should easily be able to access.

Here, kitty, wolfie, teddy, spidery…(0-36)

At this point, you are given several options. If you have the points to spare, you can simply train your way to 26, and proceed to the next step. If you wish to save your training points, however, you will have to make raw silken materials or patchwork. The raw silken materials, silk threads and silk swatches, are made by combining 2 spiderling silks for silk thread, or 2 spider silks for a silk swatch, in a sewing kit. This never fails, and becomes trivial at 15 skill. These will both be used for important items later on, so you may wish to stockpile them. Patchwork/tattered armor is made by combining a ruined cat, bear, or wolf pelt and a clothing pattern in a sewing kit. These all trivial at 26. The type of pelt will determine the size of the garment: cat for medium, bear for large, wolf for small.

After patchwork becomes trivial, you'll be putting those silk swatches to good use with the manufacture of raw silk garments. To make these, combine a clothing pattern and 2 non-stacked silk swatches for tunics and leggings in a sewing kit. For every other raw silk piece, only 1 silk swatch is needed. These become trivial at 36, and at that point, you'll be ready to move on.

Uh…what's this metaly thing? (37-84)

For this step, you may want to make friends with a brewer and a smith, or if you're a perfectionist like me, become one yourself, as this step requires items from both of those trades. Also, you will learn quickly that the mask pattern is your best friend…

From 37 to 56, you will want to make studded masks, which take a mask pattern, a medium quality wolf, cat, or bear pelt, and 1 stud, which is made through smithing. I suggested masks, as they require the fewest studs. Studded masks become trivial at 56.

From 57 to 84, you'll want to sell off your remaining studs, and buy or make heady koila, which is brewed. You'll now be making cured silk masks, which require 1 silk swatch, 1 heady koila, and a mask pattern. Again, I suggested the mask pattern, as they require the fewest koilas and the fewest swatches.

Side note: Once you reach 84 skill, hand made backpacks (backpack patteren and high quality bearskin) and Wu's Fighting Gauntlets (glove pattern, greater lightstone, silk swatch, 4 heady koilas, vial of viscous mana) become trivial. These items, especially the 10 slot backpack are highly prized and popular, and will sell well.

Redirect all my mail to the Karanas (85-115)

Load up on quiver patterns and get to East Karana, you're going to be there a while. This is the step that seperates the men from the non-men, as you'll be making quivers from now until 115. (Note: make certain that you purchase the Quiver Pattern, not Fleeting Quiver Pattern.) Combine in a sewing kit, a quiver pattern and a high quality cat pelt. Quivers are containers that will only hold arrows (bah!), so you'll have to decide on wether or not to resale them to merchants or drop them to the ground. These become trivial at 115.

As an alternate to making quivers, you can make reinforced armor. Once again, mask patterns are the absolute best: combine 1 mask pattern, a high quality wolf/cat/bear pelt, and a steel boning (made by a smith) in the sewing kit. These will also take you to 115, but are a hassle to make, and considering that high quality cat pelts would be better suited for quivers (fewer ingredients needed) and high quality bear pelts make better and more profitable backpacks, and high quality wolfskins are so rare…

S-so C-c-cold (100-131)

With the addition of Scars of Velious™, new sets of tailoring recipies were introduced. Over the course of several patches, it became painfully clear that unless you were a wood elf or halfling, you'd never be able to make the darn things with a reasonable success rate without spending lots of platinum. Finally, a new product was added to attempt to bridge the gap; unfortunately, it only goes a third of the way. Still, we take what we can get, like the trained harbor seals we are. Ranting aside, I now present to you Crystalline Silk Garments.

Crystalline Silk is harvested off of various crystal spiders in Thurgadin's mines, Velktor's Labyrinth, and Crystal Caverns. It's stackable, but cant be used in this form; you must make it into swatches. Combine 2 crystalline silks, not stacked, mind you, in a sewing kit. This never fails, and becomes trivial at 26. To make the garments, combine in a sewing kit a clothing pattern, 1 silver thread (purchased in Thurgadin, possibly Erudin?) and 1-3 crystalline swatches (1 for caps, masks, gorgets, shoulders, and wristbands, 2 for sashes, sleeves, gloves, and slippers, 3 for tunics, cloaks, and legs). The best way to get the most skill for your silk is to make mantles (1 swatch) until 118, then sleeves (2 swatches) until 124, and finally tunics (3 swatches) until 131.

Koila's bite! (128-158)

The elusive Master Wu, after years of silence and mystery, has finally released the remainder of his ensamble…or, more importantly, the recipes on how to make them. To create Wu's Fighting Armor, you need a recipe similar to the already existing gloves; combine in a tailor's kit a pattern, a vial of viscous mana (enchanter made), 4 bottles of heady koila (brewed), and silk swatches. For best results, follow the same progression you did with Crystalline Silks.

Not that forge thing again! (159-242)

Shadows of Luclin™ added a new set of tailoring recipies to make it slightly easier to bridge the gap on the road to grand mastery; Acrylia Studded (trivial 188 on all pieces) and acrylia reinforced (trivial 242 on all pieces). Acrylia studded armor is made by combining together a superb rockhopper hide, the appropriate pattern, a paeala bark tannin (brewed), and 1 to 5 acrylia studs. Acrylia reinforced armor is made much in the same manner, except a flawless rockhopper hide is used instead of a superb one, and 1-4 acrylia bonings (instead of studs) are used in it's creation. Once again, the mask pattern will become your constant companion (if you are going for skill alone), as each mask type takes only one stud or boning.

A Non-Tailor's Guide to Getting Tailored Velious Armors

For those non-tailors who are interested in Velious items, some advice - some of the components needed are relatively easy to get and others represent the real gating factor in getting that super item you want. Having 25 Tigeraptor hides doesn't help a tailor when the holdup is gathering 300 small pieces of velium (and buying the 200 coldain tempers at 27 pp each) for the 25 studded Tigeraptor hide cloaks you'd like attempted.

Here is a list of velious armors and the relative difficulties in acquiring components for them. If you are intent upon collecting components so that your local tailor can make attempts at a specific piece of armor, focus on getting the tough stuff first.

1. Tigeraptor Armor: Tigeraptor Hides (easy), Drake Eggs (hard), Velium Studs(hard)
2. Wyvern Hide: Wyvern Hides (easy), Codfish Oil (easy), Velium Studs (hard)
3. Cobalt Drake Armor: Cobalt Drake Hides (hard), Drake Eggs (hard), Velium Boning (easy)
4. Black Panther Armor: Panther Skins (easy), Yew Leaves (VERY hard), Velium Boning (easy)
5. Haze Panther Armor: Haze Panther Skins (very hard), Yew Leaves (VERY hard), Velium Boning (easy)
6. Othmir Fur Items: Othmir Fur (hard), Clear Vials of Mana (Easy), Silver Thread (Very Easy)
7. Holgresh Fur Items: Holgresh Pelts (hard), Distilled Vials of Mana (hard), Gold Thread (easy)
8. Velium Hound Items: Velium Hound Furs (hard), Purified mana (hard), Platinum Thread (easy - but expensive!)
9. Ice Silk Armor: Ice Burrower Silk (very hard), Purified mana (hard), Platinum Thread (easy - but expensive!)

Velium Boning is easy because small velium bricks drop fairly frequently off of miners in Crystal Caverns and each brick makes one boning and requires only one coldain temper.

Velium Studs are hard because small velium pieces drop slightly less frequently than the bricks do and it take 6 pieces and four coldain tempers to make two studs. (They can only be made two at a time.) Therefore they are more than three times harder to acquire than boning and cost twice as much.

Othmir pelts should be easier to get, but few people choose to hunt the cute little fez wearing bipeds, seeing as they are the only merchants in Cobalt Scar and they give out nice quests to people friendly to them

If you focus on gathering, buying or stealing the hard components for your friendly high level tailor, they will be able to make more attempts at the armor you're after. If you collect the easy components, then you're just asking to have your bank, mule and friends characters all filled with hides for months while said tailor scrounges for the hard items they need to use your pelts...

Tailored Armor Recipes

(See the Velious Recipes section for Velious tailored armors - due to the number of special instructions that go with those armors, they get their own sections.)

Note that in many places, I mention HQ and MQ "pelts", but some of them may be named "skins" or "hide" instead. Please do not let Verant's naming process confuse you. If the rest of the name is correct (high quality cat, ruined wolf, etc.), then it is the correct item. (For example, it's an HQ bear skin, not an HQ bear pelt, but it works properly in the recipe)

Any item in the below list with an asterisk (*) before the listing requires items that are found only in Luclin.

Pelts

This is a list of various different dropped skins, silks, pelts, hides, flesh, items that sort of sound like they could be used for tailoring or already have tailoring uses, and where they are found and what they are for that I know of. It is kind of a list to check if you find a pelt you aren't familiar with and want to know if you can combine it in your sewing kit, or turn it in for faction, or experiment with it a little. A couple disclaimers: this isn't a complete tell all list, I didn't spend 3 months checking every EverQuest link and hundreds of hours killing every monster to see if they drop pelts. Its fairly large though, and somewhat organized by type, with info on if its from an expansion, a general idea of what zone(s) (if I know) it drops in. If its only off one type of mob, I might mention that if the mob's name isn't on the pelt (i.e., LQ, MQ, and HQ lion skins would get mentioned that they come off highland lions, Scrounge's pelt would just say named coyote since its name is Scrounge) Not all quests are listed, not all recipes are listed. For more recipe info and trivials check the tailoring pages. Not all info is verified by me, I might misspell a few words and put hide instead of skin or pelt in place of hide or whatever. Anyway hopefully this will help some of the tailoring community on some of the more unique pelts and less seen items.

Some abbreviations-
